BATTLE RAGES IN MANCHURIA, SAYS DISPATCH

Artillery and Airplanes Used by Russians, It Is Reported.

STRATEGIC SECTIONS ARE TWICE RETAKEN

Soviets Now Have 30,000 Soldiers Moving Into Ussuri District.

GENERAL OFFENSIVE ON CHINESE PLANNED

State Department Here Still Regards Real War, as Unlikely.

(Associated Press.)

Real war seems to have started along the Manchurian border between the Chinese province of Kirin and the Siberian maritime province in the sector where Russian and Chinese forces for a month have been strengthening their positions.

The strategic railway center of Pogranichnaya, eastern terminal of the Chinese Eastern Railway, has been the scene of fierce fighting for the last three days. It has changed hands twice in the heaviest fighting yet to occur since the beginning of the Manchurian dispute two months ago.

Dispatches from various points in the Far East — Harbin, Mukden, Shanghai and Tokyo—indicate the seriousness of the fighting. Artillery and airplanes were used by the Russians. However, there has been no report of any large number of casualties, which may indicate exaggeration of the gravity of the situation.

Troop Movements Reported.

For six weeks Russian troops have been moving into the Usuri district. Reports have said there were 30,000 soviet soldiers between Vladivostok and Khabarovsk. Shanghai reported Chinese reinforcements hurrying northward where fighting is supposed to be progressing along "the entire Manchurian-Siberian frontier." This would mean along a 2,000-mile stretch of primitive country and the report is probably highly speculative.

The inception of the trouble seems to have been the blowing up of a Chinese Eastern Railway passenger train Saturday after the tracks had been mined with high explosives. Three thousand Russian troops are supposed to have crossed into Chinese territory for raiding purposes. Apparently they were driven back and the Chinese still hold their positions.

The new flare-up in Manchuria comes at a time when it seemed likely that diplomatic negotiations would result in an amicable settlement of the dispute which arose when Chinese provincial authorities seized the administration of the Chinese Eastern Railway and ousted Russian staff members.

48 Reported Wounded.

London, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Reuter's dispatches from Harbin, Manchuria, reported today that fighting was in progress at Poganichnaya, eastern terminus of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Bombing by Russian planes was said to have destroyed buildings and wounded 30 Chinese soldiers and 18 civilians.

All railway engines on the Chinese Eastern had been withdrawn to Muling, where the railway employes have gone on strike. No trains from Harbin proceeded farther along the line than Muling.

Communications Are Cut.

Shanghai, Sept. 9 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—General surprise marked the receipt of reports reaching Nanking from Manchuria that the severest engagement to date occurred Saturday along the Sino-Soviet frontier. Reports state that it is impossible to estimate the dead and wounded because of the confusion along the Manchuli and Suifenho fronts.

Communications between Harbin and Suifenho are cut while the Russian bombardment destroyed part of the railway. Both passenger and freight trains were derailed.

Progranichnaya is the scene of a marked Russian offensive, aeroplanes supporting the heavy artillery.

It is anticipated that the Russians are planning to commence a general offensive, supporting diplomatic moves at Berlin.

At the present moment Nanking is facing serious internal situations which require the full strength of the government, so that the Russian offensive is extremely embarrassing.

Would Disband Surplus Troops.

Chiang Kai Shek's return to Nanking inaugurates a definite attempt to disband surplus troops, particularly in the Yangtze Valley. Such disbandment involves strong measures against recalcitrant militarists who intend to continue military feudalism as long as possible.

The situation also involves a $70,000,000 Chinese loan which is not

Huston Is Named Head Of G. O. P. Committee

Selection of J. F Burke Seen as Suggestion From President.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Claudius H. Huston, of Indiana, Tennessee and New York, was yesterday formally elected chairman of the Republican National Committee and almost immediately turned over the job to Vice Chairman Ralph Williams, of Oregon, until he has had time to dispose of his business connections.

The meeting of the committee, bringing the Republicans back under one roof at the Willard Hotel after a tendency several months ago of some of them to scatter, was a cut and dried affair, with the exception that James Francis Burke, general counsel of the committee and Hoover lieutenant extraordinary, was made a member of the executive committee.

Ordinarily, this would not attract so much attention, as Burke usually arranges the program for the committee meetings and sits in on them, but coming right after his set-to with Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt on the question of responsibility for her famous speech to the preachers, it well may give Burke a lot of satisfaction.

GALLINGER REPORT SUBMITTED TODAY

Strict Secrecy Is Maintained as to Contents to Go to Commissioners.

CHANGES MAY BE URGED

The final report by the Board of Public Welfare following the investigation conducted by its medical surveys committee into conditions at Gallinger Municipal Hospital is to be submitted to the District Commissioners this morning.

Extreme measures, even to closing the transom over the door and to post guards, were taken to insure secrecy at two meetings of the committee and of the full board held in the rooms of the board in the District Building yesterday.

After a session lasting two hours, the committee, headed by its chairman, W. W. Millan, presented its report, part in writing and part verbally, to the full board, of which Mr. Millan is also the acting head. Two more hours were devoted by the Board of Public Welfare to consideration of the report. After the meeting Mr. Millan toiled until late last night getting the voluminous mass of records into final shape for presentation to the Commissioners.

Members of the committee declined to discuss the session after its adjournment, or to give any clew as to whether or not any recommendations will accompany the report. It is expected, however, that certain recommendations for a few minor changes will be made, although those in close touch with the situation at Gallinger are inclined to regard these proposed changes as a means for "whitewashing" the institution and still complying with the public demand for action.

Greek Bandits Free 100 But Still Hold Senator

Athens, Greece, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Nearly 100 persons captured in a bandit ambush yesterday in a narrow valley near the Village of Petroull, 10 miles from Trikala, were liberated by the highwaymen today. Senator Ajdjigakis and four others still were held captive and a ransom of about $52,000 was demanded as the price of their freedom.

The council of ministers today ordered that serious measures be taken against the bandits, but execution of the orders was held up for fear that the bandits might murder their captives.

TEST OF STRENGTH ON TARIFF DELAYED

Democrats to Muster Forces for Vote on Income Tax Data.

LEADERS START DEBATE

(Associated Press).

The Senate finally got to work on the tariff issue yesterday, but the first test of strength of the contending groups was deferred after several hours' discussion of the Simmons resolution seeking income tax data from the Treasury for use in arguing for or against proposed changes in import levies.

Indications at the close were that the Democrats were not ready for a vote, but hoped greater strength could be mustered for the tax publicity proposal today on resumption of debate.

When the Senate will begin discussion of the bill itself was problematical in view of the attempt started at the outset of proceedings by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, to obtain disposition of the long-pending Vare case. His resolution bearing on the Senatorial seat contest has privileged status and early action on it can be demanded.

The day's debate saw all of the tariff leaders of both parties participating, with Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the finance committee and author of the tax data proposal, and Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, chairman of the committee, making the principal arguments for and against the resolution.

Simmons said his sole purpose was to ascertain information that may be helpful to the Senate in determining whether industries of the country are entitled to the increased tariff protection they demand. If it were shown that industry were making large profits under existing law, he said, then they were not entitled to increased duties.

Smoot charged the resolution was an attempt, "through the consequent delay," to bring about ultimate defeat of the tariff bill.

"The price to be paid is certain," he said. "The consequences are certain. The establishment of the principle of income-tax publicity, the opportunity to attempt to harass a few individual taxpayers, prolonged and indefinite delay in the consideration of the bill—these are the real issues presented by the resolution."

A vote for the resolution, he added, would be an indorsement of all of "these propositions," and with each

VARE DISPUTE PERILS EARLY TARIFF ACTION

Norris Resolution Calling Contest Up Comes as Shock to Senate.

ISSUE THREATENING SESSION'S BUSINESS

Democratic Support See Indicated for Senator From Nebraska.

INQUIRIES ARE MADE INTO VARE'S HEALTH

Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, Says He Is Not Able to Appear Yet.

(Associated Press.)

The three-year-old dispute over the right of William S. Vare to a seat in the Senate was suddenly forced before the tariff-minded Senate for determination yesterday by Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, with a resolution to bar the Pennsylvania Republican.

Offered just as the debate on the tariff bill was opening, the resolution promised to take precedence over the tariff, to which the Nebraska senator is vigorously opposed. The surprised Republican leadership forestalled debate on Norris' resolution for a day, but Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, announced later he thought the Vare case should be settled now.

It seemed certain last night that the issue would sidetrack indefinitely the Republican tariff measure begin ning today or tomorrow.

Forces Davy's Delay.

Senator Watson, the Republican leader, forced a day's delay by invoking the Senate rule that all resolutions must lie over for a day. Norris gave notice he would call it up today and Vice President Curtis ruled that the resolution was privileged.

The Nebraskan had conferred with the special committee which conducted the inquiry into Vare's expenditures in the three-cornered Republican senatorial primary campaign of 1926. Senator Robinson is the chairman of that committee, succeeding Senator Reed (Democrat), Missouri, who has retired. He contended Vare was well enough now to defend himself and the case should be settled.

Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, made it known he would oppose adoption of the Norris resolution He said Vare was not well enough to defend himself and expressed fear that the resolution would become a vehicle for filibuster against the tariff bill.

Reed Waged Filibuster.

Two years ago Reed waged a successful filibuster against reappointment of the Vare investigating committee. A filibuster now would work against the tariff measure in which the Pennsylvanian is vitally interested.

Norris contended there was no need for lengthy debate unless the friends of Vare wished to do the talking. Both he and Senator Robinson believed that two or three hours would be sufficient.

The special invetigating committee submitted its report recommending against a seat for Vare at the close of the last session in March, but in view of the illness of the Pennsylvanian the Senate then decided to defer consideration.

In his resolution Norris stated that the committee reported expenditures of $785,000 by the Vare ticket in the Republican primary fight of 1926

"From the report and the evidence taken by the committee," said his

Speaker Extends Recess of House

Members Notified by Mail Business Will Be Nil Until October 14.

(Associated Press).

Although the House recess ends September 23, its members were being notified by mail yesterday that no business will be transacted until October 14.

Under resolution adopted prior to the recess taken in June, Speaker Longworth was allowed to change the date set for resumption of legislative business, depending on circumstances.

With likelihood of an early Senate agreement on the tariff bill remote, Longworth consulted with Representatives Tilson and Garner, the Republican and Democratic leaders respectively. The October 14 date for getting down to work was agreed upon, and Tyler Page, clerk of the House, is notifying members of the House accordingly.

OUTSIDE TURN WINS ACCLAIM IN CLEVELAND

Traffic Problem There Is Akin to District's, Says Ullman.

OFFICIALS PLEASED OVER ROTARY METHOD

Newspaper Poll in Lake City Overwhelmingly Favored It.

DIRECTOR ACCORDED FREE HAND IN WORK

Absence of All Interference Termed Prime Factor of Plan's Success.

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 9.—Cleveland and Washington are twin cities in so far as their method of making a left turn in traffic is concerned. In this metropolitan community on the shore of Lake Erie is Washington's vindication for its rotary, outside turn.

Cleveland, the only other of the large cities which have adopted the rotary method, is well satisfied with it. Its traffic commissioner is firmly convinced that no other system would be so well adapted to local conditions.

The situation in this city and Washington is further paralleled by the reflection of public sentiment in favor of the outside turn as expressed by a newspaper poll. Just as The Post poll showed Washingtonians supporting the method in vogue there, so did a similar ballot, sponsored by the Cleveland Plain Dealer, result virtually in a 2-to-1 vote in favor of retaining the outside turn.

Plan Six Years Old.

Cleveland had the rotary turn before it installed its electric traffic lights six years ago. Then it was pioneering in their installation by placing lights on main thoroughfares, when few cities were seriously considering extensive automatic control. Today it has several hundred signals and is planning more as funds permit.

Uniformity, however, is a notable feature of this city's operation of the outside left turn. It is practiced not alone where the lights control traffic, but at all intersections, with very few exceptions.

From Edwin D. Barry, director of public safety, was learned the satisfaction of Cleveland city officials with the rotary turn. Edward J. Donohue, who, as traffic commissioner of Cleveland, is its traffic czar, was out of the city during the writer's stay here, but from his coworker, Director Barry, came the story of the high regard in which Mr. Donohue is held by officials and the people generally, and the emphatic statement that the traffic commissioner is thoroughly convinced that the rotary turn is not only what motorists and pedestrians desire, but is by far the best method, at least in so far as this city is concerned.

Caley Favors Turn.

Unqualified approval of the outside turn was voiced by Fred H Caley, a veteran automobile club man who has grown up with organized motordom, pioneering in this section of the country as well as nationally in the furtherance of the work of gathering motorists into a body through which they might protect their interests. Because of his long experience and valued knowledge of motoring problems, Mr. Caley stands as an influential figure in his field in Ohio. His approval, therefore, is given as one who for many years has been close to the motorist.

Although the Cleveland Motor Club is a member of the American Automobile Association, which has sought to present the model ordinance left turn method as the one behind which its membership stands solidly, it is squarely behind the rotary turn because the organization endeavors to sense and express the will of its membership. Its guiding spirit, Mr. Caley, has a broad experience that reaches back into the days before a motoring association placed the purveyance of memberships above the service it could and should give to its members.

So far as can be ascertained, national officers of the A. A. A. have not attempted to meddle in the traffic situation here or to impose their will on the Cleveland traffic office or motoring public, as they have in Washington.

Director Barry declared that in favoring the rotary turn over any other method Commissioner Donohue was giving first consideration to the pedestrian. To protect the person who walks across a street, he pointed out, the Commissioner has taken the position that the pedestrian obtains a maximum assurance of his safety from the left turn that President Sends Telegram to House Member Who Suggested Idea.

MET FOR FIRST TIME AT GENEVA, IS CLAIM

Navy Officer Asserts He Spoke Only Once to Publicity Man.

SENATE COMMITTEE TO CONVENE TODAY

Writer Declares Now He Did Not Say Official Files Furnished Data.

(Associated Press.)

Prompt denial that there has been any connection between Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, retired, and William B. Shearer, big Navy advocate, formerly in the employ of American shipbuilding corporations, was made yesterday by President Hoover, who said the admiral "deserves the highest appreciation for his public service."

The President's denial was made in a telegram sent to Representative McClintic, of Oklahoma, a Democrat, of the House naval committee, who, in a message to the White House, had suggested such a connection during the 1927 Geneva Naval Limitation Conference, at which Admiral Jones was a delegate for the United States and Shearer was active against any agreement for further limitation of the American Navy.

Admiral Jones, one of the foremost naval officers of his time, added his own denial when questioned during a visit to the White House to discuss with the President naval limitation negotiations with Great Britain.

Spoke to Shearer Once, He Says.

"I never saw him (Shearer) before the Geneva Conference," he said.

"Did you see him then?" he was asked.

"I spoke to him just once," the admiral replied.

The President's telegram to McClintic, sent before Admiral Jones reached the White House, follows:

"I have your telegram of September 7. You are entirely mistaken as to any connection between Admiral Hilary Jones and the gentleman you mention. They have never even had acquaintance and I have ample reason to know that there could not possibly be such a relationship as you suggest. I do hope that you will accept my assurance that there is a mistake. Admiral Jones deserves the highest appreciation for his public service."

Shearer Denies Statement.

Along with these denials came one from Shearer at New York that he had stated that Rear Admirals Samuel S. Robinson, Charles P. Plunkett, William V. Pratt and Henry A. Wiley had furnished him information from the confidential files of the Navy Department concerning the relative strength of the navies of the world and other data.

Secretary Adams said he was confident that no improper relations had existed at any time between high naval officers and Shearer. He added that his department was cooperating with the inquiry being conducted by the Department of Justice at the direcion of President Hoover and that it would supply "the extensive" information it has on Shearer to the Senate naval committee if that body desired it.

This committee completed plans for its session today, at which it will determine whether there is to be an investigation of Shearer's activities at Geneva as suggested by Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, and a strong advocate of naval disarmament.

It appeared certain that such an inquiry would be ordered for the very near future.

Shearer himself announced that he would come here today ready to appear before the committee, which also is expected to call high officers of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, the American Brown Boveri Electric Corporation and the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co., the concerns Shearer is suing for more than $250,000 for "services" as their representative.

A number of high officers of the Navy also will be invited to appear, particularly if it should be disclosed that the confidential information of the Navy Department, which Shearer claims was sent to him anonymously from Washington, was of high importance.

Navy Limitation Discussed.

Important phases of the naval limitation negotiations between the United States and Great Britain were discussed yesterday by President Hoover with Rear Admiral Jones and Rear Admiral Joel R. P. Pringle, president of the Naval War College, at Newport, R. I.

Admiral Jones, who was a member of the American delegation to the preliminary arms conference at Geneva in 1927, has been in frequent consultation with the Chief Executive since the initiation of the present negotiations with the British government, but this was the first time President Hoover had called in the head of the Naval War College.

The Presence of Admiral Pingle was regarded as significant, since the chief function of the War College is to work out strategy to be employed by the Navy in meeting possible enemies in either the Atlantic or the Pacific. He is regarded as an expert on the question of the minimum requirements of the Navy in cruisers and other auxiliaries in carrying out any given plan of campaign.

All Silent Afterward.

The officers were with the President for nearly half an hour, and upon leaving excused themselves from answering any questions about the conference. The President also continued his policy of silence, but Secretary Stimson said published reports attempting to summarize the present status of the negotiations and asserting that President Hoover would reject the British viewpoint came from unauthorized sources and were inaccurate.

High administration officers said the negotiations between Premier Ramsay MacDonald and Ambassador Dawes were progressing favorably. Experts of the two governments are studying the viewpoints on the cruiser tonnage which have been submitted, with the likelihood that there will have to be some further shifting of ideas in each case.

While the President desires to obtain full naval equality with Great Britain, he hopes to reach an accord whereby there can be an actual reduction in contemplated naval expenditures. The reconciling of the British and American viewpoints on this question may involve certain technical changes in the present plans for the fifteen cruisers authorized by Congress nearly a year ago.

After it is determined in just what way the present "paper program" can be fitted to the needs of the United States, Premier MacDonald and Ambassador Dawes will endeavor to reconcile the viewpoints between the two nations with the idea of obtaining parity between them by aproximately 1936.

resolution, "it appears that the evidence as to fraud and corruption in said primary election has not been refuted and the same stands as it did when the committee filed its partial report."

When the Senate denied Vare the oath of office in 1927 it voted to extend to him the right to appear before the Senate and argue his case.

There is still pending the contest of William B. Wilson, Democratic opponent of Vare in the 1926 election. The Senate elections committee has yet to make a report on that investigation. Should Vare be denied his seat by the Senate, the seat would be vacant. If later the Senate should declare in favor of Wilson in his contest with Vare, the Democrat would be seated.

ROTARY TURN WINS FAVOR IN CLEVELAND is made from the outside of the intersection.

All Approved Method.

Motorists and pedestrians of Cleveland, Director Barry said, are responding by giving fine copoeration with the traffic administration. Few motorists, he stated, "crash" the red light, and pedestrians display unusual caution in crossing streets, walking with the lights instead of straying here and there like lost sheep. And this despite the fact that Cleveland does not have pedestrian control, which makes those who walk liable to arrest just as are those who drive.

The traffic regulatory system of this city has shown its solicitude for the pedestrian in numerous ways. Its electrical signal system, instead of comprising green, amber and red, includes a second red light in place of the amber. This affords the same notice to the motorist or pedestrian of the impending change to green, but it places before vehicular traffic at all times a red "stop" light until the signal to go is flashed.

In the matter of safety zones, the man on foot is given first thought The safety zones are protected by firm stanchions. Although it has been objected that this places an obstacle in the path of the motorist, it is believed here that just that is needed to afford unquestioned protection for the person who is standing in such a haven of refuge.

Police Are Vigilant.

And when the traffic lights are in operation at busy intersections a policeman is on hand to watch not motorists, but pedestrians so that they may be guided to safety. The State Boden law, effective July 21 last, has changed speed limits through the city from 15 and 25 miles an hour to 20 for the congested section and 35 in the residential area. This has met with objection from Commissioner Donohue on the ground that it has been the cause of an increase of injury to pedestrians. The same law, which made the double red signal State-wide, also prohibited cars from passing to the left or inside of a safety zone.

In discussing the automatic signal system, Director Harry illustrated its advantages in the interests of safety. During the year before their installation, he said, the city paid $105,000 as compensation to its policemen injured on duty. The lights have removed many of them from the danger of standing in the midst of heavy traffic. The benefits of the guarded safety zones have been reflected, according to the director, in the reduction of the amount of claims paid by the street car companies to one-half what might reasonably be expected in relation to the increasing volume of traffic.

Free Hand Given.

Commissioner Donohue, it was learned, has been given a free hand in directing Cleveland's traffic administration. And it is believed by those who have had an opportunty to observe his work that this elimination of interference is the secret of his success.

Cleveland has several natural characteristics that present their peculiar problems calling for special solution. First, it is pointed out, traffic, as it converges into the downtown section, finally reaches a bottleneck area, where, if congestion becomes very great, the flow of traffic is absolutely blocked into or out of the city.

Then there are many dead-end streets which prove particularly troublesome in the downtown area. At such points, it is held, only the rotary left-hand turn would be at all feasible.

Visitor Likes Plan.

The visitor to Cleveland can not help being impressed with the even flow of its traffic stream, with its positive operation of its electric signal system, and with its pedestrians walking in groups across busy streets, watching the lights as they prepare to cross.

Cleveland, to be sure, has its traffic problems, and perhaps the only community that wouldn't have them would be the deserted village. And in this day and age, there is some question whether the village blacksmith might not be "doubling in brass" and directing traffic there in his spare time.

But Cleveland is solving its problems, to all appearances, with a good measure of success. In achieving that solution, it is holding tenaciously to the rotary, outside left-hand turn. All of which leads the observer to believe that Washington motorists and pedestrians possess more than ordinary foresight in voting for the retention of that method in the National Capital.

Heflin Seeks New Ford Bid for Muscle Shoals

(Associated Press.)

Senator Heflin (Democrat), Alabama, yesterday wrote Henry Ford asking him to make another bid for the Muscle Shoals power project.

"The standstill condition of four-fifths of the units of the dam at Muscle Shoals, the daily waste of power there, the loss of money on the Government's investment and the desire of Congress to dispose of the project at the next regular session," Heflin wrote, "presents a situation now that I believe would be favorable to a bid from you." He added he believed Ford could "greatly bless and benefit the farmers of the South and the whole country by manufacturing cheap fertilizer."

TEACHER, 45, KILLS SELF WITH PISTOL

Elizabeth Weedon, Former Principal, Ends Life in Friend's Home.

WORRIED OVER HEALTH

Despondent because of ill health, Miss Elizabeth Weedon, 45 years old, a teacher in the Macfarland Junior High School and former principal of the Francis Scott Key School, shot and killed herself yesterday at the home of a friend at Frederick, Md.

Miss Weedon, who was regarded as one of the best teachers in the District public school system, was appointed principal of the Francis Scott Key School about a year ago, but after serving for about a month her health failed and she asked to be transferred to her former position as teacher in the Macfarland Junior High School.

Subsequently she suffered a nervous breakdown as the result of her continued ill health, and was forced to give up her work. She was granted an indefinite leave of absence last March.

In an attempt to build up her health she went on a trip to Canada this summer with a friend, Miss Louise Johnson, of Frederick. They returned to Miss Johnson's home last Saturday. Despairing of ever regaining her health, Miss Weedon obtained a pistol yesterday morning and shot herself.

After viewing the body Magistrate Guy Motter, of Frederick, pronounced a verdict of suicide.

Besides a brother, Thomas A. Weedon, of 1829 Monroe street, with whom she lived, Miss Weedon is survived by two sisters, Miss Frances and Miss Mary Louise Weedon, both of Washington.

The funeral service and interment will be at Frederick.

Motorcycle Patrolman Hurt as Machine Skids

Motorcycle Patrolman Thomas F. Heide, attached to the Twelfth Precinct, was severely injured yesterday morning when his machine skidded on the west street at Bunker Hill road, near Twenty-second street northeast, and fell on him.

Heide received bruises about the legs and shoulders. He was treated at the Police Clinic.

MERGER ECONOMIES TOLD BY WITNESSES

street car companies would be better off financially if they merged than if they did not but were given the increased car fare of 10 cents cash with four tokens for 30 cents, for which they have asked.

Bachman's appearance as a commission witness came after Gen. Patrick had put into the record of the hearing the reply of the Capital Traction Co. to the commission's proposal to consider the new unification agreement drafted by the commission.

Objects to Record.

G. Thomas Dunlop, counsel for the Capital Traction Co., objected to the letter being put into the record and noted an exception when Gen. Patrick immediately overruled the objection. Gen. Patrick forestalled E. R. Bowen, counsel for the Washington Railway & Electric Co., saying that the record should show that the same objections which had been made by both companies in the past to consideration of unified operations in the present case would be considered as applying.

Gen. Patrick quoted from the testimony of John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction, before the Senate committee considering the merger at hearings in May, 1928. Hanna told the Senate committee that the merger would mean a saving of $1,000,000 a year to the merged companies resulting from economized service, explaining that he did not mean "cutting down" service.

"No," he said, when asked if his views had changed since his testimony before the Senate committee, "but I didn't remember saying the savings would amount to $1,000,000 a year or mentioning any specific sum."

Quotes Hanna Article.

Gen. Patrick then took up a copy of the September issue of the Aera, a street car trade publication, in which was published a "message" from Hanna to the industry. In the course of that "message" Hanna declared that there was "no question of the increasing importance of operation under one control" and said that the problems of the street railway industry could "only be met by unified control."

Hanna had a copy of the magazine in his pocket and smiled as he pulled it forth and admitted that he had been quoted correctly and had expressed views he now held.

Rich Matron, 60, Accused of $480,000 Gem Swindle

Mrs. Maria Leslie Surrenders and Confides She Sat Next to Whalen While His Detectives Sought Her.

New York, Sept. 9 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Mrs. Maria J. Leslie, a modishly dressed matron some 60 years old or more, surrendered herself to General Sessions Judge Allen today and announced her willingness to stand trial on indictments charging she swindled Wanamaker's out of jewelry valued at $480,000 in June, 1928.

The little woman, white-haired and with a ready smile, seemed not to comprehend the gravity of her predicament, and confessed disarmingly that she was "all at sea about the whole matter." Member of a wealthy and socially prominent family—her father was the late Edward P. Eastwick, Philadelphia sugar refiner, and the Eastwicks entertained King Edward VII when, as Prince of Wales, he visited America—she did show worry when she found herself about to be taken to Harlem Jail. But her spirits soon rose again.

"I must tell you something funny," she said, with a broad smile. "I sat next to Commissioner Whalen at a luncheon recently, and now I understand that at that very time his detectives were looking for me."

So saying, she sighed a little, and allowed herself to be led away. "My people are all millionaires," she asserted, "and if they will not come forward with my bail, why, of course, I will have to make the best of it.

"Their conscience must be their guide. I, in any case, feel better now that I have surrendered. Only why do the police want me? Everything has been paid up and I thought the case was settled."

Mrs. Leslie jumped suddenly into front-page prominence a year ago last spring when Mrs. Isaac E. Emerson, wife of the Baltimore patent medicine manufacturer, refused to pay Wanamaker's for extensive jewelry purchases Mrs. Leslie had made at the New York store, ostensibly acting on authority of Mrs. Emerson. For two years Mrs. Leslie had been employed as housekeeper at Brooklandwood, the country place of Capt. and Mrs. Emerson, and on seevral occasions had bought articles at Wanamaker's which she sent to Mrs. Emerson for approval and which were always paid for promptly.

Mrs. Leslie is alleged to have taken the gems, valued at $480,000 retail, to Harry Winson, gem dealer, of Fifth avenue, and to have agreed to sell them to him for $91,000, again claiming she acted on authorization of Mrs. Emerson. She is alleged to have told Winston Mrs. Emerson needed money badly "to pay Freddy's gambling debts at Monte Carlo"—Mrs. Emerson has a son, Frederick McCormick, by a previous marriage.

Mrs. Emerson subsequently denied having authorized Mrs. Leslie to buy the jewelry for her or having sought to raise money to meet her son's obligations, and expressed disclosure of Mrs. Leslie's alleged transactions as "an appalling shock—she was a cultured woman and the sort of person no one would suspect of anything untoward."

Legal complications followed purchase of the jewels, with Wanamaker's named defendant in two suits. One of these was for $37,000, the wholesale value of certain jewels in the collection bought by Mrs. Leslie, brought by Maybaum Brothers, jewelers of this city. The other was brought by Winston, who was forced to return the jewels to the Wanamaker firm on a replevin action. Winston asserted he had purchased the jewels "in good faith" from Mrs. Leslie, paying her $53,000 in cash.

When her transactions came to light relatives of Mrs. Leslie hustled her away to the private sanitarium of Dr. E. J. Bowman, in Greenwich, Conn. She had previously undergone treatment for nervous ailments. She was indicted last January by the grand jury, on complaint of Wanamaker's. Mrs. Emmerson refused to prosecute.

Mrs. Leslie has been in similar difficulties twice before. In 1901 an English jury convicted her of raising a Canadian Pacific stock certificate from 100 to 1,000 shares, but decided the raising was done so clumsily that no one could be deceived by it. Her brother, Edward P. Eastwick, jr., of Greenwich, went to her aid at that time, claiming she was of unsound mind and presenting affidavits by alienists.

In 1906 she was married to Leslie, an Englishman, in Geneva. They separated after a few months, and in 1907 Mrs. Leslie was arrested again in London, charged with swindling by Miss Annie Bount, of a prominent Dublin family.

She will be arraigned for pleading tomorrow morning before Judge Levine in general sessions. Her attorney, Alexander I. Rorke, accompanied her to Judge Allen's chambers today.

AIR LINER'S CRASH MYSTERY, REPORT

T. A. T. Heads' Statement Suggests Possibility of Local Storm.

VICTIMS ARE IDENTIFIED

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Transcontinental Air Transport officials, including Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, chairman of the technical committee, issued a report tonight concerning probable causes of the wreck of the air liner, City of San Francisco, with the loss of eight lives on Mount Taylor, New Mexico. The report was based on Col. Lindbergh's observations at the scene and the telegraphic report of Paul Collins, general superintendent of the line, who directed the search and visited the wreck.

"Too many things are involved," the report said, "to give an irrefutable cause of the accident. From a survey of the facts obtainable, it is our opinion that Pilot Stowe crashed into the ground at full speed and under full control. He may have been blinded momentarily by a severe storm.

Storm Area Not Indicated.

"A dangerous storm area was not indicated on any of the weather reports and must have been very local in character. Just before taking off from Albuquerque, Pilot Stowe was handed a weather report showing visibility, temperature, cloud conditions, barometric pressure and ceiling, and other important weather data from twelve reporting stations in that area, three Weather Bureau stations and nine T. A. T. stations. At none of these places were hazardous flying conditions reported. On the same day our eastbound ship and aircraft of other companies flew the same route without encountering unusual conditions.

"Pilot Stowe did not take off in the face of poor flying conditions nor against his better judgment, as no one in the entire T. A. T. organization has the authority to order a pilot to make such a flight.

"It is quite possible that full facts concerning the cause of the tragedy will never be known, but the company realizes its obligation to make public such facts and will do so if they are ever available.

Cooperation Is Appreciated.

"Because of the scores of planes, military, commercial and private, which aided T. A. T. in its search, it will be some time before the searching fleet can be disbanded and the T. A. T. fleet personnel returned to their proper stations. The mechanics of T. A. T. from Columbus to Los Angeles, having been assembled at Winslow, were engaged day and night in the task of keeping the searching fleet in proper condition. Regular schedules over T. A. T. will be resumed as soon as equipment and personnel are properly ready.

"Officials of T. A. T. are appreciative of the splendid cooperation given by Army and Navy planes, planes of other commercial operators and private owners.

"This shocking tragedy has not lessened our confidence in the present value of commercial aviation any more than a railroad or a steamship catastrophe can destroy the value of these means of transportation.

"We deeply regret that air transport, which has made such rapid strides in the past few years, should be afflicted with its tragedies just as are the railroads, the sea and the highway.

"T. A. T. has spared neither expense nor labor in its efforts to make flying safe. This experience, sad as it is, will only spur us to work the harder."

The conference drawing up the report included, besides Col Lindbergh, Col. Paul Henderson, executive vice president, and J. V. Magee, managing vice president.

Gallup, N. Mex., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The bodies of six of the victims of the fatal crash of the Transcontinental Air Transport plane, City of San Francisco, were being prepared here today for burial. Two of the bodies, believed to be those of A. B. McGaffey, Albuquerque, N. Mex., businessman, and Mrs. George Raymond, of Glendale, Calif., were taken to Albuquerque.

Identification of the bodies was being made as fast as possible. Through buttons found on shreds of clothing the bodies of Pilot J. B. Stowe, E. A. Dietel, copilot, and Maynard Canfield, courier, were picked out.

Rings Aid Identification.

The Gallup undertaker said that through rings, molten pieces of metal found near the bodies, dental work and general physical stature, identification would be made of the other victims, Harris Livermore, of Boston; M. M. Campbell, of Cincinnati, and William Henry Beers, of New York.

A complete examination of the bodies here today disclosed that all the victims probably were killed before the fire. All had many broken bones, some legs being almost twisted from bodies. In the back of the head of one, who had been identified as one of the pilots, there was a huge gash that easily could have caused death.

Believe All Died in Impact.

Those examining the bodies said there was very little doubt that all were killed by the impact of the big air liner.

High up on the side of Mount Taylor, where the liner crashed last Tuesday in a storm, the shattered remains of the $65,000 ship were still lying scattered in the timber. Difficulty in removal of the bodies encountered yesterday raised doubt whether the wreckage ever would be taken out.

Officials of the Transcontinental Air Transport indicated today that several days would elapse before regular service is resumed on the route in this section.

Ice-Freshened Foods

It is the circulating moist cold air in the refrigerator which keeps food fresh—air which passes continuously over the ice. Moisture is of vital importance to food. If the air in your refrigerator lacks moisture your fruits and vegetables will dry up, giving off the water that keeps them fresh. Your meat will lose its flavor and your salads will become limp.

With the ice compartment of your refrigerator two-thirds filled with pure sparkling American Ice, you can be certain that food will be kept deliciously fresh and flavorful. And you will have enough actual ICE for entertaining.

Hyattsville Acts To Stop Speeding

High School Boys Said to Make Arundel Avenue Unsafe for Children.

Agitation to prevent Hyattsville High School boys from making a speedway out of Arundel avenue and thus endangering the lives of smaller children was started last night at a meeting of the Hyattsville, Md., town council. The discussion began with the presentation of a petition by Arundel avenue residents to put a stop sign at Garfield avenue intersection.

Five children have been hurt on this avenue within the last year, it was brought out, and one of these was crippled for life. Although Police Chief C. M. Blanchard made four arests of high school boys, the cases were dismissed because the police chief did not have a car to trail the speeders.

The council asked the cooperation of State and county authorities in an effort to stop this reckless driving and also advised the police committee to consider the suggestion of Chief Blanchard to establish school boy patrols similar to those in the Capital.

Waldo Burnside, corporation counsel, was directed to file suit against the Home Insurance Co. of New York for $1,105.38 fire damage and transportation costs. The truck was damaged several months ago, and the town council and the insurance adjuster have been unable to reach an agreement.

Collections for Chest More Than $1,000,000

Community Chest collections up to September 1 amounted to $1,156,537.48, or approximately 77.7 per cent of the total subscribed to the 1929 campaign, according to figures made public by the auditing department of the Chest yesterday. Pledges to date for the year total $1,487,866.26.

When the campaign closed in February, the auditors explain, subscriptions totaled $1,501,560.77. New pledges recently received brought this total up to $1,505,290.72 for the year. Duplication of pledge cards, reductions and cancellations, amounting to $17,424.46 reduced the subscription total for 1929 to $1,487,866.26. The 77.7 per cent paid in included $31,812.06 paid in August.

BRIAND LAUNCHES EUROPEAN UNION

ders of French culinary art and the finest wines of Europe.

Meeting after this luncheon under the chairmanship of Premier Briand, they decided they would attempt to bring into force the idea of a European confederation hitherto described as "the United States of Europe."

The decision came after the great French statesman had expounded to his guests his project for creating some kind of confederation.

Premier Briand was appointed to draft a memorandum on his favorite project, and the memorandum will be sent to all European governments for study. When their replies have been received and digested, Premier Briand will make a new report incorporating them.

A new conference of European nations then will be called at Geneva next year, probably at the same time as one of the league assembly meetings.

Immediately after the luncheon Premier Briand told the Associated Paris correspondent that nobody had spoken against his project, though several statesmen had stated their preference that any such organization be chiefly economic in its functions.

The foreign minister of one European country, who preferred that his name should not be used, told the correspondent tonight that "we reached an agreement not to divulge the remarks of individual speakers."

"But if you want my opinion," he said, "it is this: Our great project has been launched, but it is directed neither against the United States of America nor against Soviet Russia."

Premier Benes, the distinguished statesman of Czechoslovakia, allowed himself to be quoted by the correspondent.

"Our government will be in favor of this project because we wish to push forward further economic cooperation between European states. Another reason is that we wish to make disappear the bad consequences of the great war, and a third reason is that a confederation will constitute a guarantee for small nations."

M. Benes was convinced that the proposed confederation will be eventually both political and economic in character, but believed its basis would be economic.

INSANE JUROR HALTS TRIAL OF STRIKERS

Murder Charges Against 16 Defendants Now Must Go Over.

REHEARING THIS MONTH

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The second effort to try sixteen textile mill strikers and strike leaders on charges of murdering O. F. Aderholt, chief of police of Gastonia, today came to an abrupt end when J. G. Campbell, a juror, became insane.

The third effort will open on September 30 in the same courtroom and with the same judge.

The events of today, which brought the trial to an abrupt ending as it was due to start on the third week, came with startling suddenness. There had been reports that some of the jurors were not standing the confinement well, but there was no indication that anything seriously was wrong with any of the twelve men.

Third Juror Picked.

Campbell, a news vender and the third juror picked after the trial got under way, collapsed while on the way to the courthouse this morning. It developed that he had first shown signs of mental aberration on Saturday afternoon after court recessed for the week-end. He had other attacks yesterday and early this morning.

When he suffered the attack early today, Judge M. V. Barnhill, who was presiding at the special term of court, was called, as was Dr. John Q. Meyers. Campbell was quieted and it was decided that an effort would be made to take him into court this morning, at which time the situation would be gone into.

Dr. Meyers, testifying in court, declared that Campbell was suffering from an emotional form of insanity liable to recur at any time and that he was not fit to go on with the case. Judge Barnhill, after the defense had sought to refill the jury and go ahead, decided that the only course left open was to adjourn court, release the jury and ask Gov. O. Max Gardner to call another term of court. This was done.

Jurors Describe Actions.

Members of the jury, after being dismissed, said that Campbell early today had aroused them by his actions. He asked one man to read a chapter of the Bible to him. This was done, and Campbell went into a frenzy of "shouting."

Judge Barnhill, when the State refused to reduce the charges to manslaughter, refused to admit Fred Erwin Beal, Lawrence, Mass., labor leaders, and the twelve other men charged with first degree murder to bail. The three women defendants, Amy Schechter, Sophie Melvin and Vera Buch, all of New York, were continued, under $5,000 bond. The women are charged with second degree murder. The men were returned to the Mecklenburg County Jail.

Besides Beal, the men held are Joseph Harrison, Passaic, N. J., National Textile Union organizer; Clarence Miller, New York Communist; George Carter, Mispah, N. J.; Louis McLaughlin, Russell Knight, N. F. Gibson, Robert Allen, W. M. McGinnis, K. O. Byers, K. Y. Hendricks and Delmar Hampton.

Charges Facing Them.

The sixteen are charged with having entered into a conspiracy which caused the death of Aderholt in a shooting that occurred when Aderholt and four other policemen went to the ground of a tent colony maintained at Gastonia for strikers by the union and the workers international relief. The case was first called in Gastonia July 26 but on motion of the defense Judge Barnhill ordered the case taken to Charlotte. A special term of the Mecklenburg Superior Court was called and on August 26 the second effort started. Nine days were taken in picking a jury from 668 veniremen summoned in one regular and three special panels.

The State had been presenting evidence three days and most of the principal prosecution witnesses had testified.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

A GRASSHOPPER will kick our brains out if what the Republican national committee needs isn't bigger and better orators. It needs more men who without a moment's notice can get on their feet and juggle eulogistic, high-sounding words.

It needs men who can sense a situation that needs words and without any preparation be able to arise before their comrades and with a straight face say: "Gentlemen, it is not for us to let this auspicious occasion go by without saying a word of its auspiciousness."

The national committeemen are not impulsive men and theirs is not impulsive work, but yesterday's meeting at the Willard Hotel proved conclusively that among them there should be men who can make impulsive speeches.

* * * *

IT might be that Pat Sullivan, of Wyoming, with a little training would make a good man in this respect. Sullivan proved yesterday that he has poetic thoughts and is capable of phrasing them in poetic language when once moved, but he does not move quite fast enough.

His words, spoken in his rich Irish brogue, and concerning Dr. Work: "His name will be written in letters of imperishable gold," are not to be scoffed at. And they were not, instead, they came very near to breaking up the show and were on the tips of the tongues of men as they gathered in groups the rest of the day. Those were words that made the less gifted of Pat's fellows sit up and take notice and those of them who have a little poetry way down in their very practical selves were downright envious. They formed a beautiful arc, spoken as they were, suggesting those welcoming gateways with which many of the towns out Pat's way greet the Eastern tourists.

* * * *

BUT they were not impulsively spoken. In fact, it looked for a while as though Pat was not going to utter them at all.

The suspense developed just after Vice Chairman Ralph Williams, of Oregon, had told the committee that he had Dr. Work's resignation before him. Saying this he looked expectantly out through the haze of cigar smoke, for someone to say something about it. Yet no one spoke. The attitude of the committeemen was "Well, what of it."

It was not that the committeemen were impolite or wanted to be discourteous to Dr. Work. It was simply that the fact that Dr. Work's resignation was there on the desk was no news to them. And the committeemen being men of action instead of flowery words, were prepared to elect his successor.

* * * *

THIS blunt treatment of the business at hand while efficient does not, however, look so well in print. So James Frances Burke, who makes a lot of speeches, stepped into the breach. He whispered to Williams and rose quickly to his feet. He paid a tribute to Work's service as chairman and once the ball started rolling there were other eulogists, the high note being struck, as said before, by Sullivan.

The point is that had it not been for Burke the committeemen probably would have been sitting there yet with Williams looking expectantly at them. There must be more men on the committee capable of these quick pleasantries and Sullivan, by his performance yesterday, would be a good one to train.

This is, of course, no reflection on Dr. Work. His record under three Presidents is something of which he may well be proud, his would-be detractors notwithstanding. And quite frankly, we will miss him. He was the stabilizer in the motliest crowd that ever got behind a Presidential candidate.

FLORENCE TRUMBULL AVERS WIVES ALSO SHOULD WORK

sensible thing for a young wife, but it can be very good fun.

There you have the philosophy of marriage on which Florence Trumbull and John Coolidge are going to set up housekeeping after their marriage, two weeks from today. The romance of these two young persons—the charming golden-haired daughter of the Governor of Connecticut and the sturdy son of the former President—has interested the country almost as much as the Lindbergh-Morrow match. Interest was intensified when Miss Trumbull casually admitted the other day that after her marriage she intends, in the good American phrase, to "do her own work."

So I went to her father's stately summer home in the rolling, elm-shaded Connecticut countryside to hear more of her ideas about married life. I have crystallized them above from Miss Trumbull's own modest, but firm admissions. She is too pretty and girlish to desire to pose as an oracle for brides, but her own conception of young wifehood obviously has been thought through to conclusions as clear and unflinching as her blue glance.

It is characteristic of her essential simplicity that, even in her father's house, where there must be many servants, she herself came to the door when I rang the bell.

As she stood framed in the entrance of the bricked colonial porch, with its tall white pillars, I thought that she is even more attractive than her photographs. They do not show her coloring—golden brown curly hair, cornflower eyes and carnation pink cheeks, the pink uncapturable by make-up—or her tall, slender grace. Like his father, John Coolidge knows how to pick an attractive wife!

"Are you really going to cook and keep house when you are married, and why are you going to do it?" I plunged in with my first question.

"Yes, I'm planning to do all the work," the pretty young woman in the sleeveless white satin blouse and short skirt, matching her blue eyes, quietly admitted. "But there's nothing remarkable about that. Why should I hire a servant to take care of four rooms? It would be ridiculous. I can do it perfectly well."

Incidentally, the four rooms in New Haven, even if an apple tree brushes the dining room window and the bedroom looks on a court set with evergreens, will be a considerable change for Florence Trumbull from her father's several storied, unusually spacious mansion of cream-colored brick with white trimmings, set in wide, shrubbery-planted lawns, at No. 29 Farmington avenue, in this cool, green country town. But Florence Trumbull, one knows, is not worrying about the change.

"Do you like housekeeping?" I asked.

Lacks Experience, She Admits.

"What I have done of it," she agreed cheerfully. "Of course, I've never done very much, but I've learned things from my mother and I know that I can do whatever has to be done. Other girls can, and there's no reason why I shouldn't, I'm not in the least afraid of anything—washing dishes, sweeping, dusting, cleaning, cooking."

"What do you cook best?" I asked. Then the secret came out. Florence Trumbull is going to cook the meals for herself and John Coolidge after they are married. She is even going to get up at 7 and get his breakfast, but, so far in her life, she has cooked hardly anything at all. I could not, to be frank, pin her down to one dish which she admitted she had prepared, although, being Mount Holyoke girl, it is safe to assume that she has made fudge and (maybe) shrimp wiggle and rarebit.

"Do you mean you've really never learned to cook?" I protested. "Aren't you going to take a single lesson, even in the two weeks left before your wedding?"

She shook the golden-brown head.

Cannot Cook Bread or Cake.

"I'm so busy now I don't know what I'm doing," she answered. "And I can't say that I've learned to make bread or pies or cake—I really can't think of the things I know how to cook, because I've cooked so little. And if I knew what I was going to give John for breakfast I wouldn't tell—I have a right to some privacy.

"Nevertheless," with a confident little lift of the head, "I'm certainly not afraid of cooking. I can take a cookbook and go to work like anybody else. I can learn."

"But you know what people say about the bride's biscuit," I was mean enough to say. "Are you sure that yours will be different?"

"Experience is the best teacher—I'm not afraid," repeated Florence Trumbull.

Relative to Sarcasm.

Let's hope John Coolidge is not afraid, either, and that he has not inherited his father's mean sarcasm, as repeated by Grace Coolidge. She says that Calvin advised giving one of her home-made apple pies to the road mender.

Seriously, though, Miss Trumbull feels that both cooking and housekeeping have been so simplified by modern methods and conveniences that any young woman with common sense and ordinary health should succeed in being a homemaker without elaborate previous training.

"Of course, I'm strong enough to do my own work," she answered another question scornfully. "I've always liked sports, and in New Haven there won't be the chance for them that there is out here. I'll have time and strength to take care of my home—modern housekeeping is so much easier than it used to be.

"Besides, my husband will be working, and it seems only fair that I should have some work instead of all play. I know that many young wives are working outside their homes. That's a problem I've not had to face, and so I wouldn't want to express myself about it. The important thing, as I see it, is for wives to have work of some sort, in their homes or outside, so that they really will be working partners in marriage."

Will Live Within Income.

"And you believe, do you not," I suggested, "that young couples should live simply and economically, if necessary, rather than be helped by their families?"

"Yes," said Florence Trumbull, with emphasis, "we shall live on my husband's salary. Of course, I have my own car and we'll use that—I don't know why they put it in the paper about his taking the trolley to work—but we shall get along on what we have. It's better"—won't Calvin Coolidge appreciate this daughter-in-law!—"to save up for what you want than to go into debt. I shall do my own marketing in order to make our money go as far as possible, and I shall keep house on a budget, although that also is something we'll have to work out by experience."

John Coolidge is paying $78 a month for his four rooms, and his father's Northampton rental has been much advertised as $40 per month, but Miss Trumbull is serenely sure that the $78 won't unbalance her budget. Rents, she allows, are higher in New Haven than in Northampton. Anyhow, she and John chose the apartment together, before she went to Maine for a vacation, and "it was the best we could possibly do," I was assured in the homely, familiar phrase.

Have No Furniture Yet.

There is not a stick of furniture in it yet—and the wedding a fortnight off!

"But it won't take long to buy the necessary things for four rooms," the bride-to-be insisted, optimistically. "We shall get the most necessary things first, and pick up others as we go along. I shall have colonial furniture." The color schemes she refuses to reveal.

"I don't think the public needs to know the color of our rugs and curtains," she protested, with a touch of Lindbergh-like rebellion against the public's too curious friendliness.

I think myself it can be carried too far, and I was not carrying it much farther today, but, as woman to woman, there was one other question I had to ask.

"Besides doing your own work because it's sensible and economical and square-shooting," I said to uneffusively but obviously content Florence Trumbull, "don't you honestly think that it'll be good fun cooking and doing things in your own home for just the two of you?"

We looked at each other. We smiled. Then John Coolidge's bride-to-be gave a quick, proud little nod, and one soft but emphatic word—"Yes!"

ANTIUNION PARADE AROUSES MILL TOWN

Opponents of Commission Destroy Literature and Threaten Leaders.

RAID ON HEADQUARTERS

Gastonia, N. C., Sept. 9 (N.Y.W.N. S.).—Gastonia was aflame with anti-Communist feeling tonight as several hundred opponents of the National Textile Workers Union staged a big parade through town to the Communist headquarters, entered it and threw out great stacks of literature to the accompaniment of cries of "Burn it" and "Long live 100 per cent Americans."

The demonstration followed an hour of fruitless waiting in South Gastonia, near the Pinckney mill, where Communists, led by Vera Buch, Amy Schechter and Sophie Melvin, defendants in the Aderholt murder case, and Hugo Oehler, Southern sympathizer for the Communist union since the arrest of Fred Erwin Beal for Aderholt's slaying, had promised to stage a giant rally on land rented from "Crip" Brindle, Communist sympathizer, who was ordered tonight by the antired mob to leave town.

Following the raid on headquarters, the crowd was reported to have gone to the lodgings of Oehler, taken him out and started in automobiles for the South Carolina or Mecklenburg County line with the avowed intention of "fixing him right and getting him out of Gastonia."

The exact intentions of the crowd with regard to Oehler could not be learned, nor had any trace of him or his supposed abductors been found by newspapermen at a late hour.

Tom Mix Is Injured In Circus Ring Stunt

Mix continued riding with his arm in a sling.

Three Burn to Death In British Tanker Fire

Rotterdam, Holland, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Three men here burned to death, and eight or ten were missing this afternoon in a fire which broke out today during cleaning of the British tanker Vimeira in dock. Oil on the water around the vessel caught fire, imprisoning the ship in a cage of flames. The flames, shooting up from the water, rapidly spread to the ship, on which a number of the crew were busy. Three charred corpses were recovered.

The British tanker Vimeira sailed from New Orleans on July 10 for Halifax, where it arrived July 28 and from which it sailed on August 18 for London.

Princess Falls Ill As Revolt Threatens

Monaco, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The sudden illness of the beautiful young Princess Charlotte, daughter and heiress apparent of Prince Louis of Monaco, has caused suspension of negotiations which she was conducting in behalf of her father with the dissatisfied citizens of the principality.

Should her illness terminate fatally—and she was reported tonight very seriously ill—many here fear that a revolt which has been smoldering against the prince for more than a year will blaze up immediately.

Montgomery Count Federation Meets

Continued Beautification o Roads Into City Is Urged.

Continuation of the beautification of highways leading into Washington was urged by the Montgomery County Civic Federation in one of two resolutions adopted last night at a meeting in the Bethesda (Md.) High School. The Maryland and National Capital Zoning and Planning Commission was praised for its work so far.

Considerable discussion was engaged in on the proposed division of the Halpine area, which includes the Congressional Airport, between residential and commercial sections. A second resolution was adopted urging the completion of the sewer draining the west side of Wisconsin avenue.

The special committee on the federation dinner scheduled at the Manor Club on October 25 reported that it had been decided to invite 200 instead of 40 guests. The Washington Board of Trade will be honor guests.

Man Who Prevented Wife's Reading Jailed

Chicago, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Undoubtedly, Oak Park police reasoned, Morris Burns had the right to disconnect his house lights if he felt like it.

But they had come all the way over from the station because Mrs. Burns complained of her mate's method of making her stop reading and of his refusal to admit electricians, whom she had called to repair the lights.

So they had to do something.

They took Morris to jail. Lights are kept out at night in the cells and it seems a happy solution.

Then they spent the night trying to decide what offense Morris had committed. By this morning they had concluded it was disorderly conduct. The case was continued until September 17.

TWO HELD IN FATAL CRASH TO BE FREED

CAR HIT PHONE POLE

Although one man was killed and another was injured in an automobile accident near Beltsville, Md., early yesterday and though two other occupants of the automobile were later arrested by Fifth Precinct police on charges of intoxication and for investigation in regard to the death of their companion, Prince Georges County police have announced that they do not wish the men held. No inquest will be held, they said last night.

Clarence Evans, 31 years old, of 613 Gresham place northwest, died at 6:30 o'clock in Providence Hospital three hours after the accident. The companions of Evans are brothers, and all were charged with intoxication. They will probably be released now that they are not wanted by Maryland authorities, it was said last night.

The brothers are James R. Porter, who is in Casualty Hospital with a broken leg, and Alan B. Porter and Homer P. Porter, who were lodged in the Fifth Precinct Station house. The Porters gave their address as 220 First street southeast.

According to information gathered by local police, the quartet was returning from a party in nearby Maryland. While driving along the Washington-Baltimore boulevard near Beltsville, shortly after 3 o'clock, the car crashed into a telephone pole. The Porter brothers told police Evans was driving the car. Evans was pinned beneath the wreckage.

The injured were brought to the Capital by Harrison Alexander, of 1307 O street northwest. Evans was employed in the Navy Yard.

Man Slays Wife Then Kills Self

Otis Hupman, 31, Ends Marital Troubles by Pistol Shots.

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Sept. 9.—Otis Hupman, 31, early tonight shot and killed his estranged wife, Mrs. Myrtle McCray Hupman, 22, at the McCray home at Fort Defiance, eight miles north of Staunton, and then committed suicide. Hupman fired five times at his wife, two bullets striking her, one in the hip, the other in the left breast. The last was fired at such close range that the girl's clothing was burned.

Hupman then walked one hundred yards to the home of a neighbor where he was employed, reloaded his .32 caliber pistol and shot himself twice, the second bullet, which crashed into his temple, causing death.

The Hupmans were married last summer and lived in Highland County until February when the wife, who maintained, according to her mother, that Hupman would not properly provide for her, returned to Augusta County and had been living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. McCray. Hupman returned to the county two weeks ago. The shooting is believed to have resulted when Mrs. Hupman refused to again live with her husband.

Two Men Are Accused of Criminal Assault

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Sept. 9.—Two men giving their names as Leslie Lee, 31, and P. S. Mercer, 42, and who say they are from Roanoke, Va., are held in jail here on a charge of criminally attacking a 20-year-old girl. The girl, who was brought to Staunton yesterday by her mother and left here, became homesick and started to walk home. Near Waynesboro, she asserts, she was approached by Lee and Mercer, who forced her into an automobile and carried her into the woods.

Two passersby saw the scuffling and reported it to officers when they reached Waynesboro. Police went to the scene, entered the woods and report that upon their approach Lee ran farther into the woods, but Mercer was captured before he could make a getaway. Bloodhounds were put on the trail later and went to a house some distance away, where, officers say, they found Lee hiding in a clothes closet.

On account of the death of Mr. Samuel Heller, this store will be closed Monday and Tuesday, September 9th and 10th.

Roosevelt Plans To Call on Hoover

Big Game Hunter, Back From China, to Discuss His Porto Rico Post.

New York, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Col. Theodore Roosevelt, returned today from his year's expedition to China and Indo-China for the Field Museum in Chicago, said that he would leave tonight for Washington to confer with President Hoover on his nomination as Governor of Porto Rico. The nomination was sent to the Senate for confirmation today.

The colonel declined to discuss the appointment, stating:

"I have nothing to say on Porto Rico other than that I realize deeply the importance of the work there and I am very grateful to President Hoover for the confidence his nomination of me for that position has shown."

All the members of his family have been studying Spanish, he said, and he can read Spanish with reasonable ease, but speaks it with difficulty "because there is no one with whom to speak it."

"But I shall keep on studying it and hope within a reasonable time to be able to speak it," he added.

Col. Roosevelt arrived in the city this morning after a dash across the country from San Francisco.

Apartment hunting is far from a pleasant task. Why not look in the classified columns of The Washington Post. Perhaps the very place you are looking for is advertised today.

Atmosphere . . .

People say of the Aquitania, the Berengaria, the Mauretania—"They have atmosphere."

"Atmosphere." A charm that is responsive—rather than assertive . . . Gaiety that waits for you, but does not follow you . . . Tranquility not intrusive—but not elusive, either . . .

Poise. A nice sense of the fitness of things. A civilized awareness of the fact that the source of amusing living is contrast . . . and that any mood palls. The mirroring, in Mid-Atlantic, of that most aristocratic life, the life of leisure in England . . . very 'country' by day, very brilliant indeed by night . . . English service, which means perfect service . . .

An atmosphere sophisticated—and simple; formal—and friendly; animated and serene . . . An atmosphere of civilized contrasts . . . Cunard atmosphere . . . The chief charm of all the big Cunarders . . .

CONSTITUTION WEEK TO BE CELEBRATED

Comprehensive Plans Are Formed to Observe 142d Anniversary.

CHURCHES COOPERATE

Comprehensive celebration of Constitution Week in Washington, beginning with sermons in the churches Sunday, was announced here yesterday by F. Regis Noel, chairman of the subcommittee in charge for the American Bar Association.

The 142d anniversary of the signing of the document falls on Tuesday, September 17, but the program of observance, as announced, extends throughout the week.

The speaking program will begin in the churches with mention in some instances and special sermons on the Constitution in other instances by the 750 clergymen of Washington and vicinity.

"The clergy of all sects," Noel said, "are asked to cooperate in attaining the purpose of the committee to arouse in American citizens a desire for knowledge regarding our form of government and its practical working, resulting in enlightened, active participation in its function, at least to the extent of intelligent exercise of the voting franchise."

Sponsors of the Constitution Week program include:

senator appreciating this, he said, he was willing to hasten a vote upon it.

He contended the information sought was irrelevant and already was available in current and periodical corporation reports printed regularly in financial publications. Simmons said there may be publications covering some larger industries, but there were none containing the "general" data sought by his resolution, which calls for profits and losses of corporations whose products would benefit under the bill.

Blaine Offers Amendment.

Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, offered an amendment to include in the information sought data showing gross sales, annual inventories, merchandise bought, cost of manufacturing, salaries and wages, compensation of officers and other figures. A vote on this will be taken before disposal of the Simmons resolution.

Speaking for the amendment, Blaine said he was willing to vote for protection for sick industries and the working man, but wanted to know if the industries could prove the need for the increases they are asking. He denied there was any improper motive behind the attempt to obtain such information and said one reason for it was to show what corporations paid excessive salaries, and then asked for tariff increases to help them out of ruts.

Reed said if an attempt were made to obtain all the information sought by the resolution and the amendment thereto the title of the next tariff law more likely would be the "tariff law of 1939" instead of 1929. He contended the information would be of no value in determining rate changes and that the Government would be the loser under the resolution by withholding returns from those who should be working on them.

A statement by Reed that the United States Steel Corporation was "indifferent" to the tariff and had sent no witnesses to the public committee hearings asking increases brought Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, to his feet with an interrogation as to whether the steel corporation had any agreement with smaller producers that the latter appear, because "prejudice" against the bigger fellows made it unwise that they seek higher levies.

The Pennsylvanian said he could not answer that and Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, asked him if Thomas J. Doherty, of the American Iron & Steel Institute, did not appear and was not the steel corporation a member of the institute. Reed said it was a member, but sent no representatives of its own accord.

Woll Called Protectionist.

Mention by Reed of the fact that Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, and representative of the American Wage Earners' Association, had appeared and asked tariff increases brought a statement from Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, that Woll was well known as a "high protection propagandist" and did not represent the great mass of labor on the tariff.

Reed replied that no one came from labor organizations to contradict Woll's statement that he appeared for labor.

Other resolutions introduced during the day included one by Senator Broussard, Democrat, Louisiana, to make all the bill rates apply to imports from the Phillipines, now duty free, and the revenue thus collected turned over to the Philippine Government to help defray its expenses.

One by Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, would transfer manganese ore from the free list as proposed by the finance committee Republicans back to the dutiable column. Another by the same senator would repeal the flexible provisions under which the President is authorized to change tariff rates.

Cornstalk Gas Is Produced To Give City Light and Heat

Illinois Scientists Tell American Chemical Society of New Aladdin's Lamp Found in Two Nuisance Wastes; Only Simple Apparatus Required.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Cornstalk gas to light and heat small cities was announced at the opening session of the American Chemical Society's seventy-eighth meeting here today. Ordinary sewage and plain cornstalks are combined in a cheap, simple method which produces results like those of Aladdin's lamp.

From these two nuisance wastes, University of Illinois chemists are recovering large quantities of methane gas, plain marsh gas, announced as useful for heating, for operating automobiles, in place of gasoline, and driving engines producing electricity. They also are recovering the principal ingredients of "dry ice" and they swat the corn borer.

They believe they have an apparatus so simple that it can be installed by any farmer to make his family sewage turn his cornstalks into one of the needs of farm wives, good, cheap cooking gas. It requires no machinery; bacteria from sewage do the work.

Cellulose Is Magic Substance.

The authors say it promises improvements in making paper from cornstalks, and that what can be done with corn probably can be applied to waste sugar cane. They have not yet investigated other substances, but as cellulose is the magic substance used the experiments point to a wide field. Cellulose is the ingredient in growing plants now used to make silk, gunpowder and thousands of other articles of everyday use.

The crux of the Illinois discovery is quantity production of corn stalk methane. The researchers reached back into a chapter of chemistry mostly abandoned 30 years ago when it was found that corn stalks produced too little methane to make it valuable. By a few chemical changes, including keeping out the oxygen, they upset the old theory. It is announced that the University of Illinois has applied for patents to insure keeping the process open to the public.

The author of the discovery is Dr. A. M. Buswell, professor of sanitary chemistry at Illinois, who has been assisted by C. S. Boruff. Dr. Buswell said:

"The material used is dried corn stalks after husking. The stalks are shredded with an ordinary shredding machine, boiled, soaked in water or soaked in lime.

Small Tank Collects Gases.

"The apparatus is simply a small tank provided with a cover to collect gases. A farmer, for example, could produce enough gas to supply all the needs of a family of four or five from the material which could be fermented from a gas tank 8 feet in diameter and 8 feet deep. This tank would be connected with the house drain to take the household wastes.

"From a large commercial standpoint the authors estimated from data collected by the University of Iowa that a circle of corn land 8 miles in diameter would produce enough cornstalks to supply the usual gas consumption of a city of 80,000. This would not compete with gas available to cities in coal fields but where corn is available it would eliminate much hauling expense.

"About three weeks after sewage is first turned into the tank it is ready for corn stalks. In less than a week thereafter there is quantity gas production.

Waste Produces Nitrogen.

"The function of the sewage waste is a source of nitrogen for bacteria. It is their food. The gas yield amounts to 35 to 50 per cent of the weight of the cornstalks. It has a heat value virtually the same as that of city gas. It rates about 500 thermal units compared with 525 to 550 units from coal.

"Since the corn borer lives over the winter in the stalks any process which removes the cornstalk from the field will aid in control of the borer. Besides methane, the principal gaseous product is carbon dioxide, which is now finding wide commercial use as dry ice."

Dr. Irving Langmuir, of the General Electric Co., president of the society, arrived here by airplane about 2 a. m. Monday in a rainstorm.

Mexican Bandits Sack Town.

Mexico City, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Special dispatches to El Universal from Torreon today said 25 bandits attacked and sacked the town of Mapimi Friday night, killing the chief of police.

Portland Is Host To G.A.R. Veterans

12,000 Survivors Attend National Encampment; Parade Planned.

Portland, Me., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Maine and Portland, hosts to the Grand Army of the Republic 44 years ago, again tonight extended official welcome to 12,000 Civil War veterans and delegates of allied organizations, here for their sixty-third national encampment.

At a huge reception in City Hall, Commander-in-chief John Reese, of Broken Bow, Nebr., his staff and officers of auxiliary organizations, received the greetings of Gov. William Tudor Gardiner, City Manager James E. Barlow, of Portland, and prominent citizens.

In the short line of march—about a mile—for Wednesday, honor of the lead position in the veteran's division was given to Illinois, first State to organize A. G. A. R. post. Wisconsin was second followed by other States in order of their charter seniority.

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

That ancient prejudice which hoarded gold with the fanatical zeal of the miser has vanished. Under the sheltering wing of AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE flourish thousands of banking institutions to which the individual safely entrusts his wealth.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful, corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

RACE ISSUE ARISES AS VETERANS MEET

Spanish War Officers' Report Assails Efforts to Limit Membership.

HOSPITALS HELD UNFIT

Denver, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Taking a direct slap at an effort made by one Spanish-American War veterans camp in the Washington-Alaska Department to limit its membership to the white race and criticising conditions in many of the Government hospitals and soldiers' homes throughout the country, the annual report of the officers of the U. S. A. W. V. was placed in the hands of thousands of delegates at the opening session of the national encampment here today.

In one instance, the report reveals, veteran hospital patients suffering with mental diseases are kept in a ward also used for "sobering up" drunks. Inspection of another Government institution disclosed that bootleggers in the nearest town, 4 miles away, victimize the veterans.

A number of the institutions devoted to the veterans are overcrowded and consist of old buildings which are a fire menace, the report contends.

Ragged Appearance Charged.

In others funds to supply the inmates with respectable uniforms are not available, so the veterans put up a ragged and tattered appearance, the report charges.

The slap at the effort of one of the camps of the veterans' organizations to limit its membership along racial lines was taken in the report of the national judge advocate general. He ruled that a by-law of the camp excluding as members all persons not of the white race was invalid and quoted a decision to the same effect of a former judge advocate general.

The political campaign in the national encampment was developing rapidly as two candidates appeared in the field for commander-in-chief for the ensuing year.

With Gov. Fred W. Green, of Michigan, as the candidate of the administration group, and Col. Winfield Scott, former Commissioner of Pensions, as his leading opponent, the race promised to be the most hotly contested in years.

Raths May Quit Race.

Developments today indicated that Otto N. Raths, St. Paul Theater owner and present senior vice commander of the national organization, may withdraw from the race, members of the Minnesota delegation said.

Contests loomed between various cities to entertain the encampment in future years. Philadelphia and Tampa, Fla., are considered among the leading contenders for the next encampment. The veterans hold their encampments alternately in the West and the East. Rivals for the 1931 encampment are Phoenix, Ariz., and New Orleans, La.

The keynote address of the convention was delivered today by Mrs. Olive M. Ravens, Lansing, Mich., president of the women's auxiliary, who declared:

"Veterans, you are fighting the greatest fight of your existence, the battle to force the 50-50 pension bill through the December session of Congress." Her address climaxed an inspiring session marked by a fervid declaration by Gen. Pedro E. Betancourt, personal representative of the President of Cuba, that the people of his country are "and will be ready to mingle our blood with yours in defense of your country and flag—now and forever...ore."

easy to accomplish with all the fighting continuing on the borders. The reorganizationists of the left wing, Kuomintang, are meanwhile distributing circulars among bankers and merchants warning against loans. They are creating the impression that the opposition to the government is very strong.

As a mater of fact this opposition is at the present moment inadequately led, and is therefore unable to establish a political center, but combined with the Russian situation it serves to make financing and disbandment of troops difficult when disbandment is the most important fact facing the Chinese government.

Hopes Suffer Setback.

Moscow, U. S. S. R., Sept. 10 (Tuesday) (A.P.).—Prospects of peaceful settlement of the dispute between Russia and China over the Chinese Eastern Railway in Manchuria appeared early today to have suffered a distinct setback with the reports of continuous fighting on the Manchurian border involving considerable loss of lives and property.

Goaded, they said, by repeated assaults by Chinese aided by white Russians, the Red army has been forced to make vigorous counterattacks in order to defend the Soviet border and protect the civilian population.

Decisive defensive measures were admitted by the Soviet government late last night in a fresh note handed to the German Ambassador for delivery to the Nanking and Mukden governments. China was warned that if provocative assaults continue from the Chinese side of the 2,000-mile Manchurian border the consequences to China may be very grave.

The note stated that there had been 19 new attacks on Soviet territory for which the Nanking and Mukden governments were fully responsible.

"The Soviet Government, as previously," it was said, "considers that the only way to avoid additional consequences is by immediate measures to terminate these new assaults on Soviet territory."

Floating Mines Reported Discovered.

Khabarovsk, Siberia, U. S. S. R., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Soviet authorities stated today that discovery of floating mines at the junction of the Amur and Sungari Rivers showed clearly that China had carefully worked out a military and naval plan against the Soviet Union following its seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway in Manchuria.

So many mines were located that navigation by Soviet steamers on the river which forms the northeast boundary of Manuchuria was said to be impossible at night and possible of accomplishment in the daytime only by exercising the greatest care.

Despite the serious character of reports of fighting in Manchuria between Soviet Russian and Chinese troops, State Department officials last night maintained their confidence that open warfare between the two nations would not result.

The department had received no information on the reported renewal of hostilities, although all American officials in China were instructed by Secretary Stimson some time ago to report fully on all developments in the strained relations between China and Russia.

The belief was held here that the fighting was more in the form of border clashes which had been feared because of the proximity of the opposing troops and not authorized campaigns.

G. O. P. COMMITTEE MEETS WITH HOOVER

Henry Miller Service.

HUSTON ELECTED CHAIRMAN OF REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE

fact, in some quarters Burke's resignation was called for. The action of the committee could hardly be called that of shelving him. It is understood, too, that the suggestion came from President Hoover. Aside from this angle, it is no more than logical that he should be a member of the committee.

There had been reports that Williams was to take over the chairmanship job until Huston divested himself of all business connections. They had, however, been denied. The explanation is that it will not take Huston more than a month to do this.

The question arises, of course, as to why, with the advance notice he must have had of his selection, he had not cleaned the slate before. It may be that he did not think it was necessary to do so. Mr. Hoover is insistent upon this, however, and it seems to be a new sacrifice required of national chairmen. Huston's business connections are rather wide. For one thing he is vice chairman of the board of the Transcontinental Oil Co.

Dr. Work Given Thanks.

The committee adopted a resolution expressing appreciation for the services of the retiring chairman, Dr. Hubert Work, who came to official Washington with Harding and has been here ever since. A letter expressing "high appreciation" was read from President Hoover.

Huston's election was set in an old-fashioned Southern atmosphere, the first Southerner ever to be given the Republican chairmanship, it was said. He was presented by Representative J. Will Taylor and Beulah H. Hughes, committeeman and committee woman, respectively, from Tennessee. The fact that Taylor and Huston have been brought together would seem to be no mean accomplishment of Huston's chairmanship.

C. Bascom Slemp, of Virginia, and R. B. Creager, of Texas, hailed Huston's selection as betokening great things for the Republican party in the South. The Southern Republicans continue to talk like this and the practical heads on the committee from other sections of the country wince every time they do it.

Slemp Predicts Cannon Triumph.

Slemp, with a perfectly straight face, predicted the election of the Republican - Cannonite gubernatorial candidate in Virginia in November.

The darker side of the Southern picture was presented by the forlorn countenances of Perry W. Howard, Negro national committeeman from Mississippi, and "Tieless" Joe Tolbert, of South Carolina. Mr. Hoover has turned thumbs down on them in so far as patronage is concerned and he would brook no counsel with them while they were here, but they are still the national committeemen. Just why some action is not taken to oust them goes unexplained.

The order went out that the customary photograph with the President would be for the executive committee only, so this precluded any embarrassment from Tolbert and Howard, or Mrs. Mary C. Booze, Negro committee woman from Mississippi.

Her husband was still waiting at the White House late in the afternoon for an audience apparently with anybody who might tell him what it was all about.

Colored Woman Sees Hoover.

On the other hand, Mrs. Minnie Williams, Negro committeewoman from Georgia, called at the White House and went right in to see Mr. Hoover. Inasmuch as there is no committeeman in her State, she wants a voice in the patronage, which, she says, the patronage committee set up by Postmaster General Brown will not give her. As to how she fared with Mr. Hoover is not known. She had no trouble in getting an audience with the President. There are no such charges against her as have proved the undoing of Howard and Mrs. Booze.

About the Southern situation, there was a lot of talk among the Southerners that Col. Horace Mann, the Southern Republican manager during the campaign, was to be recalled to duty and his plan of holding the South put into effect after all. There is considerable doubt as to whether this is true, but some of the Southerners were told this, apparently, to bolster up their spirits.

There is too much sentiment on the committee against the wisdom of flirting with the South for any "great Republican movement" really to be put into effect down there.

MARINES VICTORS IN PISTOL CONTEST

They Will Retain Gold Cup Indicative of National Championship.

OTHER WINNERS GIVEN

Camp Perry, Ohio, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The United States Marine Corps pistol team today retained the gold cup emblematic of the National Pistol Team Championship in the national rifle matches here.

In winning the cup and individual gold medals for the third consecutive year the Marines shot a score of 1,286 out of a possible 1,500 to easily defeat 33 other competing teams.

The U. S. Infantry team was second with 1,273. The U. S. Navy was third with 1,262, the U. S. Cavalry was fourth with 1,249 and the Missouri National Guard team was fifth with 1,213.

The match was fired over three stages—50 yards slow fire; 25 yards timed fire; and 25 yards rapid fire. Each member of the five-man teams fired 10 shots for record at each stage.

Individual Marine Scores.

Individual scores of the Marine team were:

Lieut. Raymond T. Presnell, 263; Lieut. Wm. J. Whaling, 265; Lieut. Lewis A. Hohn, 248; Sergt. Henry M. Bailey, 251; and Sergt. Melvin T. Huff, 259.

Lloyd E. Wilson, Cashmere, Wash., civilian, won the national individual pistol match by a margin of one point when he fired a score of 270 out of a possible 300. He is the fourth civilian to win this match since it was placed on the program in 1904 and will receive the Custer trophy and a gold medal.

Winners of the aggregate matches in the National Rifle Association events last week were announced today.

Sergt. J. R. Tiets, Marine Corps, won the Palma match, an aggregate of the Wright Memorial, Crowell and Scott matches, with a total of 222. Sergt. J. B. Jensen, Cavalry, was a close second with the same score, but lost because of lower averages on the long ranges. Sergt. S. J. Zaiga, Marine Corps, was third with 221.

Wins "Any Rifle" Test.

Sergt. Jensen won the "any rifle" championship. The score in this event is compiled from targets fired in the Wimbledon 600-yard, any rifle, Scott, Wright Memorial and Crowell matches. Sergt. C. J. Hakala, Infantry, was second and Corpl. C. I. Laine, Marine Corps, third.

The U. S. Marine Corps added the United Service match to its list of trophies at the rifle matches with a score of 2,843. The winner of the match is determined by aggregate scores of the twenty highest competitors of each branch of the service entered in the President's match.

The Army was second with 2,833, National Guard third with 2,832, Navy fourth with 2,813, Civilians fifth with 2,797 and the Coast Guard sixth with 2,710.

Whalen Urges Uniform Federal Firearms Law

New York, Sept. 9 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A new Federal firearms law which will be uniform in all States, and which will forbid the sale of firearms except under certain conditions, is needed in this country, Police Commissioner Grover Whalen declared today. Under the present multiplicity of laws on the subject, a criminal can go to another State and buy a revolver or he can have it sent to him from a mail order house, the commissioner pointed out.

The statement was the result of the fact that five young men, charged with conspiring to steal a $26,000 pay roll, were in the line-up this morning, and three of them were found to have obtained their revolvers from a mail order house in Wisconsin.

"I Specify Palmolive—and have done so for several years"

Says HONSELL

Outstanding Beauty Specialist of Munich

"UNFORTUNATELY, I tell my clients, a beautiful complexion cannot be acquired just by taking a few special treatments in my salon." So says Honsell, of Munich, a beauty expert whose word carries great significance throughout Germany. "The most experienced beauty specialist," he continues, "cannot achieve good results unless the client does her part at home. My home treatment naturally varies, since every skin has its individual needs. But the groundwork is always the same—a thorough massage twice a day with Palmolive Soap."

Throughout Germany, the same advice

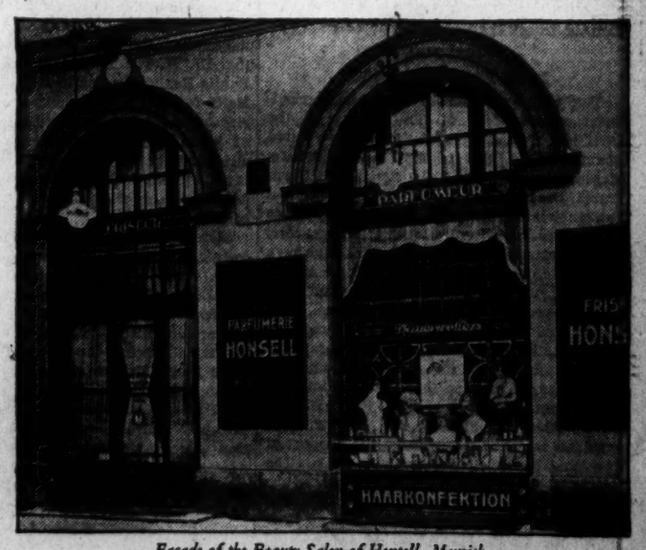
From one end of the Rhine to the other, in small towns and great cities throughout Germany, beauty experts today are unanimous in their approval of a facial treatment using this soap blended of palm and olive oils.

In Berlin, the celebrated Elise Bock tells her patrons the need for "foundation cleansing—by one means and one means only—daily use of Palmolive Soap." "It not only cleans the pores," says Emil Meier, of Bremen," but it has beautifying qualities that serve the loveliest skin." These quotations are typical of the advice given by the outstanding experts throughout Germany.

In other cities, the world over

Not only in Germany, but in France, in England, Spain, Italy, Scandinavia . . . and everywhere in the United States one is told by the leading specialists to keep skin beautiful by a simple soap-and-water massage. Here it is, briefly: work a lather of Palmolive Soap and water gently into the pores. Rinse, carrying away all impurities. Cold water or ice makes a refreshing astringent. Then—and only then—are you ready for make-up.

It is because of this internationally fine reputation that Palmolive is today one of the two leading toilet soaps in France, the first soap in this country and 48 others.



Facade of the Beauty Salon of Honsell, Munich.

All of the leading beauty specialists of Munich officially approve of the twice-a-day use of Palmolive Soap to keep skin lovely. Bornheimer and Deppe, Prischel and Charles agree with Honsell that nothing is so helpful in providing a smooth, fresh, glowing complexion as this particular blend of palm and olive oils.

A vast professional group, including 16,954 American experts, agree on this daily rule involving Palmolive Soap

THE VARE RESOLUTION.

Senator Norris' resolution calling for a decision in the Vare case is timely, in spite of the suggestion that it is offered merely to obstruct the tariff debate. A resolution affecting the right of a senator to his seat, and the right of a State to have two senators of its own choosing, is always in order. Notwithstanding the urgency of tariff legislation, the Senate should now consider the Norris resolution and dispose of the Vare case. If Pennsylvania is to be permitted to have but one senator unless it consents to supervision of its choice by the senators from other States, the fact should be known to Pennsylvania and the country.

The Norris resolution is a wonderful opportunity for some senator to set forth the spirit of the Constitution. The task could be performed most fittingly by a Democrat, inasmuch as the fundamental principle involved is not a partisan question and should not be obscured by partisanship. The question is whether the people of a State are entitled to elect a senator of their own choice. The denial of a seat to a senator unquestionably elected would be the denial of the right of a State to elect him. The Senate may do this, and apparently there is no judicial or other authority to call it to account; but the act would be a flagrant violation of the Constitution, nevertheless, and the whole country would know it. Possibly public opinion would find some means of expressing itself effectively.

If Senator Vare has done something that makes him intolerable as a senator, the proper course to pursue is to expel him after he has been seated. But this would require a two-thirds vote, while a majority may deny him a seat. Perhaps this is the reason why some senators are willing to violate the Constitution.

Nominally, Mr. Vare is on trial under the Norris resolution, but in reality the Senate is on trial.

REAL FARMERS SPEAK.

The position taken by the chief agricultural organizations of the country on the tariff issue is a serious rebuke to the so-called champions of the farmer in the Senate. Representatives of the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange and ten other influential farm associations express themselves, in a circular letter to all senators, as appreciative of the rate changes that have been made in the interests of agriculture, and ask, in the most polite language, for further protection for some farmers. No mention is made of restricting tariff changes to agricultural products, and the farmers offer no objection to any increased duty on manufactured articles they have to buy.

Senators who plan to fight for limitation of revision to agricultural and kindred products are thus left without the support of the most powerful farm organizations. The farmers, it appears, are not prepared to adopt a dog-in-the-manger attitude. Evidently they sense more keenly than do their champions in Congress the inconsistency of demanding extensive duty increases for themselves and howling against changes in favor of other depressed industries. This sense of fairness is something unknown in the agricultural bloc in the Senate. Perhaps this lack of support from farm organization accounts for postponement of the tariff limitation campaign, but, at any rate, the attitude of the farmers should put an end to the absurd tactics of the insurgents.

The communication to senators is significant also because it indicates unity among farm organizations. The foremost agricultural groups in the country, which have frequently disagreed in their recommendations to Congress, have joined in signing a single petition for tariff protection. This may be considered a rebuke to self-appointed guardians of the farmers' welfare who have sought to sacrifice certain agricultural groups for the benefit of others. The farmers realize that to sacrifice any branch of agriculture would mean overproduction in other branches and thus defeat the advantages of the tariff as a whole.

The farmers are asking Congress "to assure them the domestic market to the full extent of their ability to supply it." They do not wish to rise to prosperity through the depression of any other industry. Such an attitude is wholly commendable and will, no doubt, make an impression on Congress.

CHAIRMAN HUSTON.

While the election of Claudius H. Huston to be chairman of the Republican national committee is not so unexpected as to cause stupefaction, it is a notable event, just the same. Mr. Huston is the choice of President Hoover, of course, but he is also the choice of the entire committee, and he represents the new Republicanism of the South. If his election means that the Republican leader and his party are to pay special attention to the South, in the hope of building up a militant organization in each State, national politics hereafter should be more truly national, and both great parties will be the better for a livelier competition.

Mr. Huston is well qualified for his task. His ability as an organizer has been demonstrated. There will be plenty of work for him to do, beginning at once. The congressional campaign is already on. The disappearing Republican majority in the Senate—disappearing at the most critical junctures and without giving any notice—is now up against a deadly struggle in which the Democratic party is receiving powerful aid from the very camp of the enemy. The record made by Congress at this extra session and during the session beginning in December will tell the story. Obviously, one of Mr. Huston's first duties is to bring about teamwork between the national committee and the Republicans—the genuine Republicans—in the Senate. The committee can do a great deal back in the States to show up the party renegades who are trading with the enemy.

THE AIR TRAGEDY.

The tragedy that befell the airliner City of San Francisco is made the more poignant by the fact that Transcontinental Air Transport, the Lindbergh Line, as it is called, made elaborate preparations to guard against such catastrophes. Many months were consumed in working out the routes, in establishing a most elaborate private meteorological service, in selecting equipment, and in training the flying personnel. The most active role in establishing the service was played by Col. Lindbergh, who personally supervised every detail of the arrangements. In July the service was opened to public patronage after a two weeks' "dress rehearsal," and it was announced that no stone had been left unturned to make the Lindbergh Line the safest, speediest and most reliable air line in the world.

Barely two months after the first planes got under way, the City of San Francisco crashed against a mountainside in New Mexico. Five passengers and the three members of the crew perished, and their bodies were nearly consumed by fire. Various investigations are under way, each seeking to ascertain the immediate cause of the tragedy and to fix the responsibility, but with the plane destroyed and its occupants dead there is scant likelihood that the cause can be definitely discovered or the blame fixed. In the meantime, the American public has received a shock calculated to destroy its enthusiasm for air travel. It remains to be seen how profound an effect the tragedy has worked on the popular imagination, and to what extent the development of air transport has been set back.

AN EXTRA PAY PROPOSAL.

Study of salaries paid Government workers has brought Ismar Baruch, civil service member of the Personnel Classification Board, to the conclusion that employes whose work is hazardous are entitled to special consideration. He would award a salary differential to scientists whose work endangers their lives and to those who make unusual sacrifices. His own examples of deserving cases are the physicist who gathers scientific data in an airplane, the lighthouse keeper who is away from civilization for months at a time and the medical man who risks his life in experiments.

Cases in which Government employes have sacrificed their health or their lives are numerous. Only last week it was announced that Dr. W. T. Harrison, of the United States Public Health Service, had fallen a victim of Malta fever. Dr. Harrison knew full well the risk he was running when he drew a quantity of blood from Dr. Francis, who had been stricken with the fever as a result of research investigations. Dr. Harrison has become the fifth victim sacrificed to Malta fever for the benefit of humanity.

Men and women in this classification are certainly entitled to special compensation. The justice of the principle enunciated by Mr. Baruch can not be challenged, but the application of this principle will lead to innumerable difficulties. Where can the line be drawn between the group of employes who make special sacrifices and those who do not? In an organization as large as the Government service such an arrangement would be certainly abused. Nevertheless the suggestion is worthy of attention, in the hope that a practical way of applying it may be worked out.

JUSTICE IN CHINA.

Secretary Stimson's reply to the Chinese National government indicates the willingness of the administration to cooperate in restoring complete sovereignty to China. The statement makes plain, however, that extraterritorial rights will not be relinquished until China has demonstrated its ability to afford protection to American nationals in that country. The British government's reply is to the same effect. That government expresses its willingness to examine the defects and inconveniences of the existing consular courts in collaboration with the Chinese government to determine what further satisfaction can be given to the "legitimate aspirations of the Chinese people."

The proposed withdrawal of the American consular courts is subject to two limitations. If negotiations prove satisfactory the extraterritorial right would be "gradually relinquished, either as to designated territorial areas or as to particular kinds of jurisdictions." And this gradual relinquishment must be accompanied by improvement in the enactment and effective enforcement of laws based on modern concepts of jurisprudence. The State Department insists upon an independent judiciary which will interpret fairly a known set of laws for the protection of the individual and his property.

The international commission sent to China three years ago reported that the Chinese code of law and judicial system were not such as to warrant relinquishment of extraterritorial rights. Administration of justice has, no doubt, improved considerably since then. The Chinese government has drawn up elaborate civil and commercial codes which will be ready for promulgation some time this year. The question of withdrawing the American consular courts should depend entirely on the progress made. If an arrangement can be made to relinquish American jurisdiction in those departments and those parts of the country where the courts are well established and for retention of American courts in other sections until full assurance is given that American citizens will be protected no doubt the best interests of both countries would be served.

BELATED HONORS.

All things are said to come to him who waits. The truth of this saying is demonstrated in part, at least, by the releases for publication which are ground out daily by the mimeographers of the War Department. The eleventh anniversary of the signing of the armistice is at hand. Between April, 1917, and November, 1918, many thousands of boys from America performed deeds of valor "that the world might be made safe for democracy." Thousands of the young men who made up the American expeditionary force were decorated for gallantry in action right on the field where their deeds were performed. Many other thousands were similarly honored during the first years which succeeded the homecoming. Then there was a lull in the distribution. Congress set a specific date—some time in 1923—after which there were to be no more awards of distinguished service crosses, silver stars, oak clusters, congressional medals or other baubles.

But some one in Congress, or in the War Department, saw a light. Many men deserving of notice had been overlooked, and as a result the halted distribution was renewed. Now, more than ten years after the first poppies have faded in Flanders Field, the military establishment is digging up records and passing out badges to men for "gallantry in action" at Montfaucon, Buzancy or on the Meuse during the summer and autumn of 1918. They are awarded at the rate of three to ten a week. But, while these decorations and citations may be appreciated by the recipients or their heirs, the general public would appreciate information as to why it should take ten years or more to find out that a veteran has earned the right to wear a silver star for his gallantry in 1918.

AN OUNCE OF COAL.

Few individuals have considered what can be done with one ounce of coal. The citizen who uses coal for domestic use buys it by the ton. But railroads, which are the greatest consumers of fuels, sometimes set their experts to figuring just what can be expected from coal measured by units even smaller than ounces. These great corporations are not given to ignoring small things, for it is in small savings that they make the profits which permit payment of dividends. Thus the Bureau of Railway Economics keeps careful account of just how much fuel every locomotive running over the tracks of the "Class 1" railroads consumes in the course of each run, and what that consumption brings in the way of freight movement. This bureau turns out weekly reports of the results of its investigations, and in the latest of these publications it is announced that "an average of 129 pounds of fuel was required during the first six months of 1929 to haul each 1,000 tons of freight and equipment, including locomotive and tender, a distance of one mile. This average was the lowest ever attained by the railroads since the compilation of such reports began in 1918, being two pounds less than the previous record established a year ago."

Proceeding further into details, the bureau reports that during the period covered by the report, "for every pound of coal or its equivalent" consumed in the fire boxes of the freight engines "the railroads hauled 78 tons of freight and equipment one mile." Reducing the consumption of fuel to ounces, this means that these railroads consumed only one-fifth of an ounce of fuel to haul one ton of freight and equipment one mile.

But when it comes to the total consumption of fuel during the first six months of this year the bureau finds the division into ounces, or even pounds, entirely inadequate, for those railroads used 56,954,568 tons of coal, besides 1,253,553,927 gallons of fuel oil, between January 1 and June 30.

According to the New York Herald Tribune, the sign "Congressional" on automobiles cruising about the streets of Washington means that the owner is either a member of Congress or a bootlegger. The Herald Tribune just saved itself by using that word "or."

The international congress of psychology finds that swearing among girls is increasing. Just a natural result of the stockingless fad plus mosquitoes!

The Weather Bureau reports that the drought is ruining the farmers. This is slightly different from the Antisaloon League's version.

It was all right for Prof. Rogers to advise his students to be snobs, but when he says the American people are "feminine" and at the same time ill-mannered he is treading on dangerous ground.

And He Used to Be Such a Modest Person.

YOUNG WIZARDS.

Andre Lenoir, a Belgian boy, is stated to be able, at the age of 2 years to multiply any two five-figure numbers accurately and without hesitation. Whether this is an exaggeration or not I am unable to say, but every now and then the phenomenon of the "calculating boy" crops up and astonishes the world. The feats of these wonder children appear to be done by a sort of instinct, and sometimes the apparently magical power is lost as soon as a real knowledge of mathematics is gained.

A well-known calculating boy was George Parker Bidder, who was born in 1806, and was exhibited in his childhood as an arithmetical marvel, says the London Post. He became an engineer and was associated with Robert Stephenson in the London & Birmingham—afterward the London & Northwestern Railway, and was a founder of the Electric Telegraph Co. and president of the Institution of Civil Engineers. Among his best-known works are the Victoria Docks.

A good many of us remember Jacques Inaudi, who visited London in 1893, as a wizard who could do anything with figures. He at least did not lose his gift as he grew up.

THE SLAVE POETESS.

Everybody knows that Henry Lee referred to Washington as "first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen." Few, however, says The Pathfinder, are aware of the fact that in 1775, before the Declaration of Independence was written, Phyllis Wheatley, the slave poetess, wrote a poem about Gen. Washington in which she referred to him as "first in peace and honors." Washington, with the armies of England encamped over the hill, wrote a letter to the black girl who had been stolen from her people in Africa and purchased by a kind lady in the slave market of Boston. "I thank you most sincerely for your polite notice of me in the elegant lines you inclosed," said the commander of the Continental Army, "and however undeserving I may be of such panegyric, the style and manner exhibit striking proof of your poetical talents, in honor of which and as a tribute justly due you I would have published the poem had I not been apprehensive that, while I only meant to give the world this new instance of your genius, I might have incurred the imputation of vanity. This and nothing else determined me not to give it place in public prints. If you ever come to Cambridge or near headquarters I shall be happy to see a person so favored by the muses and to whom nature has been so liberal and beneficent in her dispensations. I am, with great respect, your obedient, humble servant, George Washington." Thus wrote Washington of Mount Vernon to the African slave girl.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

MOTHER'S WORKING ON DAD.

"Well, what of your car?"
I inquired of the lad.
"Do you get it or no?"
In a voice quaint and low
He replied: "I hope so.
Mother's working on dad!

"I put up the best
Line of talk that I had.
He was deaf to my plea
And said it couldn't be,
But now mother's for me
And she's working on dad!"

That he'll get the car
It seems needless to add.
All resistance is vain,
He may fret and complain,
But he'll crack 'neath the strain,
Mother's working on dad!

When I have said "no,"
To my daughter or lad,
Right away after tea
She begins upon me
And it's plain as can be
Mother's working on dad!

Says she: "While they're young
Let us keep their hearts glad!
Other children have things
Motors, watches and rings;"
That's the stuff which she springs
When she's working on dad!

The Stranger Needs Watching if He Offers the Watchdog Meat.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

No man can trust his "principles" unless he has analyzed them.

He may think himself sincere and his motives unmixed; he may think each principle a product of clear reasoning and sound morality; but it is man's nature to believe the thing he wishes to believe and support the faith that butters his bread, and he can not be certain that his convictions are above reproach until he examines them as the police examine a suspect.

Let us assume that you whip your small son. You are convinced that you do it only for his good—that wrath, wounded vanity and a desire for revenge influence you not at all—that duty and duty alone prompts you.

If that is your sincere belief try the shoe on the other foot. Would that same sense of duty prompt you to assault him if he were strong enough to fight back with some hope of success?

Or assume that you favor the repeal of a law because efforts to enforce it result in bloodshed, bribery, contempt for authority and official corruption.

You are sincere in the belief that repeal is justified and you are certain that no prejudice or bias forms your opinion.

Then question yourself. If efforts to enforce the law against stealing resulted in the same bribery, bloodshed and corruption would you favor the repeal of it also?

You are a preacher or a reformer who lectures, and you are certain that you labor because you love the right, and that money you receive does not influence you at all.

Try yourself. Would you continue to preach or lecture and labor at some task to support yourself if you could no longer get money for your services?

You vote as the boss does, but solely because you happen to think as he does. Would you continue to think with him if he should fire you?

Your affection for a certain patron seems genuine, but would you hold him in the same high regard if he should begin to patronize your competitor?

Would you, in short, hold your present opinions if you could make a great profit by changing them? And would you continue to hold them if you knew they would cost you reputation, money and friends?

A "principle" that adds butter to your bread may be the product of honest conviction, but for honor's sake you must watch it narrowly lest it betray and corrupt you.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

JOHNNY GOODMAN, THE KID THAT BEAT JONES.

Well, folks, I'm as gay as a linnet;
I didn't last long, I'll admit;
I sat on the heights but a minute—
But that was one wonderful sit.
I may lose my golf touch forever;
From now on my game may bring groans,
But this you can take from me never—
I'm Goodman, the boy that beat Jones.

I may not be heard of next season,
I may lose my skill on the links;
I may hit the skids for the reason
I'm victim of hoodoo or jinx;
There may come a time when my name will
Be mentioned in very low tones,
But, still, I've a hunch that my fame will Survive as the boy who beat Jones.

I may find my game's gone boloney
With ev'ry defect in the book;
I may find my driving is phoney
With horrible slice, pull or hook;
My putting may cripple and slow me
And bring only sighings and moans
But always the people will know me
As "Goodman, the guy that beat Jones."

I may, when I wish, dub my driving
And swing without hitting the ball;
In fairways it may seem I'm striving
To plow up the field, turf and all;
In seasons to come I may never
Endanger the great on their thrones,
But this you can gamble, however—
They'll say, "There's the bird that beat Jones."

Some day this Scotch game I'll be quitting
And be just a plain working-man;
I may in due time be admitting
I was but a flash in the pan;
I may know defeat grim and graying
And walk the road rocky with stones,
But always I'll hear some one saying,
"He once put the skids under Jones."

No matter just where fate may land me
From now till the end of the lane;
No matter what fortune may hand me,
Apportioning sunshine and rain,
My place on the record is certain,
And when the Grim Reaper intones
The word for the drop of the curtain
He'll say, "Here's the guy that beat Jones."

SUMMER GIRL'S SONG OF JOY.

This summer is ended forever,
The cold, cheerless weather renews;
There's one thing I'm glad of, however—
I'm freed from the care of white shoes.

The lady garment workers are on strike. What does a ladies' garment worker do these days any way?

TRAVEL NOTE.

Statistics show that travel in day coaches has decreased, while travel in parlor cars has increased sharply. Well, it is impossible to open a window in a parlor car, and the charge for a chair about equals what you would have to pay for a hammer and chisel if you wanted to get ventilation in a day coach.

ADS THAT OFFEND.

Between Mount Jackson, in Shenandoah County, Va., and Washington, a sight-seeing motorist recently counted 175 billboards of such a nature and so placed as to obstruct the view of the natural scenery and to offend the taste of all discriminating travelers, says the Columbus Dispatch. Small signs attached to trees or plastered upon the sides of barns were not counted, although these, too, are becoming more and more offensive as the taste of the American public improves. An ever enlarging proportion of Americans, proud of our natural scenery, find themselves almost unconsciously becoming prejudiced against articles of merchandise whose manufacturers mar beautiful natural scenery with their advertisements. The failure to make good is likely to bring a decided decline in this type of advertising within the next few years.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

City Children Victims of Pedagogical Experts Who Do Not Teach the Alphabet or Spelling.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Visitors to the President's camp at the headwaters of the Rapidan are returning to Washington with spirits dampened by the discovery of the illiteracy among the mountaineers. It seems they found boys and girls who can not read or write, or recite the alphabet.

Were it not for the emphasis placed upon the geographical position of this "find," one might easily mistake the shocking report for an excitable outlander's commentary on his first glimpse of our gorgeous system of graded schooling. Do our pupils know the alphabet? If so, it is being bootlegged to them in defiance of our educational experts, who long ago gave the creature a bad name and ordered a permanent quarantine. Can our pupils spell? If they can, then the teachers merit dismissal for disobedience to their superiors, the National Education Association, which has decreed that spelling "cat" is too difficult for 9-year-olds. Can our college students read? Not if reading be defined as thought-getting, and as for conversing, the effort to talk with them on any but their three standard topics is like trying to pour water out of an empty can.

Of the two brands of illiteracy troubling our midst, the less difficult to abolish is the unschooled kind. It is far simpler and more profitable to undertake the mental and moral culturing of untaught mountain folk than of modern high school pupils, and I am speaking from personal experience with both phenomena. Furthermore, the mere inability to read is less discreditable to us and less menacing to our national well-being than are the ability and the willingness of prospective teachers to imbibe the tawdry and meretricious college courses falsely labelled psychology and calculated, one might suppose, for collectors of kitchen maidens.

Every intelligent man and woman realizes that the education expert's objection to the alphabet and spelling is neither personal nor pedagogical, but economic. His creed is that nothing shall be learned inexpensively. He knows that if the child has a grasp of spelling and the alphabet, and really wants to learn, he will teach himself to read from cereal boxes and street signs and all such lowdown media. If this were done widely, what would become of the market for grade readers and supplementary readers and other paraphernalia for teaching reading, whereby school exploiters wrest millions of dollars annually from the patient taxpayers?

Our teaching methods are unequaled in all the earth for sheer badness, inanity, and the squandering of time, money, and brain power. If we must meddle with these admittedly decent and industrious mountain folk, and all signs point to them as meat for the schoolmaster, let us teach them spelling and the alphabet and mercifully leave it at that. I hereby protest with all my strength against permitting the politico-pedagogue to continue manufacturing a famine in brains. E. F. LYNCH.

Charge d'Affaires of Cuba Wants to Know Whether Mr. Betancourt Is a Cuban or an American.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the article by Mr. William Hard, entitled "Cuba's Domestic Politics May Play Part in Tariff Fray," this able and usually conscientious writer brings charges against the government of Cuba, based on statements of a Mr. Betancourt, as "an American of Cuban extraction, with large property interests in Cuba." In the same article and following this description of his informant, Mr. Hard alludes to him in another connection: " . . . to Mr. Betancourt and to several of his friends and associates of the opposition party in Cuba."

There is here a palpable discrepancy. Is Mr. Betancourt an American or a Cuban? Is it proper to infer that Mr. Betancourt is an American who participates in Cuban politics? If so, then what becomes of his allegation, as expressed in Mr. Hard's article, that in Cuba a regime of oppression exists? If Mr. Betancourt's charge be true that 4,000 politicals have been exiled from Cuba, how is it that he, an American and a member "of the opposition party," who comes to Washington to blacken the good name of Cuba, can live in Havana in perfect security?

Apparently, Mr. Hard has allowed his good nature and credulity to be imposed upon.

JOSE BARON,
Charge d'Affaires of Cuba.

Get Rid of That Old Menace and Eyesore, Aqueduct Bridge.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senator Reed has reintroduced his measure providing for removal of the old Aqueduct bridge across the Potomac. The senator's argument for demolition of this useless structure is bolstered up by a report from the War Department. It seems that piers of the old bridge tend to block the openings in the new Key Bridge, increasing the danger from ice jams and causing the side openings to fill up with silt. Derricks which could pass under the new bridge can not be taken up the river because this old ruin remains, and the establishment of navigation terminals above the bridge is discouraged.

That is the engineer's point of view. But there is a much stronger argument against this decaying structure. It is an eyesore, a disgrace to the National Capital. The beauty of the new bridge is marred and the view of the river obstructed. By all means let the bridge be removed. ROSCOE J. CARLTON.

Wants Better Traffic Conditions at End of Highway Bridge.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why do not the District Commissioners relieve the traffic congestion at the north end of the Highway Bridge by widening the roadway at that end? This would allow the traffic bound north to go to the right of the plow pit instead of having to cross both lines of tracks, causing a congestion which at times is acute, to say the least. L. P. W.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

G.O.P. Women Rally to Side Of New Chief

Members of Committee Pledge Allegiance to Mr. Huston.

By JEAN ELIOT.

IF "gentlemen prefer blondes," ladies seem to prefer widowers—at least the ladies of the Republican national committee do. They were all strong for Dr. Hubert Work, the retiring chairman, and all seem to have been lined up behind Mr. Claudius H. Huston, his successor in the post. Moreover, a woman, Mrs. Beulah Hughes, national committeewoman from Tennessee, placed Mr. Huston in nomination, and no less than five women were among the speakers seconding the nomination.

It was as a sponsor for the new chairman that Representative Ruth Baker Pratt made her maiden speech before the national committee, having been elected but two days before to the post of committeewoman from New York, vice Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, resigned. The other women who made seconding speeches were Miss Dorothy Cunningham, Indiana; Mrs. J. C. Griswold, Texas; Mrs. Ellis Yost, West Virginia, and Mrs. Worthington, Scranton, Pennsylvania, who had been suggested as a successor to Mrs. Alvin T. Hert as feminine vice chairman of the committee. It was Mrs. Scranton, by the way, who escorted Mr. Huston to the platform among salvos of applause.

With Mrs. Hert an absentee, Mrs. Pratt, her honors fresh upon her, was the cynosure of all feminine eyes, for this former "alderman" of New York—first of her sex to hold the post on Manhattan Island—has promptly made a record for herself in Congress as a legislator and politician of great acumen. She is a native of Massachusetts, a New Yorker by adoption, confesses that her age is 52 and is a graduate of Vassar Hall and Wellesley. Her husband, the late John T. Pratt, was a lawyer and banker. Mrs. Pratt has six children.

Mrs. Hert Decides To Remain Away.

Mrs. Hert, having been far from well since her accident at election time—she fell and broke her arm, which has since been giving her considerable trouble—had decided not to brave the heat in Washington. Her resignation as vice chairman of the committee having been withdrawn and there being no controversial subjects to be discussed at yesterday's meeting, it seemed unnecessary for her to "make character" by coming—especially since she is unconcerned about continuing in her present position. Indeed, the "rage" is that Mrs. Hert is holding over at the President's request only to give the powers that be a chance to do some weeding out among the numerous candidates for the post who have bobbed up, and that she will later be replaced.

The sessions of the committee were held at the Willard Hotel, scene of many Republican powwows. Afterward there was a luncheon there—at a horseshoe table, for luck—and there, too, the committee's farewell dinner for Dr. Work was held last evening. In the afternoon the committee members were received by President Hoover.

Many Are Guests at White House.

A considerable group of these political bigwigs, masculine and feminine, had been guests of the President and Mrs. Hoover the evening before, when they resumed their famous Sunday evening supper parties, so popular before they began spending their week-ends at their camp on the Rapidan.

They had with them on this occasion Senator Henry J. Allen, of Kansas; Representative J. Will Taylor, of Tennessee; Dr. Work, Col. Nutt, Col. and Mrs. R. B. Creager, of Texas; Mr. Butler, of Wisconsin; Mr. Townsend, of Arkansas; Mr. Louis K. Liggett, of Massachusetts; Mr. Ferrand, of California, a member of the Farm Board; Mrs. Manley Fosseen, of Minnesota; Mrs. Ellis Yost, of West Virginia; Mrs. J. C. Remmel, of Arkansas, and Mrs. Hoover's sister, Mrs. J. H. Large, and Mrs. Vernon Kellogg.

Mrs. Kellogg, who has but recently returned from California, is staying at the White House while her Washington home is being opened for the season. Dr. Work is also a White House guest—but that's another story.

Mrs. Virginia White Speel, national committeewoman for the District of Columbia, hurried back from Nova Scotia to attend the meeting yesterday, and this Republican stalwart was much in evidence. Among the committeewomen here for the pow-wow, who are making their headquarters at the Willard, are:

Mrs. Charles Warner, of Delaware; Mrs. Beulah Hughes, of Tennessee; Mrs. Katherine Brown, of Ohio; Mrs. Elizabeth Clark, of Ohio; Mrs. Manley Fosseen, of Minnesota; Miss Martha McClure, of Iowa; Mrs. A. C. Remmel, of Arkansas; Mrs. David R. Grace, of Florida; Miss Dorothy Cunningham, of Indiana; Mrs. Howard Parker, of New Hampshire; Miss Katherine Byrne, of Connecticut, and Mrs. Florence T. Griswold, of Texas.

Women"s Press Club to Honor Mrs. Brookes

Mrs. Herbert Brookes, wife of the Commissioner General of Australia, will be the honor guest of the Women's National Press Club today at its first luncheon of the autumn season.

Commissioner General and Mrs. Brookes were entertained at luncheon yesterday by Mr. Hume Wrong, Charge d'Affaires ad interim of Canada.

Maj. Gen. William D. Connor, Commandant of the Army War College, and Mrs. Connor are on their way home from a prolonged European sojourn. For Gen. Connor this has been a semiofficial trip of inspection to Great Britain, France and Germany, since he elected to put in his leave studying the staff systems of the British, French and German armies as they have been reorganized since the war.

In Berlin Gen. Connor, as a representative of the United States Army, "returned the call" of Maj. Gen. von Heye, chief of the German general staff, who came a-visiting to Washington last year. The German military authorities gave General and Mrs. Connor a rousing reception.

Senator Hamilton F. Kean, of New Jersey, has taken an apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Invitations have been issued by the officers and directors of the New York, Rio & Buenos Aires Line for the christening of the Good Will Plane of the Americas, the Montevideo, which is taking place this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Naval Air Station at Anacostia, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pergler have issued invitations to the wedding of their daughter, Ella, to Mr. Svatoslav Malec, of Czechoslovakia, on September 19, 1929, at the home of the bride's parents, 2138 California street.

The wedding will be a simple home ceremony in the presence of only intimate friends of the family. Dr. Lucius Clarke, Chancellor of the American University, will officiate. The bride is a graduate of the College of Liberal Arts of the American University.

The bridegroom, a graduate of the High Technical Institute of Prague, is on the engineering staff of the famous Skoda works of Prague, and for the last two years has been in this country engaged in investigations on behalf of this company.

The couple will leave for Europe following the ceremony, and will be at home in Prague after October 1.

The Secretary of the Legation of Panama and Senora de Chevalier expect to leave the latter part of the week for Atlantic City for a few days' stay.

Senorita Lucia Tessada Guzman, daughter of Senora de Prieto, wife of the Military Attache of the Cuban Embassy, will be joined on September 26 by Miss Ruth Hosking, of California, who will be her guest for a short stay before returning to the National Park Seminary.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Knowlton Nebeker, whose daughter, Miss Ruth Nebeker, will be married to Ensign Edward Allen Hannegan on September 21, will have a number of guests over the week-end of the wedding, including Mr. and Mrs. McDavid Horton and Miss Sally Horton, of South Carolina, the latter a bridesmaid. Mrs. Sidney H. Young, of New York, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nebeker, will also be with them.

The former Minister to Venezuela and Mrs. Willis C. Cook, of Sioux Falls, S. Dak., who spent the summer in the Black Hills, are now at the Mayflower, but will leave today for New York. Mr. George T. Summerlin, former Minister to Honduras, has been appointed to succeed Mr. Cook, who has resigned from the Diplomatic Service.

Brig. Gen and Mrs. Kennedy to Be at Home Today

Lieut. and Mrs. Charles P. Summerall, jr., are being congratulated on the birth of twins, a boy and a girl, yesterday morning. Lieut. and Mrs. Summerall have recently come to Fort Myer for station, having previously made their home at Fort Sill, Okla. Before her marriage Mrs. Summerall was Miss Juna Reeder, of Fort Leavenworth, Kans. Lieut. Summerall is the son of Gen. and Mrs. Charles P. Summerall.

Gen. Charles P. Summerall was host at luncheon yesterday at the Army and Navy Club to a number of visiting generals, who have come to town for the meeting of the general classification board. His guests included Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely, of New York; Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, of Chicago; Brig. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, of New York; Brig. Gen. Campbell King, of Fort Benning, Ga.; Brig. Gen. George H. Estes; Brig. Gen. James B. Gowen, of Fort Hoyle, Md., and Brig. Gen. Charles D. Roberts, of Fort Eustis, Va.

Mrs. E. Lester Jones has returned to Washington for a few days and is staying at the Mayflower. Her daughter, Miss Cecil Lester Jones, who spent the summer in Europe, will arrive in New York next Monday and will go with her mother to their home in East Stoneham, Me., for the early autumn. Miss Jones spent part of the summer as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Woodlief Thomas, in Berlin. Mr. Thomas is associated with the Reparations Commission. Mrs. Jones' married daughter, Mrs. Stanley T. New Residence Of Legislator Is Made Ready

Mrs. McCormick to Take Possession as House Reconvenes.

Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick will return to her farm at Rockford, Ill., today after a few days in Washington, during which she superintended the moving of her household goods from the house at 1534 Twenty-eighth street into her new home at 1224 Thirtieth street. It will be remembered that Mrs. McCormick purchased two quaint old Georgetown houses, which have been thrown together and extensively remodeled. The work progressed very rapidly and the house is now all ready for its new tenant, who will take permanent possession when the House of Representatives reconvenes. Meanwhile she expects to make flying trips between Washington, where she finds the work piling up in her office at the Capitol, and the farm at Rockford, where her children are now established.

Mrs. McCormick does not expect to bring her family to town until about Christmas time. Her elder daughter, Miss Katrina McCormick, who is just 16 and will be a debutante a year or two hence, will reenter the Sermata School at Aiken, S. C., this autumn.

Mrs. McCormick's new residence is set in a large and lovely garden, which is now being landscaped with a view to retaining all its Old World charm. Inside, the old rooms have been lovingly restored, prominent place being given to some fine bits of old paneling which came from the Cameron house, now part of the Cosmos Club, in which Mrs. McCormick lived as a girl. It was the home of her father, Mark Hanna, for many of the years when he was in the Senate, and President McKinley used often to slip over from the White House to have breakfast there with the "President maker."

Capt. and Mrs. C. Charles Fenn have returned to the city after spending the summer at their camp on Lake Pelican, Wis. En route to Wash-

ARLINGTON LAWYERS TO ENJOY LIBRARY

County Bar Association Inspects New Quarters in Courthouse.

KING'S DAUGHTERS MEET

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The establishment of a law library by the Arlington County Bar Association at the county courthouse for the use of its members and visiting attorneys was the principal business at that body's monthly luncheon meeting yesterday at the Boulevard Bakery in Clarendon with President Col. Charles T. Jesse presiding.

The committee, of which Edgar W. Pumphrey is chairman, reported that the county supervisors have provided a room for that purpose on the third floor of the courthouse, formerly occupied by the county health department, together with a large table used in the offices formerly occupied by the county clerk.

Following the luncheon meeting members of the association with the committee went to the courthouse where they inspected the quarters for the library.

The committee was instructed to continue its work of arranging to have the rooms supplied with the required books that go to make a law library complete. The committee will make its final report at the October meeting.

According to the contractors, Corson & Gruman, of Washington, that section from the Military road to the Glebe road will be opened to traffic this week. Work is now under way between the bank and the Military road and from the Glebe road to Halls Hill and the entire road will be completed and opened to traffic the first week in October.

NEARLY ALL GRADES OF TOBACCO SLUMP

Average Loss of $1.60 Per 100 Pounds Reported by U. S. Bureau.

BEST LEAF HARDEST HIT

Richmond, Va., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Price declines in nearly all grades of tobacco in the fourth week of the Federal-State grading service at Lake City, S. C., are reported by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, United States Department of Agriculture.

In 33 grades for which a comparison with the previous week can be made, the average loss was approximately $1.60 per 100 pounds, said the bureau.

The average price per pound for all tobacco graded in the fourth week, the week ended August 24, was $18.67 per 100 pounds, as compared with $19.20, the average for the preceding week and $15.49 for the opening week of sales. The average price of ungraded tobacco in the fourth week was $16.80 per 100 pounds, as compared with $17.10 the second week and $14.05 the opening week.

General Market Loss 31 Cents.

Notwithstanding an average loss of about $1.60 per 100 for all grades, the loss in the general market average, graded and ungraded, was only 31 cents per 100 pounds, or from $17 the third week to $16.97 the fourth week. The explanation of this apparent contradiction is shown by the figures on that portion of the tobacco which was graded. Sales in the fourth week included a larger percentage of high-grade tobacco and a smaller percentage of low grades. In the fourth week tobacco of the B or leaf group of grades represented 46 per cent of total gradings, as compared with 25 per cent of the third week and 3 per cent the first week. Tobacco of the C or cutter grades represented 27 per cent in the fourth week, 31 per cent the third week, and 29 per cent the first week. Tobacco of the X or lugs groups, represented 27, 44 and 68 per cent, respectively, for the same weeks.

Higher Grades Slump Most.

The greatest decline in price occurred in the higher grades which are comprising a larger and larger percentage of the total sales. The average price in the B group during the fourth week was $18.60 per 100 pounds, as compared with $20.85 the third week and $24.60 the first week. C grades, which have not changed much in their per cent of total sales, have not changed much in price. Their average price in the fourth, third and first weeks, respectively, were $23, 23.30 and $22 per 100 pounds. Lugs, or X grades, have averaged $14.55, $15.45 and $12.30 per 100 pounds, respectively, for the fourth, third and first weeks of the market.

Tobacco graded under the Federal-State grading servcie has sold for higher prices than ungraded tobacco during each week of the market, the average advance in price by weeks ranging from $1.40 to $2.10 per 100 pounds.

Powell Roberts, in charge of booth construction, reported that the booths will be in shape for the merchants not later than Friday. Jones Cox, general chairman, stated that many organizations are cooperating with the legion in the undertaking, the proceeds of which will go toward the fund being raised for the restoration and furnishing of historic Gadsby's Tavern as a permanent memorial to the World War dead of Alexandria and as clubrooms for the legion and its auxiliary.

The work of restoration of the building is progressing rapidly, and it is expected the interior work will be completed by October 1. It will be thrown open to tourists soon thereafter.

Father Quinn will be succeeded here by the Rev. Thomas E. Mitchell, of Holy Cross Church, Lynchburg. Father Mitchell was stationed in Alexandria about two years ago, as assistant pastor of St. Mary's Church.

The first autumn meeting of the local Daughters of the Confederacy Chapter will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock in Lee Camp Hall, with Mrs. Charles W. Howell, president, presiding. Delegates will be selected to attend the annual State convention to be held in Wytheville in October.

INDUSTRIAL SURVEY OF COUNTY READY

Virginia Polytechnic School Has Made 10 Such Publications.

OTHERS ARE TO COME

Blacksburg, Va., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Publication of an industrial survey of Washington County by the engineering division of Virginia Polytechnic Institute today brings the number of such surveys already completed to ten. Field work for four others has been accomplished also and will become available in printed form within the next few weeks. This work was started last fall.

The survey of Washington County is contained in a 72-page booklet and is typical of the others issued in that data; are published under six main divisions: General information, such as settlement and formation, population and highways; present industrial development; primary economic factors in plant location, such as natural and timber resources, labor, power, transportation and market facilities; secondary factors, such as local government and taxation, banking facilities and health protection; civic protection; civic refinements, and general business data.

Although Bristol is located in Washington County, for the purpose of this bulletin it was not considered. Exclusive of the Bristol area, Washington County has 25 industrial concerns of which 14 are in Abingdon, 5 in Damascus, 2 in Glade Spring and 1 each in Lodi, Clinchburg, Emory and Plasterco. The report shows that these inndustries are diversified.

The bulletin also shows that there are 238 retail and wholesale businesses in the county, employing 460 persons, with an annual pay roll of $395,054, a capital investment of $1,303,575, and a business total of $5,423,950.

An outline of the map of the county, several pictures and numeerous tables complete the bulletin. Other surveys already printed include Wytheville, Tazewell, North Tazewell, Suffolk, Giles County, Montgomery County and City of Radford, Bedford, Wise County, Carroll County and Grayson County.

The work of making the industrial surveys is under the direction of Reuben L. Humbert, executive secretary of V. P. I., and assistant professor of economics. He is assisted by members of the engineering extension division of which Maj. R. B. H. Begg, professor of civil engineering, is director.

DEAREST GENEVIEVE:

Although it is far from clever to begin a letter with a mention of the weather, it is what we have so much of, just now, that a mention, at least is inevitable. Cheer up, dearie, it will not last forever, so you may as well proceed with your plans for a fall wardrobe. The autumn styles have now crystallized quite dependably, and our local shops are ready with the latest and best of everything.

An Apartment With A Roof Garden

—is a possibility if you know where to look for it. The Cavalier, 3500 14th street, has a large roof garden for a children's playground and for a cool recreation spot for the grown-up guests, too. This has been an enjoyable feature all summer.

The Cavalier has hotel service and hotel comforts and conveniences, and yet has apartments from one to six rooms, which give a large latitude for choice. The apartments from one to three rooms may be had furnished, but the larger apartments are unfurnished.

Mr. Mifflin Blackistone, the resident manager, says that the Cavalier has so many advantages that it is hard to cite them all. He asked me to mention the unlimited parking space available, and the good cafe.

C. C. Drake Travel Bureau Arranges

—everything about your world tour, or your trip to Europe, with equal facility and dispatch. The delightful part about having the Drake Travel Bureau arrange your sailings and hotel reservations is that you not only save money that way, but you have the satisfaction of knowing you are on the best boats, and enjoying the best hotel accommodations. Then, too, you are relieved of all the responsibility of doing things yourself.

Miss Elizabeth Persons, who has managed European tours for a number of years, is managing director of the C. C. Drake Travel Bureaus in Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. She will be in the Washington Bureau all this week in The Willard Hotel. Go in to see her.

As a Last Farewell to Summer

—you should have some lovely outdoor pictures made at Underwood & Underwood's. I happened to think of it as I was passing the studio yesterday, and stopped as usual to see the pictures in the window. You will enjoy seeing them, too, so do stop by. In the center hanging, is a large picture which is a perfect study—somebody's dear old grandmother seated in an old-fashioned rocker in the midst of a pretty garden. Other pictures in frames shown in the window, are of adorable children in outdoor settings. How charming such pictures look at any time, but particularly when summer has gone, and we have only the memories until another season.

Not many days remain when you can have outdoor garden pictures made with good effect. Gardens are beautiful now, with their autumn blooms, and with some of the leaves beginning to turn the least bit. While the children are robust and browned from summer suns, have their pictures made in an appropriate setting. Telephone Underwood & Underwood and make your appointment today. Decatur 4100.

Due to the Warm Weather

—Martin's, 1317 Connecticut Avenue, have decided to continue their reduced price event for some time further. You may remember my telling you several weeks ago that Martin's wonderful collection of lamps and shades were on sale at greatly reduced prices. Since a number of these designs remain, Mr. Martin thought best to sell them out at attractively lowered prices (as a hot weather shopping inducement) in order to make room for the new things which are coming in every day from European ports.

If you are familiar with the sort of china and glass and lovely objects of art found in Martin's you will know what to expect in the way of objects which are reduced in price. Truly, I believe, the shop has never had anything in it of any kind except perfectly exquisite creations. So, when you have a chance to buy at lowered prices you are facing a real opportunity.

You will be interested just now, too, in the green and crystal glass, which is so effective in hot weather. Martin's window showed yesterday a beverage set of crystal trimmed in green— a covered bowl on a tray and a dozen cups. I think it was a sherbet set.

Affectionately,

Meet an old friend— SUGAR

There are many facts about sugar that many people do not know

Ask most people about sugar and they are likely to think of sweet desserts. That is an important part of sugar, certainly. Scientists recommend some sweet and satisfying dessert at the end of a meal.

Then some would think of sugar as a sweetener of other foods such as tart fresh fruits and berries, fruit juices, cereals, etc. Sugar is very useful as a sweetener. Scientists tell us that many very useful foods would be almost unpalatable without sugar.

In addition to all of that, however, sugar has so many other uses that it may well be considered the foundation of good cookery. Cooking authorities explain to us that sugar modifies some flavors, intensifies others, and even develops delicate flavors that otherwise might not be tasted at all. This makes a dash of sugar useful in cooking vegetables, in preparing salad dressings, meat sauces and gravies, and many meat dishes.

Sugar even improves the texture of many foods. The right amount of sugar makes cakes tender and light. A proper addition of sugar helps to make breads light. Too little sugar used in making jelly necessitates over-cooking, impairs flavor and gives a rough texture. In beating egg-whites the right amount of sugar helps the beaten egg to hold air and remain firm and stiff.

To remove sugar from the kitchen would be to make our diet almost completely bland and unappetizing. Sugar is the supreme flavorer that makes eating the right foods delightful. Pleasure in eating makes living more enjoyable. The Sugar Institute.

Fans Hear Dempsey on Air Tonight

Corbett Also Will Be in Sketch at Same Time Over WRC in Big Hook-up; Herbert Waltzes to Broadcast at WMAL.

The voices of two of the greatest boxers the world has ever known, both of them former world's champions, will be heard over a coast-to-coast network of National Broadcasting Co. stations during the Radio-Keith-Orpheum hour at 9:30 o'clock.

Jack Dempsey and James J. Corbett are the speakers and their voices will be picked up and broadcast from Milwaukee, where the two former champions are playing in an K-K-O theater. The pick-up from Milwaukee is expected to take place during the last half hour of the program.

Graham McNamee will be the master of ceremonies and the other artists to appear will be Bobbe Arnst, musical comedy ingenue, who will be heard as soloist and with Jay Velie in a vocal duet, and the harmony singers, Yates and Lawley.

What the War Department is doing for aviation will be told by F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for aeronautics since 1926 and a flier of war-time experience during the "Roads of the Sky" series at 6 o'clock from WRC.

Mr. Davison learned to fly while serving in the United States Navy Air Service during the World War and has been actively engaged in aeronautics ever since. He is largely responsible for the development of the War Department's activities in aviation, as Assistant Secretary of the Department in charge of aeronautics in the Cabinets of Presidents Coolidge and Hoover.

He has flown to all parts of the country on executive inspection tours and is well acquainted with developments in air transport operations as well as the Government's work in building up a strong line for national aerial defense.

Incidental music in the Roads of the Sky program will depict the days when bicycles and horse-drawn vehicles played a prominent part in transportation.

Interpretive of this modern age of jazz is the collection of Broadway hits which will be broadcast through WRC during the Prophylactic program at 7:30 o'clock. A male trio will assist the orchestra directed by Victor Arden in the following program:

"Believe It or Not," orchestra and trio; 'Singin' in the Rain" and "The Hollywood Revue"; "Ain't Misbehavin'" from "Hot Chocolates"; "The World's Greatest Sweetheart Is You"; selections from "Tell Me More," Gershwin; "In a Little Spanish Town," orchestra; "Little Jazz Bird," from "Lady, Be Good," Gershwin, trio; "Egyptian Echoes," Black; "Nobody's Sweetheart," "City of Dreams"; "I Want To Be Happy"; "Shanghai Gesture," and "Swanee."

A popular program of dance music and light orchestral selections will be broadcast during the Eveready hour at 8 o'clock. Quartet numbers, piano ensembles and solos augment the program offered by the orchestra under the direction of William F. Virges.

"Harbor Lights" and a dance orchestra will round out WRC's day on the air.

After a six months' absence from the broadcasting studios, Rudy Wiedoeft, saxophonist, will return to the radio audience to present two new saxophone compositions, when the C. A. Earl Orchestra is heard at 7:30 o'clock through WJZ. Since he was last heard on the air Wiedoeft has been recuperating from an accident in which he broke his leg, near his home in Flatbush, last spring. During his illness he composed two pieces, "Bitter Sweet" and "Valse Pamela," which he will introduce for the first time in this program.

A group of Victor Herbert waltzes—"Angelus," "Kiss Me Again," "Falling in Love With Some One" and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life"—will be played during the Old Gold-Paul Whiteman Hour, to be broadcast at 8 o'clock from WMAL. Bing Crosby, contralto; Jack Fulton, tenor; the Old Gold Trio and the Ponce Sisters will also be heard during this period.

The Fada Orchestra, under the direction of David Mendoza, will present an all-request program at 9 o'clock. Included will be the overture to "Cavalleria Rusticana," and "Aida."

"There will be no jazz interpretation of the classics on this request program," declares Mr. Mendoza, "since it is plainly apparent the public knows its classical music and demands it be played as written, not in the more up-to-date manner. I feel this particular program is as nearly ideal as it could be made, from the point of view of the majority of listeners."

Jesse Crawford has arranged the following program for the organ recital at 10 o'clock:

"Light Cavalry," Suppe; Meditation from "Thais," Massenet; "Punchinello," Herbert; "Old Virginia Moon;" and a popular medley.

Assistant Superintendent of Schools Stephen E. Kramer will be heard through WOL at 7 o'clock, when he will make an address to the mothers and fathers of Washington's school children on the importance of the work that is being done by the D. C. Parent-Teachers Congress.

Prices realized on Swift & Co. sales of carcass beef in Washington, D. C., for week ending Saturday, September 7, 1929, for shipments sold out ranged from 18.00 cents to 26.00 cents per pound and averaged 23.86 cents per pound.—Adv.

Watson Talk Will Tell of New Tariff

Senator Will Be Heard on Friday in Half-Hour Address; Countess Albani Entered in Radio Beauty Contest.

Tariff legislation now pending in Congress will be discussed by Senator James Watson, of Indiana, Republican floor leader, in a broadcast through the coast-to-coast network of the National Broadcasting Co., Friday night, September 13. His half hour address will begin at 9 o'clock and will orginate in the studios of WRC.

Senator Watson is recognized as an expert on tariff measures and his judgment is highly regarded in all parts of the country. He has made an exhaustive study of the tariff situation and is said to be the best qualified speaker on the subject in the Senate.

He served as a member of Congress from 1895 to 1897 and again from 1899 to 1909. His senatorial career began in 1916 when he filled the unexpired term of Senator Benjamin Shivley, deceased. He was reelected in 1921 and again in 1927 for the term ending in 1933. He has served as chairman of the interstate commerce committee of the Senate and has been prominent in Republican national conventions.

The address of Senator Watson has been arranged in connection with the policy of the NBC to present internationally known authorities in discussions of matters of first importance to the Nation.

Countess Olga Medolga Albani has been named official entry for the National Broadcasting Co., in the Radio World's Fair "Most Beautiful Feminine Radio Artist in America" contest, it has been announced.

The countess, a native of Barcelona, Spain, has been in radio more than a year, and is now heard regularly in her own program every Sunday night through WEAF. Her voice is soprano.

She has been heard extensively on programs through both WEAF and WJZ and associated stations and in recent months has been identified with the National Light Opera Company and the Evening Stars broadcasts. Several important broadcasts are planned for her during the winter months it is said.

Countess Albani came to radio from the stage, having scored in the Chicago production of "New Moon," a Broadway success of last winter. In addition to her vocal accomplishments, she is credited with being a dramatic actress of no mean ability. Negotiations are now under way for her to make a series of all-Spanish talking motion picture shorts. She is "100 per cent Spanish," although most of her life has been lived in the United States.

Entries for the beauty contest have been received from almost 600 radio stations in as many sections of the United States, according to G. Clayton Irwin, jr., general manager of the Radio World's Fair. The winner is expected to be announced within a week, the selections to be made from photographs alone.

"VIRGO."

IF September 10 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2:30 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to 11:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 a. m. to 11:45 a. m., and from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m.

Any new associations formed on this date are likely to be beneficial from a spiritual standpoint. Your future life may be slightly altered and greatly influenced by the entrance into your life at this time of a new friend from unexpected quarters. Guard against minor ailments!

Children born on this September 10 will have strong common sense, and will have firm ideas and opinions. They will have an insatiable desire to see the world, and will feel at home wherever they are located. They will never be asleep when opportunities knock at their doors.

You have a highly sensitive disposition, which inclines toward the side of caution. You rein yourself in too tightly and undervalue your capabilities and talents. Although you lack courage in many things, you can be very determined in connection with some battle for principle or for right, which you believe it your duty to carry out. You will fight for others when you will not stick up for your own rights.

Prejudice plays an active part in your life, and often prevents you from trying or doing things. It strongly colors your likes and dislikes—it makes you very partisan.

You instinctively read character, and for this reason "see through" people too easily to be really happy. It would be better for your own contentment of mind if you were sometimes a little blind. You feel the truth about things too strongly to become fooled by any fairy illusions.

You have great fidelity and loyalty if trust is imposed on you, and you conscientiously carry out any work which has been placed in your hands to perform. Your efforts seldom meet with failure, but you are afraid to let yourself assume as large responsibilities as you are able to carry. You have never given your talents a fair test.

Wives of Tomorrow

SILVER LININGS.

ARE there really silver linings to the clouds that blow way? Is there really sunshine ready to smile upon us after rain? Is there really always a safe port waiting for our little bar after the stormy sea of life has just about swallowed us up?

It would be good at times to know for sure that safe harbor waited, sun was shining somewhere and that the worst trouble passes some time, leaving all serene again. That's why we are offering Teresa's letter. If you are going through some of the troubles she has known—take heart. All is well with her again—and all will be well with you.

Dear Miss McDonald: I fell in love at 20 and married. At 24 my first child was born (a girl) and my joy was unspeakable. Girls in my family were scarce and she was a perfect joy.

Business reverses came shortly after and I knew bitter want, which made me ill and nervous. I thought things would never come right again.

Two years and a half of this agony and more worry—another little one arrived. Almost at once came a wonderful position and great happiness. Eight year of faithful service to employers and a brilliant future. Happiness reigned for sure. Our home was a place of laughter and innocent fun, hubby, kiddies and myself.

Suddenly came sickness and our little girl winged her way to heaven. Clouds gathered again fast. More sickness, operations, anxious hours spent in hospitals and nurses and doctors at home. After this back to normal again, all well, but saddened by the loss of our little one, but bearing it together, hubby cheerful for my sake and I cheering up for his sake. Peace and calm.

Then, like lightning from a clear sky, came a false accusation from his employers of theft, of which he was as innocent as our little one in heaven. Disgrace, loss of position and friends and then years of sickness on my part, hubby standing by, giving his blood for transfusion that I might live, and God answered his prayer, as I recovered miraculously from what was said to be certain death. Now the sun shines again. It always seems to if you hold to each other!

People who know what we have gone through wonder that we can laugh and enjoy one another and our four bright, intelligent youngsters, in ages from 5 years up to 13, but we do. We hope to be spared for many years, whatever the future may hold of cloud or sunshine. TERESA.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

WET BOOZE AND DRY BOOZE.

AT a recent meeting of New England physicians there was a discussion of certain phases of the liquor question. One physician, in charge of a sanitarium for alcoholics, expressed his opinion that the situation was about as bad as it was prior to the World War. He thought this was largely due to the loss of the art of drinking. As a rule now the booze is stronger and less pure and, the supply being irregular, the drinker puts his bottle away in a very few sittings. The men who come into the sanitarium are those who drink all the bottle holds in a few drinks and then try to get rid of the Katzenjammer by drinking anything they can get their hands on.

C. D. Howard contributes many facts as to the quality of liquor available. The most dangerous ingredient in the whisky and gin of the present day is the grain alcohol itself. In the old days whisky and gin were synthetically made as they are now, but in that day the manufacturer compounded a mixture of 70 per cent water and 30 per cent alcohol, some caramel and some flavor and called it whisky, gin or rum according to the order. The whisky of the present day is a catch as catch can dilution of alcohol. In some cases as much as 80 per cent alcohol has been found. Naturally, the consumer does not know how to gauge his dose.

The second most important danger arises from the wide use of recovered denatured alcohol. Canned heat is a source of considerable danger. It is about 80 per cent alcohol, of which about 4 per cent is wood alcohol, with 2 per cent nitrocellulose and some water. It is easy to squeeze out the nitrocellulose and get a clear liquid that is about 80 per cent alcohol, and which contains a fair proportion of wood alcohol. Canned heat should be labeled dangerous, but in such a way as to reveal the alcohol danger but without alarming those who use it for legitimate purposes.

The danger ranking third in importance comse from the use of cooked denatured alcohols. In most of the preparations diethylphlhatate and isoprophyl alcohol are now used to denoture. These substances are not poisonous in the amounts commonly consumed, but the products which result from cooking are apt to be unpleasant in taste and harmful. Under certain circumstances they are dangerous.

A source of considerable danger is the use of bay rum, cologne and other substances for the purpose of continuing a jag. Wood alcohol is one of the most dangerous of all beverages. However, grain alcohol, which contains less than 6 per cent wood alcohol is no more dangerous than grain alcohol without the addition. The people who are knocked out by wood alcohol have been drinking it straight or else they have diluted it, but not enough.

The old notions about aldehydes he pronounced bunk. It is true aldehydes are poisonous, but not in the proportions found in whiskies. A green whisky contains less aldehydes than does a fine old aged in bond whisky. The fine flavor of rich, rare whiskies are due to harmful substances, but the dose is small. The amount of fusel oil in whisky is too small to be dangerous. The amount of copper in whisky is of no consequence.

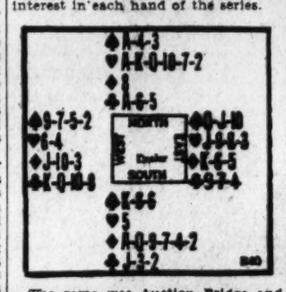
WORK ON BRIDGE

Milton C. Work, the world's pre-eminent authority on Auction and Contract Bridge, free. This valuable pamphlet, containing concise suggestions for players of both games, will be sent with the compliments of this paper to readers of Mr. Work's articles who request it. Requests must be addressed to Milton C. Work, care of this paper, and must include a stamped (2c stamp) self-addressed return envelope. Read Mr. Work's articles on Auction and Contract, Everyday exclusively in The Post.

PARTNERS WHO HAVE SADDENED MY LIFE.

TODAY we begin a series of deals in which partner has proved disappointing—one each day from Tuesday to Saturday. Both Auction and Contract will be illustrated, but the play in the two games is generally the same, so every reader should find interest in each hand of the series.



The game was Auction Bridge and I, sitting South (dealer), bid one Diamond. West passed, and my partner (North) bid one Heart, which obtained the contract. (In Contract Bridge the bidding would have been: South one Diamond, West pass, North four Hearts.)

East led the Queen of Spades and my partner won the trick in the closed (North) hand so as to keep my King of Spades as an entry. He next led three rounds of trumps, hoping to exhaust the adversaries; but as he might have expected, their trumps were divided 4-2 and East had a good one remaining. He then led his singleton Diamond and won with my Ace, after which he led back a small Diamond, which he trumped, hoping to drop the King and make by Queen good. When the King did not fall, my hand was dead except for the King of Spades. We lost one Spade, one Heart and two Clubs.

The Correct Play.

The sad part of this hand was that my partner took a remote chance of winning game and ignored an even chance. The chance of finding King-x of Diamonds in an adverse hand, and four Diamonds in the other was remote; as neither adversary had bid, the chance of finding the King in the East hand was even. Therefore my Queen (not my ace) should have been played on the Diamond Eight when East played small.

If this Diamond finesse had been tried and West had held the King, the trick would have been lost but North still could have obtained a discard on my Ace; with the Queen winning (as it would have) leading the Ace and another Diamond would have cleared the suit and, after another trump lead had taken out East's remaining trump, my Spade King would have put me in to cash my remaining Diamonds. This would have resulted in game, with tricks to spare.

JEWS CLAIM ARABS SELL POISON FRUITS

Merchant Held When Woman Is Stricken Ill After Eating Grapes.

MOST OF COUNTRY QUIET

Jerusalem, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Jewish sources today reported scattered disorders of a minor character, but official statements were that all Palestine was quiet.

Most serious of the Jewish charges was that Arab fruit dealers had poisoned goods sold to Jews. A woman was said to have been made ill by eating grapes sold by an Arab merchant. He was arrested in Jaffa and the remainder of the grapes sent to the health department for examination. Other instances were reported.

These poison tales intensified the boycott which Jews have sustained against Arab dealers since the rioting between the two races broke out. As a result, the Jewish Telegraphic Agency reported that Jewish housewives were finding great difficulty in procuring provisions and several Arab farming communities complained that they were suffering extremely from the boycott. The leading Jewish hotel in Jerusalem was able to serve only rice at one meal.

Uneasiness of feeling between the two communities was added to by an attack on a Jewish policeman outside Haifa. He was seriously wounded. The Jewish Telegraphic Agency reported shooting last night in the suburb Givath Shaul, as the result of which several Jewish families abandoned their homes today.

Jews of Acre, except for 48 who were under arrest, were reported by the agency today to have abandoned the town in favor of Haifa. Several Jews had been stoned there. It was said that those arrested were taken when they met to organize for self-defense.

The agency also reported 22 Jews under arrest for possessing arms in Jerusalem, Jaffa and Tel Aviv. A special committee has been appointed by the Jewish Agency for reconstruction work which will expend the $400,000 already available.

IN THE PLAY HOUSE

By DON B. REED.

POLI'S—"Luckee Girl," a musical comedy adapted by Gertrude Purcell from the French "Un Bon Garcon," by Andre Barde and Maurice Yvain, starring Bill House. Music by Maurice Yvain. Presented by the Messrs. Shubert.

Billy House, a roly-poly comedian of 300 pounds of solid mirth, with a smile that swept away your frowns and with a voice that combined qualities from Jolson, Ted Lewis and Eddie Cantor, rolled onto the stage of Poli's Theater last night, strutted his stuff and left an opening night audience near hysterics over his unusual ability.

It matters not what the name of the show. "Luckee Girl" is just as good a title as any. If a show had Billy House in it, it would be a show built to chase the blues, straighten out the wrinkles in your forehead and make you forget the heat. He simply "wowed" 'em last night, and if he works as hard every night as he did to please the Poli's first nighters, he'll soon be down to fighting limit.

"Luckee Girl" gets away to a slow start because House doesn't crash into the thing until the prologue has been disposed of and that first act is well under way. When he does, the fun starts, and all he has to do from then on is to make an appearance to put the show across. His comedy is clean, snappy and of the type that I judge varies with each performance depending entirely upon the reception given this robust giggle-snatcher, who rollicked and clowned his way through the piece as though he were a debutante on an eighteen-day diet.

Not that House did not have a lot of capable support in his comedy antics. Helen LaVonne in the feminine lead was good to look upon, sang and danced well and put a lot of enthusiasm into her work. Helen Fables snared dancing laurels with a series of ballet and "hot" steps, while Doris Vinton proved delightful, whether singing, dancing or enacting a difficult role as one of three maidens involved in affairs of the heart.

Lou Powers furnished considerable assistance to House through his efforts to "fix" things in the play. Frank Gallagheer's voice, personality and histrionic ability all won instant approval, as did the work of Bob Lively. Throughout the piece, the Four Diplomats, singers and musicians of note, wandered in and out playing and warbling, with no little added effect.

As far as the story is concerned, not much ned be said. Any old story would do with House clownnig around. The big fellow starts in as a waiter and winds up as one of three bridegrooms. He sold himself thoroughly to the Capital when he "Slown Down," written by himself, and his chatter accompanying his rendition of "Laugh the Clouds Away," also his own composition, simply crowned him as one of the most amusing comedy stars to appear here in a long, long while.

"Slow Down" and "Laugh the Clouds Away' 're far above the average of popular music, while "Hold Your Man" was another red-hot number which ought to be whistled and hummed plenty in the next few days. Miss Fables sang it well and put it across in splendid style.

As on many opening nights, there were numerous rough edges for the production. Billy House, master showman that he is, covered these little erors wiht a technique that appealed to every one. As he put it, "things always go wrong when the critics are present." But nothing could go wrong with this big boy in action. Poli's stage could have collapsed or the Potomac could have flooded all downtown Washington, and with House n igood form, the show would have succeeded.

Chorus numbers in the show were excellent but a little too frequent Most of the music was snappy enough and the entire company seemed a compact unit, likely to furnish theater-goers with many an entertaining evening before the season gets far along.

Others in the cast include Gertrude and Dorothy McGushion, dancing sisters; Marie Pittman, Bill McKinley, Maude Allan, Clifford Smith, Isabelle Vernon, Clarence Harvey and the four Diplomats, Andy Hamilton, Hal Saliers Johnny Ferrara and Lenny Nelson.

Modern Art Seen In Footwear Shop

New Connecticut Avenue Salon Follows Paris Manner.

The first chance Washingtonians have had to view a local shop done in Art Moderne was given them yesterday when Artcraft Footwear opened its handsome new salon on Connecticut avenue at L street.

The entrance, in dark marble and bronze, is flanked on either side by small oblong alcoves of glass, which serve as miniature windows in the manner of the exclusive avenues of Paris. The entire corner is of glass, making the interior of the shop entirely visible to the promenader.

The interior is paneled in rosianna, purty shade and gold, with full-length mirrors set flat in the wall in futuristic frames of walnut. Chandeliers and sconces are in the modern manner. There are deep, comfortable divans in colors to keep the harmony of the general scheme.

Mr. Kramer, the manager of Artcraft Footwear, who returned from New York in time for yesterday's opening, said that in opening this new branch in Connecticut avenue he is responding to a need which his patronage has indicated for some time. The original shop on F street will continue as usual.

GARBER IS FINED $5 IN CONTEMPT CASE

tion—ledger, day book, journal and bank books—it developed today, were delivered to Keezell late last Saturday. Keezell declined to accept or refuse the books until he could consult counsel. The books, therefore, remained wrapped in a package in the treasurer's office until the hearing today.

Garber, in a statement read to the court today, declared the books in question were not the original entry books of the office and if he in any way violated the court's order and the State law by taking the books from the county treasurer's office or to make settlement with the State accountant, he did so unintentionally and tendered an apology to the court.

Keezell, on the witness stand, declared he had made numerous requests of Garber to turn over the books in question, as they were needed in the proper conduct of the office. He said he resorted to court action, asking the court to cite Garber for contempt of the order, only as a last resort. He denied the allegation of Garber, as stated in a newspaper interview after the filing of the petition, that his action was prompted by "political motives."

MARY DELLA

A Serial Story

By JULIE ANNE MOORE.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO.

The C. E. related to the superintendent of police all he knew about the Red Mask murder, which, for the most part, was what Mary Della and Robert had told him. And he had the satisfaction of knowing that the superintendent accepted Mary Della's version of the murder.

"But there's one thing you ought to do, Ray," the superintendent said as the C. E. prepared to leave his office. "You know this 'Snake' Womain we've got here for slugging a man out in Waterville?"

"We had a story on it when he was arrested," the C. E. reminded him.

"Well, he admits the charge in that case, all right, but we got him on that by accident. We've collected a good deal of evidence that would indicate he's the Red Mask."

"No! You've been holding out on us, too, haven't you? And all the time we thought we had all the dirt on our side."

"The cigars are on you," the superintendent declared. "But I started to suggest that you bring this young woman over and let her have a look at Womain. She might be able to identify him."

"That's an idea," the C. E. agreed. "Sure, I'll have her come over after she gets home from work tonight. That be O. K.?"

"Fine. And you can tell her that she'll be asked no questions. If she recognizes Womain, she can just say so; if she doesn't——"

"She'll say yes or no in a minute," the C. E. declared. "And if Womain's the Red Mask, she'll be all set to go into court when you're ready for her I can promise you that."

"That's fair enough. Will you stop by the desk on your way out and leave word for McMullen to come in? He'll be waiting when you bring your friend in tonight."

* * * *

Joe Speaks, having gotten off with costs in city court, was returned to the superintendent's office and, after a few more questions, was given his liberty.

Within an hour he had his car out once more and at 12 o'clock was parked on Clock avenue waiting for the crowd to parade by. Joe was not at all sure what he wanted to do or how he would do it, but his one purpose was to talk to Mary Della. The mental suffering he had prepared for her at the police station was not enough. That note he had found in his car after taking her to the shop more than a week before he had immediately recognized as of first importance, but he had thought to flash it on her after the Hamilton Parr dance.

Denied that opportunity when he was arrested, developments had been far more satisfactory than he could possibly have hoped for. He knew now that Mary Della had written the mysterious note to the police, that it was she who had been parked on the Cheshire road when the Hicks girl was murdered, and that the information he had given the superintendent of police would involve her in more difficulties than she was likely to get out of in a hurry.

But he had an uneasy feeling about the newspaper man the superintendent had dragged into the conference. Plainly, he was in possession of additional information; information, perhaps, that would save Mary Della from the trap he had laid for her.

At all events, he would see Mary Della, and if he could get her into the car.

But the girls from the shop hurried by and Mary Della was not among them.

And then he caught sight of Olga Svenson, alone. She was the last to come out of the shop gate.

"Lo, Olga," he called, leaning over the door.

Olga was reading a letter, but she looked up quickly.

"Hello, Joe. Waiting for Mary Della?"

"Hardly," Joe lied. "I'm waiting for you. Hop in."

Olga hesitated. "Where you going, Joe?"

"Anywhere you say," Joe replied, generously. "It's too nice to be inside. Want to take a little ride? I'll have you back before 1 o'clock."

Olga got into the car and slammed the door behind her.

"It is nice out," she declared. "You sure Mary Della won't get sore if she sees me riding with you?"

"Never mind about her. Notice how high hat she's got lately? There's a reason."

"No, I hadn't noticed," Olga replied, suspicious. "What'd she do, give you the air?"

"The woman aint living that can give me the air, Olga."

They turned into North Main street and drove north.

Joe hadn't been quite certain how he would use Olga in his play when he invited to go for a ride, but as they rode along now he saw an excellent opportunity for spreading the news about Mary Della's part in the Red Mask mystery. Olga was a woman and any woman, he believed, would work overtime passing scandal about another woman, if she had a chance.

"You know, Olga," he said, as they bumped along the Lakewood road, "I can put up with a lot in a woman, but the one thing I won't stand for is a double-crossing cheater."

"No?" said Olga. "Who's been cheating on you, Joe?"

"I'll get to that," Joe snapped. "But as I was saying, a double-crosser and a cheater ain't my kind. Now, I don't tie myself down to any woman, and I tell 'em all as much. I go with any girl I happen to go with, but it ain't a secret. Mary Della knows that. She knows I haven't been running around with anybody as much as I have with her, but she knows I wouldn't hide it if I had."

"What's all this leading to, Joe?"

"Well, take Mary Della. She always tried to make me think she was stuck on me and wouldn't go out with anybody else unless it was O. K. with me. See? And I trusted her, Olga. I thought she was a square-shooter and I'd of knocked anybody's block off that said Mary Della would sneak off and park with some bozo I didn't know nothing about."

Olga cleared her throat. "I never saw her out with anybody else but Timmy Fitzmoan," she declared.

"Oh, don't tell me about that little rat. I never did lose any sleep over him. I don't like him, understand, and I'll probably break his neck if I ever get a chance, but that's because he's a dirty, throat-cutting polecat that's so low he won't even use his right name. But——"

"You can't hold that against him, Joe," Olga interrupted. "Lots of people change their names, specially foreign names that nobody can pronounce."

"Oh, yeah?" said Joe, irritably. "Well, it don't matter, see? The only reason Mary Della went with him was because I wasn't around to take her to the dances. I never did get sore about that. Mary Della's been running around with another bird. I don't know who he is, but if I ever find out——"

"Funny I never did hear anything about it," Olga remarked quietly.

"Well, you wouldn't. Nor me, either."

A short distance ahead the road crossed the car track and ran up to the entrance of the now defunct park.

"How about turning around here, Joe?" Olga asked suddenly. "I've got to eat yet."

Joe applied the brakes and looked at his watch.

"Oh, all right," he said irritably. "But I got something to wise you up to on the way back."

He backed the car on to the car tracks and started toward the city once more.

"You know, Olga," he said, affecting a confidential tone, "I'm a friend of yours, and there's something I want to tell you for your own good."

Olga was an attentive listener.

"I see you out once in a while with Mary Della and that Bobbin girl and I guess you think they're all right; but I'm going to tell you something about Mary Della that you ought to know. And after that, if you hang out with her, it's your own lookout.

"I was telling you a while ago," Joe resumed, "about Mary Della cheating on me. Well, you know how I found out? She dropped a letter right there where your feet are one day and I got hold of it and did some deep thinking about some other thing that looked fishy to me, and after awhile it come to me that Mary Della was the broad that wrote the note to the coppers about the Red Mask murder."

"You're a fool, Joe Speaks!" Olga declared angrily.

"Oh no, I'm not. Mary Della was parked out on the Cheshire road with some skunk when the Red Mask did his dirt and she couldn't keep it to herself. She wrote the coppers, and she wrote it on a piece of paper she tore from that letter I found in the car."

"What's got into you, Joe," Olga demanded. "You know that's a lie. I didn't think you'd pass out dirt like that just because your girl was sore at you."

The car was coasting easily down North Main street toward the Center.

"You don't have to take my word for it," Joe assured her. "Go ask the police. They got the note she sent and the letter I found in the car, and they fit. And another thing: they already got it straight from somebody else that Mary Della was the one that wrote the note.

"Understand, I'm not telling this to everybody, but I like you and I don't want to see you get in bad following Mary Della around. You take it from me, she's mixed up in that murder. It wouldn't surprise me any if it turned out she was parking with the Red Mask himself that night. Not a bit."

The car came to a stop at the east end of the Green to wait for the traffic light, and Olga pushed the door open and jumped out. Then she faced about and put her hand on the top edge of the door.

"I don't believe a word you're saying, Joe," she declared, not unpleasantly. "But anything's possible and if I find out you're right, why—well, I'll thank you for tipping me off, I guess. But I don't believe it unless Mary Della herself says it's so."

"That suits me," Joe replied casually. "You ask her, and if she admits it——"

"If she admits it," said Olga, "the treat's on me."

Joe grinned. "Fair enough. And the treat'll be a nice ride out in the country Wednesday night with a little loving thrown in. O.K.?"

"Sure," said Olga, contemplating Joe's classic features. She turned to the sidewalk.

When Mary Della entered the police station a little before 6 o'clock that evening, with C. E., Inspector McMullen was leaning against the grating before the desk talking to the officer on duty. He led them to a large room on the second floor, saw that they were seated, and went out again.

"He's going to bring Womain in and ask him if he's ever seen either of us before," the C. E. explained. "Look him over good and make up your mind if he could have been the fellow in the red mask on the Cheshire road that night. You'll have to think fast, because he won't be in here but a minute."

"Thinking fast is what I've been doing nothing else but for weeks," Mary Della declared.

She had hardly finished speaking when the door opened again and the detective entered with a tall, shallow-chested individual, who looked as if he hadn't been shaved in months.

"Recognize these people?" the detective asked.

Womain gazed at Mary Della and the C. E. as if he were inspecting a pair of strange insects.

"Naw," he drawled. "What they in for?"

Suddenly the detective whipped something out of his pocket and clapped it over the man's eyes. It was a red mask.

"Look again," commanded the detective.

"That don't help none," Womain declared truthfully.

"All right, that's all." McMullen put the mask back in his pocket and led his prisoner out into the hall, pulling the door shut after him.

The C. E. turned to Mary Della expectantly. "What's the verdict?"

Mary Della smiled, snickered, and finally laughed outright.

"If he's the Red Mask, I'm your grandma," she declared. "He's at least five inches taller than the man I saw on the Cheshire road. He's thin; the Red Mask was a little heavy. This man's got a little color in his cheeks; the Red Mask's face was white, as white as that wall there. Oh, he's impossible!"

"Anyway," said the C. E., a trace of disappointment in his voice, "we know now we've got to look somewhere else for the murderer."

"But where?"

"I'm sure I don't know. But maybe we'll think of something when we get together Wednesday evening. You haven't forgotten about the conference, have you?"

"Hardly," Mary Della replied. "I wonder," she added, "if we could meet in this room instead of at my house. I'm not afraid of this place now that I've been it in. And * * * you see, I haven't told my folks anything about my part in the mystery yet, and I'd just as soon not worry 'em."

"I think that's a much better plan," the C. E. agreed, "and now ——"

The detective entered and held the door for them as they passed out.

"It's no good, Mac," the C. E. said in an undertone. "She's positive Womain isn't the man."

The detective uttered something under his breath. "Well," he said aloud, "we've got plenty on this bird to keep him out of trouble for awhile anyhow. Come again when we've got more customers."

Today's True Detective Story

Mystery of the Cipher Message.

By VANCE WYNN

WHEN the Spanish-American War was declared, Chief Wilkie, of the United States Secret Service, had his most trusted operatives on duty in places where something was likely to "break out." They were stationed in Montreal, Toronto, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Newport News, Savannah, Jacksonville, Tampa, Key West, Mobile, New Orleans, Galveston and San Francisco.

Members of the Spanish Embassy received their passports and were told to leave the United States as soon as possible. They did, but one of the officials, Ramon Carranza, naval attache of the embassy, lingered in Toronto. He was constantly shadowed by one of our Secret Service men, and one morning something did "break" in that Canadian city. Chief Wilkie, at his office in Washington, received a telegram which said:

"Young Southerner, Alexander Cree, of Hillsboro, I think, leaves for Washington tonight. My height and build, small dark mustache; black soft felt hat, black sack coat, black sailor tie; somewhat shabby. Evidently served on Brooklyn, has intimate knowledge of naval matters. Just had long interview with naval attache. He is to write to Montreal."

The authorities prepared to give a fitting reception to the young man who had been having a secret conference with the Spanish naval attache. Two men were at the station when the train pulled in and the precise description which had been telegraphed made it easy to identify him.

He first went to the Navy Department, where he transacted what seemed to be routine business. After that he had supper at a restaurant and then proceeded to his lodgings. He spent hours there reading and writing letters. No move was made to take him into custody. The detectives wanted to catch him in the act of disloyalty. Presently he left his room and came down into the street.

He carried a long, official-looking envelope in his hand, and this he dropped into the letter box at the corner. Then he returned to his room and retired for the night. Little did he realize that a Secret Service man was at his very doorstep during the long hours of the night.

In the meantime, the chief of the Secret Service had made an arrangement with the postmaster by which he was to get possession of the suspected letter. It was recovered early in the morning, and then the experts of the department went to work to decode it—for it was in a strange code. It took time, but eventually it was found to be in what was then known as the Slater code.

It was addressed to F. W. Dicken, 1248 Dorchester street, Montreal. The message was an astonishing one. It read:

"A cipher message has been sent from the Navy Department to San Francisco, directing the cruiser Charleston to proceed to Manila, with 500 men, and machinery to repairs to Dewey. A long cipher received from Dewey at department at 3:30. They are translating it now. Have important news concerning colliers. Newark is at the Norfolk Navy Yard. Shall go to Norfolk soon. Address Norfolk House. (Signed) G. D."

As may be imagined, there were some doing after this letter became known. The information in it was astonishingly correct. The word was sent to the lodgings of Cree and he was arrested. At first he denied everything and then he maintained a sullen silence. In the meantime steps were taken to deport all Spanish officials who could be reached. Through the British Legation the naval attache was compelled to leave Canada. It was found that Cree was a naturalized citizen and a former yeoman on the Brooklyn. A mass of compromising letters were found in his room. He was placed in a cell pending further action by the authorities. Two days after his arrest one of the Secret Service men was sent to get him. When the cell door was opened a shocking sight met the gaze of the messenger.

During the night the young yeoman had hanged himself by means of a towel he found in the cell.

Old President Theater To Become Warehouse

The old President Theater, formerly Kernan's, Eleventh street and Pennsylvania avenue, will be abandoned as a playhouse and used as a warehouse for the storage of exhibits, files, furniture and the like from the Department of Commerce, it was learned yesterday at the Treasury Department.

The property was bought by the Government some time ago in its land acquisition program. The theater was known for many years as Kernan's Lyceum, later the Capitol, and last the President. It has been the scene of many theatrical presentations, as well as lodge meetings, some attended by Presidents.

RIGGS BANK'S STOCK AT NEW HIGH LEVEL

Mounts Up to 597½ While Institution Declares Extra Dividend.

LOANS SHOW INCREASE

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

With its stock mounting to 597½ on the Washington Stock Exchange yesterday, a new high, and gain of 7½ points, Riggs National Bank later in the day declared an extra cash dividend of 2½ per cent.

President Robert V. Fleming, of the bank, stock of which has risen 17½ points in the past week, announced yesterday, following the regular monthly meeting of the board of directors, that they had declared in addition to the regular semiannual dividend of 7½ per cent payable October 15, to stockholders of record September 30, an extra cash dividend of 2½ per cent payable at the same time.

Mr. Fleming said, "The continued growth of the bank and the increase in the capital structure incident to the consolidation with the Farmers & Mechanics National Bank has resulted in earnings of a satisfactory character which justifies declaration at this time of this extra dividend."

He added that business of the bank had been highly satisfactory and that foreseeing the tight money situation, the bank had prepared itself; the result being an ability to care for all requirements. Earnings he explained had been very satisfactory and the bank is running ahead in deposits this year. Other directors held President Fleming's able management as in no small way responsible for the institution's success.

Bristol Myers Sale Approved.

Of similar interest to Washington stockholders was the news that stockholders of Bristol Myers Co., yesterday approved the sale of the business to Drug Inc., for capital stock of the latter which will be distributed to Bristol Myers stockholders in the ratio of one and one-eighth shares of Drug Inc. for each share of Bristol Myers.

Bristol Myers stockholders will also receive a cash dividend of $5 a share and adjusted regular dividends. A very large majority of the stock of Bristol Myers was represented at the meeting and voted unanimously for the sale. Bristol Myers closed at 135 and Drug Inc at 114½.

Bristol Myers stock of the company was never left in the hands of the public prior to May, 1928. It was held by the Bristol and Myers family and very large blocks of the stock were privately owned in Washington.

In May, 1928, J. & W. Seligman & Co. refinanced the company, bought out all of the dormant stock holdings and issued stock to the public at $59 a share. The company showed earnings in 1927 of about $5.25; in 1928, of between $7.50 and $8, and earnings of the present year have been running around $10, which explains the increase in value from $59 to last night's closing at 135.

Reserve Board Statement.

The Federal Reserve Board's condition statement of weekly reporting member banks in 101 leading cities September 4, shows increases for the week of $186,000,000 in loans and investments, $199,000,000 in net demand deposits, $42,000,000 in time deposits and $76,000,000 in borrowings from Federal Reserve banks and a decrease of $26,000,000 in Government deposits.

Loans on securities increased $117,000,000 at all reporting banks. All other loans increased $84,000,000 at all reporting banks, while holdings of United States Government securities declined $8,000,000 and of other securities $7,000,000. Net demand deposits which at all reporting banks were $199,000,000 above the August 28 total, increased in nearly all districts. Time deposits increased $42,000,000 at all reporting banks.

Voting Trust Certificates.

Goldman, Sachs & Co. and Lane, Piper & Jaffray, Inc., announce today voting trust certificates for 128,000 shares of the Cream of Wheat Corporation capital stock. The price is $42.50 per share. The Cream of Wheat Corporation, incorporated under the laws of Delaware in March, 1929, acquired the properties and assets, subject to the liabilities, of Cream of Wheat Co., a North Dakota corporation. The business, an outgrowth of a small flour mill, consists of the processing and sale of "Cream of Wheat," a breakfast cereal.

All of the capital stock of the Cream of Wheat Corporation has been deposited under a ten-year voting trust agreement, the purpose of which is to insure continuity of the same management which has built the business up to its present successful position.

Finds Most Are Honest.

"Most men and women are basically honest," says Leslie C. Harbison, president of the Household Finance Corporation. "That is proved by the fact that all the companies in the 26 States which have a uniform small loan law, companies which lend millions every year in sums of $300 or less, are collecting in full more than 98½ per cent of their loans."

"Sickness, temporary unemployment and the overextension of merchant credits, mostly under the installment-buying plan, are the main reasons for seeking credit stabilization through the small-loan company," said Mr. Harbison. "Due to some situation that can not be or is not foreseen, a salaried home owner becomes involved. He has no credit at the bank—not more than 10 per cent of the people of this class have bank credits—and his only recourse is the small loan, where funds are readily available, without fees or discounts."

F. V. Grayson Honored.

Frank V. Grayson, auditor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland, was selected by the auditors' section of the District of Columbia Bankers Association yesterday to represent it at the associated conference of auditors and comptrollers, national body of which the local section is a member, to be held in connection with the American Bankers Association convention in San Francisco.

The board of governors of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, will hold a meeting at Galesville, Md., Saturday afternoon, where they will be the guests of James A. Soper, Lincoln National Bank, past president of the chapter.

Daniel R. Crissinger, chairman of the executive committee of the F. H. Smith Co., and former governor of the Federal Reserve Board, is on a business trip to Marion, Ohio.

J. P. Ellison has been placed temporarily in charge of the office of Thomas Cook & Son in the Washington Loan & Trust Co. He takes the place of A. R. Morse, who is now in the Orient.

Behind the Screens

With DON B. REED

Although I have not seen the picture, I am informed by W. A. Whitney, of The Post's staff of motion picture reviewers, that Mlle. Maria Falconetti, noted French actress, does a remarkably fine piece of work in "The Passions of Joan of Arc" at the Little. Without the aid of any of the usual scenic splendor, musical accompaniment or special effects which mark most features, this actress dominates the picture and holds her audience through sheer force of her personality. Of that I have no doubt, for in this day and age, when an actress will consent to the sacrifice of her hair, just to make a photoplay, she is all actress.

Somehow, I just can't keep that fellow Al Evans out of this column. Anyway, Sam Rubin, who drops in this office now and then with choice tidbits of news from the front, is the author of the statement that Al ranks Al with the musicians under him. According to Sam, when Mr. Evans swings his baton he knows what it is all about and the boys playing with him know it as well. And I must admit that when Al stepped into the pit to direct this week's musical headlight he looked the part of a real leader.

"Cock-Eyed World," running its second week at the Fox, is only the fifth picture to play that cinema palace for more than seven days. The others were "Paid to Love," "What Price Glory," to which the present film is a sequel; "Seventh Heaven" and "Street Angel."

Gush! Gush! To say nothing of a few weeps. If those in charge of the making of "Say It With Songs" had divided the numbers sung by Al Jolson on the ratio of three "sob" to two "jazz" instead of five "sob" to one "jazz" I might have liked the play better. As it stands, there is just a little too much "heart-rending" for any one who goes to the theater to be entertained. Jolson sings all the songs well, the supporting cast is excellent, but to have those nearby handkerchiefs at three-minute intervals is too much for my sensitive system. Of course, there are thousands who, after seeing "Say It With Songs," will report that they "wept and wept, and had a perfectly gorgeous time," and all these thousands can't be wrong. Maybe I am.

If you want to see that fellow in the red shirt who marched in the Labor Day parade, the Metropolitan and Rialto are showing newsreels which picture the firemen's event in great style.

Speaking of all-star casts for photoplays, "New Orleans Frolic," now in production, will show a notable gathering of film favorites, yet none of them will be playing a starring role. They are Will Rogers, William Collier, sr., Victor McLaglen, Edmund Lowe, George O'Brien, Charles Farrell, Warner Baxter, Walter Catlett, Stepin Fechit, Tom Patricola, Sue Carol, Dixie Lee and Richard Keene. Norman Taurog is directing this story of a minstrel troupe playing along the Mississippi.

Other notes from film headquarters: Loretta Young will play opposite John Barrymore in "The Man," produced by Warner Bros.—Vitaphone. "Tiger Rose" will have Lupe Velez and Monte Blue for the leading characters in this feature, based on Willard Mack's play about the Northwest Mounted Police. Betty Compson will be starred in Warner's "Isle of Escape." Jeanne Eagels and Clive Brook will be teamed in "The Laughing Lady" for Paramount, while Maurice Chevalier is expected back soon by that company to begin work on a new picture following the completion of "The Love Parade."

Just looked out the window and saw Hardie Meakin sweeping the alley in the rear of the Fox. John Irving Fisher must be on his way back.

PERFECT INDUSTRIAL METAL IS FORESEEN

Lighter, Stronger Material May Be Reality in Few Years.

EXPERTS HEAR PROGRESS

Cleveland, Ohio, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—A perfect industrial metal, embodying the properties of all those now in use, is the goal which metallurgists hope to reach in a few more years of research.

The new metal must be stronger than steel, lighter than aluminum, heat-resistant and tough; "in short, a perfect metal for all industrial uses," Dr. Jay Jeffries, president of the American Society for Steel Treating, told the National Metal Congress at the opening of its annual meeting today.

"And that is not just a dream, for research in the last year has brought forth metals that very nearly approach this ideal," Dr. Jeffries said. The greatest progress so far, he explained, has been along the lines of nitrating steel for hard-surfacing and in the development of stainless steel and iron alloys.

"Aluminum and chromium alloys are, of course, coming into greater and greater use," he continued, "and the ultimate all-purpose metal probably will be one of these alloys. The steel industry, however, will not be hurt by the competition of aluminum; rather, it will be helped through the greater use of metal for all purposes."

Dr. Jeffries said there was little to fear from depletion of Lake Superior iron beds.

One of the most interesting discoveries on display at the National Metals Exposition, Dr. Jeffries said, was the cemented tungsten carbide cutting tools, used in high-speed parts cutting. The material is as hard as sapphire and can be easily welded to the tips of steel-cutting tools. The material at present is valued at about $470 a pound.

Beside Dr. Jeffries, today's speakers included G. M. Eaton, Pittsburgh, on "Dilation of Steel During Quenching;" H. B. Knowlton, Fort Wayne, Ind., on "Economical Reuse of Solid Carbonizing Materials;" H. W. McQuaid and O. W. McMullan, Detroit, on "Selection of Case-Hardened Steels for Highly Stressed Gears" Dr. Anson Hayes, Middletown, Ohio; H. G. Keshian, Waterbury, Conn., and W. J. Merten, Pittsburgh.

Men, Gasoline-Bathed, Die, Human Torches

Wink, Tex., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Becoming human torches when gasoline with which they were scrubbing their bodies became ignited, three oil field workers were burned to death in the bath house on the Republic Oil Co.'s lease near here. The dead are Martin Smith, Albert Helms and R. C. Jackson. D. H. Fisher and George Jackson were severely burned.

The men were using the gasoline last night to remove grease from their bodies, their clothing having become saturated with oil while working on a well. A heater in the bath house was believed to have ignited the gasoline.

Detroit, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Rumrunners and coast guardsmen met in the Huron River early today and engaged in a pistol battle, leaving the Government forces in possession of two boats loaded with 550 cases of liquor. No casualties were reported.

BULLS RALLY LATE IN DRIVE ON SHARES

Heavy Losses in Leading Stocks Are Cut Near Market's Closing.

CALL FUNDS 8 PER CENT

New York, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The stock market began the new week rather feebly today, apparently weakened by the vigorous recovery from last Thursday's sharp break. The market skidded about dizzily until the last hour, when it regained some of its poise, as bull forces rallied and drove shorts to cover by a sharp run-up in a few issues. Losses of 5 to 12 points in several leading stocks were practically cut in half, but closing quotations were for the most part emphatically lower.

There was practically nothing in the news of the day or of the week-end to account for the dumping over-board of stocks, but many traders had grown rather nervous over the security of the market's position after the sharp rally late last week, and taking advantage of the prevalent uneasiness, bears were able to send prices rapidly lower. The pace of trading showed but moderate recession from the fast gait set last week, the day's turnover exceeding 4,860,000 shares.

A factor tending to cause retrenchment of speculative positions was the vagueness of the week-end business reviews regarding autumn prospects.

Definite Trends Awaited.

While the optimistic tone was maintained, it was generally granted that definite trends will not become apparent much before October. Uncertainty regarding credit was again a factor also, although nothing new appeared in the situation, save perhaps a further decline in sterling exchange which made the prospect of a higher discount rate at London and the withdrawal of funds from New York more threatening than ever.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent and held there all day, as there was some calling of loans, presumably by banks, to pay off Federal Reserve borrowings. This was in line with expectation, as Friday's drop from 9 to 6 per cent was regarded as due to temporary conditions.

Bankers do not look for any marked tightening of credit as a result of the midmonth income tax payments and Treasury refinancing until late next week. It is expected that funds will accumulate here in preparation for this shifting of balances, and this may ease the situation momentarily. In connection with the refinancing, the Treasury is expected to make its customary overdrafts at the reserve banks, which will have a stabilizing influence. As these overdrafts are paid off, however, a tightening of credit is expected.

Drop in Rails Disappointing.

A drop in the rail shares was rather disappointing, as Wall street has generally regarded this group as among the least exploited. Atchison tumbled more than 12 points, but cut down its loss to about 5 as President Storey made a rather optimistic estimate as to the results of operations during the second half. New York Central, Cehsapeake & Ohio, Delaware & Hudson, Norfolk & Western, and Union Pacific closed from 2 to 6 points lower. Northern Pacific was a strong spot, closing moderately higher.

Such issues as American Telepone, General Electric and Consolidated Gas were depressed about 7 points, but closed only 2 or 3 points lower. United States Steel dropped about 6 points, and Westinghouse Electric dropped about 10, but they reduced their losses to 4½ points each. Radio and General Motors lost 2 or 3 points in heavy turnovers. Auburn Auto tumbled 19 points.

Utilities generally were inclined to heaviness, but Standard Gas reached another new high above 200 and American Water Works recorded a new top at 194.

Aviation shares were depressed by news of the Transcontinental Air Transport plane disaster in New Mexico. Curtiss-Wright sagged to 25, a new low since its listing on this market, and United Aircraft lost a few points.

Case Threshing a High Flier.

Case Threshing was a high flier, selling up 23 points to a new peak at 415, and several of the food shares were in demand, Fleischmann, Standard Brands and Kraft Phenix, reaching new peaks. Sloss Sheffield Steel, which recently reached a new low for the year, rallied 17 points on a better tone in the Southern iron market. In the late trading, Packard Motor (old) was rushed up about 10, and Union Carbide more than 7, to record levels. Other shares to reach new high ground included American Rolling Mills, Weston Electrical Instrument and Worthington Pump.

Cotton was a feature of the commodities, jumping about $3 a bale on the smaller-than-expected Government crop estimate, but about two-thirds of the gain was lost in selling on bearish weather. Wheat and corn moved in narrow ranges. Wheat was fairly steady on improved flour demand and firm Northwest markets, but corn closed one-half to nearly 1 cent lower on beneficial rains.

Foreign exchanges were generally under pressure, sterling cables sagging to $4.84 11-16, to equal its previous low for the year. The Japanese yen dropped one-fifth of a cent to 46.65 cents.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—A sharp advance followed the publication of the Government report in the cotton market today, but it encountered a great deal of realizing and considerable Southern selling. After selling up from 19.08, the low price of the morning, to 19.80 immediately after report, December contracts closed at 19.52, compared with 19.26 at the close of Saturday. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 21 to 26 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 4 to 7 points under profit taking, together with some local and Southern selling promoted by reports of further rains in the Southwest and relatively easy Liverpool cables. The initial offerings were quite readily absorbed for over the Government report, but the selling continued and became a little more active later in the morning.

Before business was suspended to receive the official crop figures, active months had shown net losses of about 17 to 20 points, with October selling down to 18.73 and March to 19.25. The Government report, making the condition 55.4 and the indicated crop 14,825,000 bales, was about 62,000 bales below the average of recent private reports and evidently lower than expected. They brought in an active demand through trade and commission houses, also some local buying and shortly after the report was published active months showed advances of 65 to 72 points from the low level of the morning. December sold up to 19.45 and March to 19.90, or making advances of about 43 to 53 points from the closing quotations of Saturday.

At these figures a good deal of Southern selling and realizing developed, however, and it seemed as if the effect of the low Government crop figures as of September 1 were being offset to some extent by a relief that the rains reported recently in the Western belt might improve the crop outlook in that section.

Buying continued fairly active and fluctuations were more or less irregular, but the market reacted and there seemed to be a little more Southern, as well as local, selling in the late trading. October closed at 19.18 and March 19.66, making reactions of about 20 to 30 points from the high prices of the day.

The amount of cotton ginned prior to September 1 was placed at 1,570,030 bales, against 956,577 last year.

Port receipts, 52,278. United States port stocks, 766,093. Exports, 19,087, making 485,452 so far this season.

Are You a Cormorant?
A multitude of lights bob in the waters off Gefu, fishing town of Japan—but the fishermen are not catching any fish. They let the cormorants do that.
With a stout cord attached to his leg, and a tight collar around his neck, the cormorant stands poised on the gunwale of a boat until fish appear, attracted by the boat's light; then he dives, catches his fish—and is immediately hauled back into the boat and the fish shaken out of his gullet. He cannot swallow his catch because of the collar.
A cormorant's life is not a happy one in Gefu—but many a man in America is leading a cormorant's life, earning money enough, perhaps, but never showing a profit for his work. The difference is that a man has a ready means of escape, merely by setting aside the small, often-neglected portion of earnings and placing them in a savings fund invested in some sound security.

BLUES MARK TRAINING OF VIOLETS

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Candidates for the New York University varsity band have gone into training at a camp of their own adjacent to the varsity football camp at Farmingdale, Long Island.

This is believed to be the first time that a university band has gone into training quarters in preparation for a season of blatting and tootling in conjunction with the varsity football games, but the New York University band has a very hard schedule this year and is pointing for two big contests, one with the Penn band ,the other with the band from the University of Missouri. The Penn band is the loudest in the East and has by far the most spectacular uniforms, even the young man who forms the front legs of the base drum wearing a pound of brass fringe on each shoulder.

Band Coach Not Optimistic.

Maurel Hunkins, the coach of the New York band, is not optimistic at this time, as his squad was hard hit, as the saying goes, not only by graduations but by the proselyting tactics of unscrupulous Broadway band leaders. He lost twenty trombonists, slaptongue saxophonists and piccolo players by graduation, and during the summer half a dozen of his remaining stars were detected playing professionally under assumed names in roadhouses around Saratoga.

However, he is particularly interested in a young man whom he is covering up for the time being owing to reports that a scout for Rudy Vallee was hanging around the camp disguised as a critic from one of the musical publications. According to Mr. Al Nixon, the graduate manager of athletics and music at New York University, this young man is a triple-threat musician having volume, speed and marvelous endurance.

Difficulty With Neighbors Hinders Practice.

"We will show you the hottest pair of lips in University Band on the Eastern seaboard," Mr. Nixon stated, "but just at present he is working out with a dummy horn so that Vallee's scouts won't be able to spot him. There has been some difficulty with the neighbors around Farmingdale, but I am afraid they will have to put up with the inconvenience for one week.

"One of the neighbors came over to say that he moved out of New York because he used to have a neighbor who was taking a mail-order course on the trombone. He said the sound of 80 or 90 boys all practicing runs and double stops on a great variety of instruments at once was more than he could stand and asked us to sound proof the practice hall. Instead, we offered to sound proof his house and I think we might compromise by sending him away for a week's trip.

"It is very difficult to find a place to conduct practice for a band of 70 pieces and from 10 to 20 scrubs, as it seems that there are no wide open spaces wide enough or open enough to permit the boys to let themselves out without being heard by some one. As the chief aim of all varsity bands is to be louder than the other bands, I am inclined to doubt that our complaining neighbor could go far enough in a week's trip to get away from it all."

Playing While Marching Requires Practice.

The main difficulty, of course, is that varsity bands, when in competition, are compelled to play while marching and forming themselves into large initial letters on the football field. The New York U. Band is learning to form a large repertoire of these letters and as this practice requires several acres of space, it is impossible to carry it on in any of the available drill halls. And anyway, Mr. Nixon says, it would be dangerous to the musicians themselves to do so as the volume when the boys are all blowing at once would be likely to stun them with shell shock.

"Hitherto the band had been a neglected feature of college life in our part of the country," Mr. Nixon says. "The great Western schools have wonderful loud bands, of which I believe the Illinois Band is the loudest.

"New York U. intends to introduce the best college band in the country, and I predict that when the Maurel Hunkins system of coaching has been allowed to develop fully, you can put the Illinois band alongside our band and start them horning and not even hear the Illinois band.

People Suffered While Whiteman Learned.

"This is a musical age and band experience in college is very useful training for a young man going out into the world to earn a living. And while this training may cause a certain degree of inconvenience for a few people it must be remembered that people had to suffer while Paul Whiteman was learning."

The band candidates of New York U. have a special training table, the sole item on the menu being chicken a la king, on the theory that they will all be playing saxophones, horns, piccolos, drums or banjos in night clubs a few years hence and might as

Tilden Sees Net Rivals Extended

Mercur Forced to 5 Sets, 4 Deuced, to Beat Coggeshall.

Lott, Likely Finalist, in Battle as Rain Halts Play.

By TED VOSBURGH.
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept 9 (A.P.).—While Big Bill Tilden casually looked on from a seat in the official's stand, two of his leading rivals for the national tennis singles crown were extended to the limit in second round matches this afternoon by the country's fourteenth and fifteenth ranking players.

Having drawn a bye in the first round and reached the third with an easy victory on Saturday, Big Bill was among the 10,000 spectators who saw Fritz Mercur finally nose out Harris Cogeshall, of Des Moines, Iowa, No. 14 in the national rating list, in five hard sets, 7—5, 7—5, 2—6, 5—7, 7—5, and then watched J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., ranked No. 15, give George Lott stroke for stroke and ace for ace.

Lott, young Chicago internationalist who is looked upon as the man Tilden will have to beat to win this title for the seventh time, eventually captured the first set from Hall, but only by the close and attenuated score of 10—8. The two were even at one-all in the second set when a drenching rain dispersed the gallery and terminated play.

But there Coggeshall's bullet-like drives from deep court began to take their toll. Angling his shots and mixing them up with occasional lobs, the Iowan took five straight games for the third set and four straight to win the fourth, squaring the match. Mercur's superior volleying alone served to carry him through to victory in the final set.

Allison, Bell and Seligson In Victories.

England's foremost contenders advanced more easily, Henry Austin subduing Herbert L. Bowman, of New York, 6—2, 6—3, 6—0, and Ted Avory, Cambridge University player, eliminating Ed Burns, another New Yorker, 7—5, 6—2, 6—4.

In something of an upset, David N. Jones, of Columbia University, overcame Phil Neer, San Francisco, holder of the intercollegiate championship eight years ago, at 15—13, 6—1, 8—6.

Wilmer Allison and Berkeley Bell, the Texans, and Julius Seligson, of Lehigh University, were among the second-round winners. Allison downed one of the Southern contenders, Ted Burwell, of Charlotte, N. C., 6—0, 6—2, 6—4; Bell defeated Bruce Barnes, a fellow student at the University of Texas, for the third time in four meetings this year, 6—2, 6—3, 4—6, 6—3; and Seligson overwhelmed L. H. Wiley, Hartford, Conn., 6—1, 6—1, 6—1.

Lott and Hall to Resume Play Today.

The Lott-Hall match is to be resumed tomorrow at 11 a. m., while the only other unfinished match, in which Edward Feibleman was leading a fellow New Yorker, Dr. George King, at 6—3, 6—4, 3—6, 3—5, is scheduled for 12:30 p. m. The program of third-round matches is:

1 p. m.—Bunny Austin, England, vs. Harold MacGuffin, Philadelphia.

2 p. m.—John Doeg, Santa Monica,

Critics Laud Georgetown Linemen

Little Again to Boast Traditionally Strong Forward Wall.

Donaldson, End, Hurt in Scrimmage, to Idle for Week.

By JACK ESPEY
(Staff Correspondent of the Post).

OCEAN CITY, N. J., Sep. ..—Exceptional play, the quality of which has been the chief factor in the success of Georgetown football teams of recent years, will be in evidence again in 1929, in the opinion of members of the coaching staff of the University of Pennsylvania, who visited the Georgetown grid training camp here.

Lud Wray, Lon Jourdet and Al Kreuse, assistants to Head Coach Young, of the Quaker City team, came over from the Penn camp at Cape May and expressed amazement at the advanced degree of perfection in the work of the Hilltop linemen. They were particularly impressed with the speed of charging of Lou Little's forwards.

Despite a broiling sun, the linemen have been put through daily a session of defensive and offensive play lasting more than two hours. This developed another prominent fact, that Georgetown this year will possess a wealth of strong reserve line, in addition to the regulars.

The arduous practice also added strength to the belief that the battle for positions will not be decided during the period of training here and perhaps not before the opening of the season in Washington, three weeks hence.

Brennan and Parlette Making Strong Bids.

Bob Brennan, 168-pound sophomore candidate, made it evident that he is going to have a lot to say about who plays one of the flank positions. Hitherto in the background, this Pawtucket (R. I.) boy literally crashed into the spotlight with an exhibition of ferocious and effectual charging, blocking and tackling. So did Lew Parlette, another sophomore, who weighs 190 pounds; Gehringer, 1928 reserve end, and Ken Provincial, the only regular end remaining from last year, must step lively to beat out the other two mentioned.

Jim Mooney, captain and tackle, appears certain to do most of Georgetown's kicking again this season. So far he has found little opposition from the other booters. Although there are some capable of sending the oval spiraling 40 and 50 yards with consistency, Jim can give them 10 yards and at least equal their efforts.

No Word Received From Johnny Bozek.

Still no word from Johnny Bozek, the former Gonzaga High star; when, and if Johnny reports, he probably will find the path to a regular varsity position jammed with formidable rivals, including his brother Emil.

Trainer Harry Crowley took one pair of crutches to the 1928 camp and a half dozen players had to use them on account of injuries during their first couple of days. This year Harry brought four pair, and so far none has been used. As the umbrella keeps away the rain, so may crutches fore-

Phillies Down Cards, 9-3 And Take Series, 3 to 1

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The Phillies won the last of the four games with the Cardinals here today, carrying off the series, three to one. The score was 9 to 3. The Cardinals got their three runs in the third inning. The Phillies were aided by O'Doul's homer in the third, but increased their score by five runs on six hits in the fifth. Hallahan, Cardinal pitcher, got credit for losing the game. He was relieved after the eighth by Haid. President Heydler, of the National League, witnessed the game.

HELEN HICKS TOPS GOLF FIELD

Leads Mrs. Pardue by 4 Strokes in West's 72-Hole Derby.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Helen Hicks, sturdy 18-year-old shotmaker from Inwood, Long Island, breezed over the heavily trapped Flossmoor Country Club course today with par-shattering golf to gain a 4-stroke lead at the quarter mark of the derby, a 72-hole medal play event sponsored by the Western Women's Golf Association and open to the world.

Playing the same type of golf that made her the sensation of last winter's tournaments in the South, Miss Hicks carded a 68, three under par, going out today, and then came home with a 40, one over par, for a 78 total. Her closest rival in the small but brilliant field was Mrs. Austin Pardue, of Hibbing, Minn., who had rounds of 40—42—82.

A pair of veteran Chicagoans, Mrs. Lee Mida and Mrs. Melvin Jones, tied for third place at the end of the initial eighteen-hole test with 83s. Mrs. Mida is the so-called defending champion of the derby, although it has been extended from 54 to 72 holes this year in an attempt to develop a national medal play classic for women golfers.

Miss Orcutt in 5th Place With 84 Score.

One stroke behind them was Maureen Orcutt, present Metropolitan champion and a big favorite from White Beeches, N. Y. Miss Orcutt could not get her putter to work today and three-putted six greens, taking 41 going out and a 43 coming home.

Other leaders at the end of the first included Mrs. Gregg Lifur, of Los Angeles, runner-up in the 1929 women's Western championship, 42—43—85; Mrs. Leo Federman, Fresh Meadows, N. Y., 43—43—86; Virginia Vanwie, Chicago, 47—40—87; Frances Hadfield, Milwaukee, 44—44—88; Bernie Wall, Oshkosh, Wis., 45—44—89; Gertrude Boothby, Rochester, Minn., 43—46—89, and Mrs. J. H. Indig, Tampa, Fla., 41—49—90.

Three additional eighteen-hole rounds will be played during the next three days. Except for a brisk wind that swept the course, the weather was good for golf today.

Middle of Line Is Doubtful Spot of West Point Squad

Guards and Center Chief Need of Coach Jones With Cagle and Murrell Returning to Back Field; Ends Fortified.

This is another of a series of stories dealing with football prospects at leading institutions.

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

WEST POINT, N. Y., Sept. 9 (A. P.).—Head Coach Biff Jones grunted when asked if the 1929 Army Football Team will be as good as that of 1928. There was no indication whether the Biffian grunt was affirmative or negative. It may have suggested uncertainty.

If Capt. Jones is in doubt and waiting for additional returns, it is possible that two young stalwarts may have as much as any other pair to do with the writing of the verdict.

Ed Saurez from down Mobile way, and Paul Miller, late of the Pennsylvania National Guard, are attempting to convince the coach that they can fill a yawning chasm in the middle of the Army line. Saurez, only 20 years old, but weighing 190 pounds, is a guard. Miller, another 190-pounder, is a center. Army needs guards and centers.

Cagle Is Spearhead Of Offensive.

There are plenty of experienced backs, led by Capt. Keener Cagle, a running-passing player with the ways of an eel and early training as a contortionist. The flanks are well protected with half a dozen good ends and adequate tackles are in prospect. The question marks are placed squarely in the middle of the line.

Saurez and Miller are great prospects and if they retain their health should fit into any Army scheme. Charley Humber probably will get a guard position. George Washington Perry is a tackle good enough to play on any team and Bill Parham, Dan Spengler, Coughlin and MacLean are standing by ready to answer a summons.

Two great ends, Ed Messinger and Carl Carlmark, are returned from last year's team, and there is no lack of material to give them a lift.

Murrell to Return As Full Back.

Cagle, in the back field, is in the position of the baseball player who was the manager and captain and

Cubs Score 2 in Ninth To Defeat Braves, 4-3

Chicago, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The Cubs moved closer to the National League pennant today by staging a ninth inning rally to beat out the Boston Braves, 4 to 3, in the final game of the series. They remained 13 games ahead of Pittsburgh and need but eight more victories to clinch the flag.

The game, halted twice by showers, was a stern chase for Chicago. Hack Wilson gave them a tie at 2-2 in the seventh inning with his thirty-seventh home run of the year. The blow gave him a tie with Chuck Klein for the league lead. Root walked in a run for the Braves in the ninth, but Stephenson again tied the count with a homer. A single by Tolson and Taylor's double brought the winning run.

Root gave the Braves 11 hits in gaining his sixteenth victory of the season, while Percy Jones held the Cubs to eight.

ORIOLE STAR SOUGHT BY GRIFFITH

Loepp, Outfielder, Is Scouted; Formerly With Red Sox.

WHILE Scout Joe Engel has been combing the "ivory" fields in other sections of the country, President Clark Griffith believes that he has uncovered a find not far from home in George Loepp, Baltimore International League outfielder. The Nat owner has spent several afternoons watching this player in action and may decide to purchase him within the next day or so.

George Weiss, business manager of the Orioles, was here last Friday and made the Nats a proposition, which President Griffith last night admitted that he was seriously considering. "I've looked Loepp over on several occasions," said the Washington Club owner, "but have told Baltimore I will not make a decision for a day or two. Loepp looks like a major league prospect."

Loepp, who came to the Orioles early this season from the Red Sox, is 25 years old, of medium height, but powerful across the shoulders. He is regarded as an exceptionally good fielder, while the latest available batting averages show him hitting .314. In 145 games, he has been at bat 562 times and cracked out 176 hits, which includes 26 homers, 37 doubles and 6 triples. He is not as hard a hitter as his 4-base record would indicate, however, as many of his circuit clouts have been made in Oriole Park where there are short fields. Last year, with the Pittsfield New England Leaguers, he had a stick mark of .309.

Nats Return Outfielder Moore to Barons.

Outfielder Andy Moore, purchased from Birmingham some time ago, will not be a member of the Nationals at next year's training camp, President Clark Griffith announced yesterday. While scouting Pitcher Carlos Moore, also of the Barons, for whom $20,000 was paid last week, Joe Engel also gave Andy another once-over and decided that he would not do.

As a result of this adverse report, President Griffith requested the Barons to cancel the purchase and they acquiesced.

The series with the White Sox will end this afternoon and the Nats must win if they hope to get an even break. The game also will mean much in their chase for fifth position, as the Tigers will be battling the Yankees in a double-header at the same time. Manager Johnson believes that Bobby Burke is about ready for a winning effort and he will draw the pitching assignment. Either Ted Lyons or Hal McKain likely will do the alien flinging.

McCullough and Land Join Nats.

Two rookies joined the Nationals yesterday, Pitcher Paul McCullough

Jones Is Hit Solidly by White Sox

Break Tie in 7th With 3-Run Rally Featured by Kamm.

"Young Ed" Permits Only Six Hits, But Walks Six.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

FIFTH place in the league race again beckoned to the Nationals yesterday, but they were in no flirting mood and turned their backs on it in the form of taking a 6 to 4 beating from the Chicago White Sox. The game was a listless affair and Johnson's team was in it actually for only a few moments—just long enough for the visitors to come in from the field after the home gang had knotted the count at 3-all in the sixth inning.

Then the Windy Cityans, who had been pecking away at "Sad Sam" Jones' slants from the start, suddenly became serious and before their batting splurge was over the aged flinger was taking his shower, Lloyd Brown had been called in as relief, and the Nationals were three down again. And this time they could not get these runs back.

"Little Ed" Walsh did the alien flinging and he performed like a veteran throughout. He yielded but six hits, although he issued that number of passes, yet seemed to be the "yardmaster" at all times. That the Nationals were able to turn their bingles into as many as four runs was not due to heavy slugging but to several happy combinations of happenings, as their biggest rally consisted of two hits.

Cissell Hits Homer in First Frame.

Bill Cissell, not regarded as a heavy hitter, gave the visitors their first run when he propelled one into the left-field stands with the bases empty in the first frame. In the second, a break of luck gave the Sox another. Kamm, who had a field day at bat with two triples and a double, opened up with his first three-bagger. It looked as though Jones would pull out of this hole when he retired the next two batters, but Walsh bounded one which hit the rubber plate and hopped over Jones' head for a hit when Myer, who made a good try for the ball, was a whisker late in getting it to first.

A pass was all the Sox drew in the third but they became three to the good when they molded another tally in the next canto. The ingredients of this were Kerr's double and Walsh's single, the latter coming with two out.

Jones Pounded Off Hill In Seventh.

Jones then settled down and prevented further scoring until the seventh, in which he met his Waterloo. Metzler singled to start the fireworks and took second on Cissell's out. When Reynolds and Shires cracked out successive one-basers, sending one over, Brown took up the hurling burden and granted a double to Kamm, which cleared the bases, before he could get his pitching machinery functioning. Trying to stretch the blow, Kamm was nipped at third, thanks to a nobby interception of the return and rifle peg by Joe Judge. Thereafter Brown had nothing to worry him, but the damage had been done by that time.

Walsh Quells Rally In First Inning.

Meanwhile Walsh had been making things mighty tough for the Nationals. He pulled out of a tight hole in the first, when Judge's opening single, Rice's walk and Goslin's out put men on third and second with only one out. Judge was nipped at the

Mickey Walker Is Fined $20 After Brawl at Hollywood

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Mickey Walker, middleweight boxing champion, after spending several hours in the Hollywood jail, following his arrest on charges of being intoxicated and possessing liquor, pleaded guilty to the first charge in Municipal Court today and paid a fine of $20. He was released after his manager, Jack Kearns, deposited $250 bail pending a hearing on the latter charge.

Walker and three companions were arrested before daylight when complaints of the occupants of a Whitney avenue apartment house brought the police to quell an asserted drunken melee. The police reported they found Walker fighting with his three companions in the apartment of Miss Dorothy Davis, in which furniture, doors and windows were found broken.

The trio arrested with Walker were Gordon H. Sweeney, film director; Arthur Housman, film actor, and Ray Hallor, also an actor. Charges similar to those against Walker were brought against the trio. Police allowed Miss Davis to remain in her apartment because of an injured foot. The result of the asserted melee.

GREATER MARLBORO TRACK OPENS 5-DAY MEETING

2-Year-Olds Inaugurate Program

Improvements Many; Post Time Daily at 2 P. M.

2 Distance Races to Feature Card of Opening Day.

RACING for the Capital City and environs will be opened for the fall season today at Marlboro. Although the thoroughbreds have been running on the half-mile inclosures at Cumberland and Timonium the last two weeks, the mass of Washington racegoers has not had an opportunity to be on the scene. The proximity of the Prince Georges County oval makes it a popular retreat for local fans.

Officials of the Southern Maryland Agriculture Fair Association, sponsors of the annual five-day race meet, are predicting the most successful meet in the history of that organization. Many improvements have been made, and the quality and quantity of the stables quartered there far surpasses anything previous.

Seven races are carded daily. The post time for the inaugural number today, a 5-furlong dash for 2-year-old maidens, is 2 o'clock. The talent entered for the opening day's events is but a sample of that to be seen there throughout the week, officials promised.

300 Horses on Scene, Fields Limited to 8.

More than 300 horses, many of whom have campaigned at Cumberland, Timonium and Edensburg, are stabled at the track. Many of those to be seen in action the next few days passed up the other half-mile ovals.

The fact that Marlboro sponsors the lone half-mile track running at this time is largely responsible for the high-class fields slated to go to post. Timonium and Edensburg ran in opposition last week, and both tracks suffered from a shortage of horses.

There will be no shortage of candidates at Marlboro. As the fields will be limited to eight starters, the owners and trainers will have difficulty getting their entries among the eligible starters. The first number today has fourteen eligibles ready.

Stall Gates a la Bowie Are Installed.

Stall gates, similar to those used at Bowie, will be introduced at Marlboro for the first time today. Track Superintendent Dick Pending has supervised the installation of these stationary stalls, as well as the resurfacing of the track.

Two distance affairs feature the first day's program. The last two events will be over the mile and sixteenth route, with some well-rated platers named to start. Two or more distance races will be run each day of the meet.

Plans have been made to entertain record crowds throughout the week. Extensive improvements have been made to better accommodate the rapidly increasing patronage of the track. A new grand stand and press stand are among the outstanding improvements made.

PLAY TIE GAME.

The Pullman and Firemen nines battled twelve innings yesterday in a 4-to-4 deadlock on the Terminal Y diamond. The contest was staged for the benefit of the McDonald fund.

The two teams will meet again Thursday at 4 o'clock.

SEEKING GAMES.

The Vienna Fire Department Nine is seeking a game for Sunday. Call Manager Phillips at National 3376 during the day.

OODLES OF KALE!

If the word from the chief of staff at Lincoln Fields can be relied upon, an it usually can, then you will have a fat old roll this aft. As a matter of fact, the boys slip me three well-oiled good things. The first of these is WATCH ON, which goes in the day's opener and which is primed to concert pitch. The contention will, in all probability, come from Ben Jones' representative, SALONA, with CHAMP DE MARS having an outside chance to spill the frijoles. This latter hide has improved 50 per cent since going to the stable. As for Salona's last effort it goes for Mr. Sweeney, the man who manicures the morgue—it was awful.

The next melon to be sliced is BOUGAINVILLE, which has been showing keen private trials. I like this one extra well, while SALUTA seems as much the best of the others. ROXIE WEIDEL is taken to beat the faint-hearted LINGER. The latter will be a better favorite if the promised rain materializes.

Then comes BILL SETH, on which I suggest you tab the ring action closely.

T. S. JORDAN should carry the Peabody colors down in front in the fourth; this old fellow has been freshened up.

CHICLEIGHT is good, game and consistent, and best of all you don't have to make a track to order for him.

Last, but by no means least, here comes REVOLVER to make merry This bundle of nerves is as good as hands can make him. If he only runs as fast as he can, it will be Katie bar the door. Ye'wekkum.

Over at Thorncliffe Park, the SEAGRAM STABLE seems to have a double-barreled cinch in the fifth and programmed feature—a seven-furlong dash. In this they are represented by BEAU OF THE WEST and KITLING. The former has this kind of cattle sewed up.

ATTACK is as good as he ever will be, while the consistent MR. GAIETY can be relied upon for his usual honest effort. VACILLATE, a winner last time, should find it easy pickings to repeat in the fourth. Has all the speed of the party and is consistent.

VILLAGER in the sixth and ALITA ALLEN in the closing dash is the balance of the mustard. More anon.

ODOM MAKES KILLING AT BELMONT

Stephanite, Backed Down to 4-1, Wins With Ease.

BELMONT PARK RACE TRACK, N. Y., Sept. 9 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—George Odom and his friends made a killing with Mrs. Catherine Harriman's Stephanite in the running of the Mineola Stakes this afternoon. The son of Stefan the Great was backed from 8 to 1 to as low as 4 to 1 before the break came. The market was in a turmoil, for a time as many rushed about trying to get down at a favorable price. The tip, which spread like wildfire, turned out to be a good one although it had to be accepted on faith as the colt had showed nothing in three previous starts. He proved to be much the best. Breaking well under Pony McAtee, he made most of the running to win handily from Cygnet and Big Business.

Gifford A. Cochran's Lamp Black, the favorite, failed the faithful. He was in a good position at the last furlong pole but in rather tight quarters and instead of working clear dropped back.

Odom fooled close paddock observers by walking Stephanite about in heavy boots and bandages. These impediments in sloppy going were not removed until just before the horses went on the track for the parade to the post.

Stephanite probably was the medium of the biggest clean-up by the Odom crowd since Nimba was a 2-year-old, in the fall of 1926, when starting for the first time. It is not likely that Stephanite will turn out to be as good a colt as Nimba was a filly.

Brown Wisdom Wins Sprint At Lincoln Fields.

Lincoln Fields Race Track, Ill., Sept. 9 (A. P.).—W. C. and E. W. Reichert's 4-year-old brown Wisdom easily won the Cooper Carlton purse, the feature attraction of an ordinary card here this afternoon. It was a sprint of six furlongs for 3-year-olds and upward.

Golden Prince, from Bartelstein and Unna's stable, was second and Cayuga, from the Shady Brook Farm, was third.

Brown Wisdom, away well and racing in his best form, was taken into the lead at the start. This he increased at every pole to win easily by four lengths. Golden Prince, away well, saved ground and improved his position gradually to take the place by four lengths. Cayuga raced closest up to the stretch turn, then weakened, but lasted to take the small end of the purse by two lengths. Eskimo, after showing a flash of early speed, tired and finished fourth. Seven ran. The race had a value of $1,000 to the winner, and Brown Wisdom paid $6.44 for $2.

Khara, from the Rancocas Stable, easily won the Blue Island purse, the secondary feature on the card, defeating Heretiz and Rich Widow.

CHAMPIONSHIP ELEVEN LOOKED FOR AT EASTERN

Squad of 80 To Seek Berths

Newcomers to Give Regulars Fight for Positions.

Tech Coach Facing Problem; Central at Annapolis.

WITH 40 men now going through the paces and a like number expected to report at the opening of school, Eastern High School is already looking forward toward putting up a great fight for the 1929 high school championship.

Although hesitant about picking their team for titular honors, there is no doubt of the spirit of optimism that pervades among Eastern supporters and the two Light Blue and White mentors, "Mike" Kelley and "Chief" Guyon. The 40 men now working out daily at the Lincoln Park Stadium include nine lettermen from the 1928 season and both coaches expect two more of last year's vets shortly.

What may be termed the first regular practice of the year was staged in their home stadium yesterday and at the conclusion of the workout both coaches expressed themselves as being well satisfied at the progress made. The team has been drilling since Labor Day for two hours and at present, the large squad is in excellent condition.

Veterans Not Sure of Berths This Season.

With so many veterans back from last year, it might be expected that such experience would insure them a place on the 1929 eleven, but such is not the case, according to the two mentors. With the great number reporting, the two pairs of eagle eyes have already detected signs of talent among some of the newcomers, although no unfamiliar names were divulged.

Among the veterans, four appear to be generally headed for back-field berths, including Jimmy Hayden, Charley Millar, Ben McCullough and Everett Oxley, all of whom saw action during the last campaign. Among the linesmen boasting experience from the near-championship eleven of '28 are Tom Nally, this year's captain; John Nally, his brother; Bernard Smith, Jimmy Montague, Charley Chamberling and Chester Miles.

However, every man will have to fight for his position, according to "Mike" and "The Chief," and there is no possibility of even mentioning a first-string line-up for the next week or ten days.

Hardell Working With Green Tech Team.

Out at Maryland University, that little human dynamo, "Hap" Hardell, is striving manfully to develop a Tech High eleven brilliant enough to stave off the seemingly inevitable defeats which it must suffer. Handicaped by the loss of nine of his eleven regulars of last year, Hardell is seeking to fill the wide gaps on his Maroon team.

The most pleasing quality about his squad is its spirit, according to Hardell. With the exception of two men —Goss and Benner—it is nothing but a green squad, but what it lacks in experience is more than made up by pep and fight. Every man on the field is striving to learn all he can, and Hardell is known as a developer of athletes.

Although mornings are devoted entirely to conditioning exercises, the McKinley squad has been sent through the gridiron tactics every day after lunch, two practice sessions a day being the order for Hardell's men.

Tech to Break Maryland Camp This Week.

Hardell expects to break camp at the Maryland school about the last of the week, but will continue his drills in the city from then on.

With Central in training over at St. John's College in Annapolis, only Western and Business are left outside the fold. Both coaches, however, are expected to call out their charges in the very near future, and with the beginning of next week, all five teams should be well under way in their preparaton for the forthcoming season.

Bernier, Hampden-Sidney Coach, Has Fine Record

Leads Dixie Mentors With 17 Years' Experience—Has Turned Out Many Stars With Tigers, V. P. I. and at Alabama.

HAMPDEN-SIDNEY, VA., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Coach Charles A. Bernier, of Hampden-Sidney College, takes high place among Old Dominion coachers in athletic experience. He began his coaching career in 1912 at New Hampshire State College, to come to Hampden-Sidney the following autumn as director of athletics and coach of all sports. In the fall of 1917, he accepted the directorship of athletics at V. P. I., where he continued until 1920, when he went to the University of Alabama. At Alabama Coach Bernier was associated with Dr. George H. Denny, another alumnus of Hampden-Sidney, who has served as president of that institution for a number of years. He returned to Hampden-Sidney in the fall of 1923.

During his seventeen years of coaching, Bernier has produced many winning teams and sent many stars into the professional arena after their college days ended.

Many Stars and Coaches Pupils Of Bernier.

Some of the athletes who have received instruction from the Tiger mentor include Henry Crisp, powerful one-handed tackle and back of Hampden-Sidney and V. P. I., now line coach at the University of Alabama and head coach of basket ball and baseball; Henry Redd, smashing V. P. I. full back under Bernier, now director of freshman athletics at his alma mater; George Parish, giant Tech end and stellar basket ball performer, who is director of athletics at Potomac State, Keyser, W. Va.; Phil Brooks, flashy basket ball guard and baseball player, who directs athletics at Fishburne Military School, and Dusty Rhodes, who has charge of athletics at Princeton High School, W. Va.

Alabama pupils of Coach Bernier have attained prominence in the field of professional baseball. Joe Sewell went straight from Alabama to replace Ray Chapman, Cleveland shortstop, who was killed by one of Carl Mays' fast balls. He has received national recognition since he has been under the big tent for his brilliant work on the diamond. He has had his brother Luke for a teammate on the Cleveland club since shortly after he became a member of the team. Luke also was under the tutelage of Bernier.

Barnes, of Nats, Given Start By Tiger Coach.

Riggs Stephenson, Alabama's shifty full back and baseball player, has been a sensation in major league baseball playing with the Indians and the Cubs. He now finds himself in a batting order preceded by English, Hornsby, Cuyler and Wilson. Cohen, of the Giants; Wingard, of the Athletics; Barnes, with the Senators; Shaner, with the Reds, and Rosenfield, of the Brooklyn team, not to mention scores of successful minor league players, have all seen service on Charlie Bernier's teams.

The list could be continued of ball players and coaches, and even movie actors, who have cavorted on Bernier's teams at Hampden-Sidney, V. P. I. and Alabama. John Mack Brown was brought to Alabama by the Tiger coach, and later as an All-American half-back won national recognition by his performance against Washington in the Tournament of the Roses at which Alabama was victorious, 20-19. Johnny now stars on the silver sheet.

Potomac Edison won the first half and B. & O. Team No. 1 copped the second half and in the play-off the Railroaders won the league championship.

MARYLAND PARK WINS.

well become accustomed to their fare.

Some of the football players in training camps around this section of whom there are several hundred now at work have adopted the bathing suit as the most convenient costume for football practice in the prevailing weather. However, those teams which have gone in for serious football work from the beginning are accounted for in the customary wads and harness, and there is some question whether this sort of work in this sort of clothing in this sort of weather will do them any good. The idea of sending players to camp for practice for two or three weeks before the opening of school is not exactly new, but it has been adopted this year by several schools which never tried it before. Of course, the practice in full equipment in hot weather may wear out the boys. But perhaps they are like the gentleman who bet he could drink 40 cups of coffee and just before the contest began said, "I know I can do this; I just drank 40 cups ten minutes ago."

GEORGETOWN BOASTS STRONG LINE AGAIN

stall sprained and broken legs. Harry's hoping hard.

Ocean City, N. J., Sept. 9.—The old injury hobgoblin, who so accommodatingly remained away last week, visited the Georgetown camp today and struck in a vital spot. Don Donaldson, 185-pound sophomore, who has been making a great fight for the vacant end position, was put out of commission for a week or ten days when injured in a scrimmage.

Donaldson suffered a badly wrenched left knee, several of the ligaments being torn, and it was necessary to carry him from the field, as he fainted from the pain.

The injury of this young Buffalo, N. Y., husky came just when the coaches were beginning to feel easy about the end department. Donaldson was crowding Lew Parlette, another promising sophomore, for the assignment to the job left vacant by the graduation of Johnny Tomaini, one of the best wing men in recent Georgetown history.

The squad lost another member when Francis O'Harin, of Shenandoah, Pa., a back field candidate, suffered a recurrence of an old leg injury and decided to turn in his uniform, feeling that his leg, first hurt two years ago, wouldn't withstand the roughness of the game. He departed for his home this afternoon.

Giants Take Twin Bill At Cincinnati, 6-3, 10-4

Cincinnati, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The New York Giants battered out a pair of victories over the Reds today in a storm-bound double-header. After waiting nearly two hours to start, the Giants won the first game, 6 to 3, then ran away with the five-inning second, 10 to 4.

Fred Lindstrom, New York third baseman, was injured in the first game when he slipped in the mud, trying to field Swanson's sacrifice bunt. His leg was strained enough to force him out of the game.

Carl Hubbell and Fred Fitzsimmons pitched effectively for the Giants in the two games. Fitzsimmons scored his sixth victory of the year over the Reds in the second contest.

Three Rockne Grid Pupils North Carolina U. Coaches

Head Coach Collins and Cerney Stars on National Title Team of 1924—Enright, Notre Dame Full Back, Following.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Sept. 9.—Three of Knute Rockne's alumni of the gridiron are, teaching football at the University of North Carolina this fall. The Notre Dame trio is composed of Chuck Collins, Bill Cerney and Rex Enright.

Collins, head coach since 1926, was an end on the national championship Notre Dame Team of 1924. Cerney was a teammate at half back. Enright, who entered with the same class, was out of school in 1924 but played full back on the 1925 team.

Collins will center his attention on Coaching Tarheel linemen. Cerney will coach the Tarheel backs, and Enright will coach the freshmen.

Fetzer, Ashmore Other Coaches Of Varsity.

Other coaches on this year's Tarheel staff will be Athletic Director Fetzer, a Davidson product, who is a veteran line coach; Jim Ashmore, from Illinois, who will help tutor the backs; Trainer Chuck Quinlan, and Freshmen Coaches Grady Pritchard and Odell Sapp.

This will be the fourth year of the Notre Dame system at Carolina. Coach Collins has better material than for any of the three previous years, and with all 70 candidates trained at least one year in the Rockne system, much is being expected from these Notre Dame mentors. The Tarheel varsity won the State championship and the freshmen won the South Atlantic championship last year, and both are expected to branch out in the conference this year.

The list of Notre Dame trained coaches probably is the most important of any college in the country. With the increased use of the Rockne system the demand has grown for coaches trained by the old master. All of the famous "Four Horsemen" who terrorized the football world for three great years are actively engaged in coaching, and many others.

Rockne's "Four Horsemen" All College Coaches.

Of these Half Back Jimmy Crowley is head coach at Michigan State; Half Back Don Miller is back field coach at Ohio State; Quarter Back Harry Stuhldreher is at Villanova, and Full Back Elmer Layden handles the destinies of Duquesne College, Pittsburgh.

Perkiomen Prep Star To Enter Lafayette

Bethlehem, Pa., Sept. 9.—From authentic authority it was learned that J. Austin (Bates) McCarty, of this city, and three-letter star athlete at Bthelehem Prep School last year, will matriculate at Lafayette College this month. This announcement came as quite a surprise, for many of the young athlete's friends were of the belief that he would enter Lehigh.

McCarty, a product of Bethlehem High School, and one of the most versatile athletes developed at the school, earned his letter in track, basket ball and football. In track his exploits have been most outstanding, holding the State high school and prep school record in tossing the javelin.

Asheville Wins First Sally Play-Off Game

Asheville, N. C., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The Asheville Tourists, first-half champions, defeated the Knoxville Smokies, second-half winners, 12 to 7, this afternoon in the first game of the South Atlantic Association championship series. The locals scored ten of their runs in the first three innings.

Coach Has Good Line On Michigan Gridders

Special to The Washington Post.

An Arbor, Sept. 9.—While two more weeks will elapse before the Michigan football squad makes its first appearance on Ferry Field, Coach Harry Kipke's preliminary estimate of the situation shows that he is counting heavily on the performance of a number of picked men for each position. While tmany of the candidates are unknown quantities to Kipke, Michigan's new head coach knows the squad as a whole far better than many imagine.

Two outstanding candidates loom up for end positions in Capt. Joe Truskowski, of Hamtramck, Mich., and Leo Draveling, of Port Huron. Two newcomers, Norman Daniels, of Detroit, and William Hewitt, of Bay City, Mich., have made fine first-year records and are considered more than likely possibilities.

The possibility that Kipke may change the role of Al Steinke, of St. Joseph, Mich., to tackle, opens up another avenue of speculation. However, Steinke is now listed among the guards.

34 WEST VA. FRESHMEN IMPRESS

17 of 75 Frosh Candidates Seek Backfield Berths.

JACKSONS MILL, W. VA., Sept. 9. With the first week of the 1929 West Virginia University freshmen football training camp concluded, at least 34 of the 75 yearling candidates assembled here have performed impressively in the scrimmages conducted by Coach "Trusty" Tallman. Unquestionably some of the others who are slower and less flashy starters will force their way into the limelight before camp breaks, while some of the boys who have looked best to date may drop out of the select circle eventually.

A check of the outstanding first-year men shows a predominance of back field candidates, 17 of the 34 outstanding men being listed as hall toters. There are eight ends and only nine linemen so far who show real class in the daily workouts. Coach Tallman, however, may emulate the plans of Head Coach Ira Rodgers and shift some of his backs to the line.

The outstanding backs so far are: Louis Bittner, 164; Andy Brawley, 195; Frank Caputo, 174; Thomas Canich, 177; Bill Dole, 180; Leo Dotson, 182; Morris Drobeck, 165; Floyd Graham, 165; Jack Harrell, 175; Edward Johnson, 185; Floyd Lyons, 170; Harold McClure, 180; Bill Parriott, 170; John Ross, 170; Andy Saltis, 165; Mitchell Steffler, 180, and Harry Stephens, 158.

Linemen who have been doing the most of the heavy work: Adolph Bary, 193; Byrl Fisher, 175; Homer Fizer, 185; Frank Lough, 195; Paul Mason, 180; Howard Mackey, 180; Carl Miller, 175; Floyd Schwartzwalder, 165, and Fred Schweitzer, 210.

Outstanding ends are: Edward Baker, 176; Bill Geary, 165; Joe Johnston, 175; Paul Powell, 190; Wilbur Sortet, 170; Earl Sprouse, 170; Charles Zirbs, 170 and Ted Zinn, 175.

Salisbury Planning Large Boxing Arena

Salisbury, Md., Sept. 9.—Plans for construction of a large indoor athletic arena near Salisbury city limits, with a probable seating capacity of 3,000, were announced by Capt. W. B. S. Powell, of Ocean City, Md., and P. S. Lee, of Baltimore, who have been promoting professional boxing bouts at the Maryland resort this summer.

While regular boxing schedules will be arranged weekly, the arena will be available for any other indoor athletic events.

The site outside the city was chosen because the city has pending before the council an ordinance imposing a license of $150 on each boxing show, Lee said.

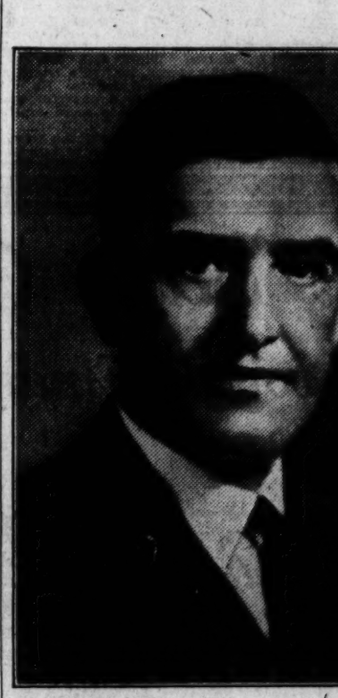
famous pure food expert, long active in crusades for pure foods and sanitary factories.



"Don't bring dangerous germs into your mouth through unsanitary cigars . . . they may result in many serious diseases.

"Avoid this risk by smoking Cremo . . . you know that every single leaf used in Cremo Cigars has been scientifically treated by U. S. Government approved methods.

"Cremo's purity is safeguarded every step of the way . . . with every known scientific precaution.

"Cremo is made in air-flooded . . . sun-bathed factories . . . wrapped, folded and tipped by amazing inventions.

"Every Cremo cigar is sealed in sanitary foil wrappers, giving you the scientific health protection that comes with certified milk and certified canned goods."

Do you remember the old, filthy shop where the man in the window rolled the leaves with dirty fingers . . . and spit on the ends? What a far cry this is from the modern method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo.

The superiority of Certified Cremo starts with the choicest and tenderest leaves, ripe and mellow, and continues in goodness through a slow, expensive maturing and mellowing process . . . topped off with the finest imported Sumatra wrapper! Certified Cremo contains no scrap—no floor sweepings—all long filler—all fresh, tender leaves. Over $7,000,000 was spent in perfecting the method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo that insures uniformly fine, clean cigars. Foil-wrapped . . . sanitary . . . crush-proof.

MACK JUGGLING INFIELD AS WORLD SERIES NEARS

Foxx Placed On 3rd Base In Shift

Position Is a Problem With Dykes Hurt and Hale a 'Flop.'

Burns May Play First Against Cubs if Change Is Made.

Special to The Washington Post.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—Connie Mack is going into the rapidly approaching world series with the Cubs with his infield up in the air. The Athletics' ancient boss can wave his scorecard at his outfield and it's a magic wand. He knows just where to place that outfield. His infield is different.

Third base has been a Philadelphia problem all season. Sammy Hale has been a disappointment at the hot corner. His hitting and his fielding went from good to bad. Connie bolstered up the bag with Jimmy Dykes, a fine ball player no matter where you put him, but Jimmy has been nursing a troublesome charlie horse. Mack switched Jimmy Foxx back to third the other day.

Joe Boley has been a decidedly intermittent performer at short and Max Bishop has been troubled with poor vision at second. If Foxx starts at third George Burns, veteran Clevelander, will go to first against the Cubs. But Connie's still juggling the boys around almost daily.

Third to Be Vital Spot Against Cubs.

Mack is particularly anxious to have third base well looked after There are any number of right-handed hitters on this Chicago Club, and right-handed hitters have a confirmed habit of knocking the ball to the left of the infield.

The Athletic varsity infield of Foxx, Bishop, Boley and Dykes is likely to start the series, but Mack wishes he was sure of Dykes.

plate on Myer's bounder to Shires and West lofted to center for the third out.

No Nationals saw base-life in the next two rames, but two runs were scored in the fourth with the need of but two singles. Between outs, Walsh walked Myer and Tate and Cronin's timely single scored one and Hayes' another. The home gang knotted the count in the sixth with the minimum of effort. Myer led off with a scratch hit to Shires, took second on West's sacrifice bunt, advanced another base on a wild pitch, and then tallied after the catch of Cronin's long fly.

Rice Scores Brown in Seventh With Double.

After the enemy broke the deadlock with its three-run rally in the seventh, the Nationals had but one other chance. In their half Brown, first up, coaxed a walk and took third on Rice's double after Judge had lined to Kerr, who made a good catch. The pitcher counted on Goslin's sacrifice fly. Myer coaxed another walk, putting it up to West, but his best was a foul to Kamm.

The only excitement of the game was furnished in the Nationals' ninth when, with one out, Judge scratched a hit to Shires. Rice followed by rolling one to Kerr, who first trapped Judge and then made the out at first. This left the Nationals' captain between bases and one of the longest run-downs seen here this season followed. Every Chicago infielder got in it until Judge was finally put out and the game ended.

Hunter Golf Duo Leads D. C. Teams in Baltimore Event

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 9.—Two Baltimore teams tied for first honors in the eighteen-hole amateur-pro best ball competition held at the Elkridge Hunt Club today by the Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers Association. One pair, composed of Frank M. Sweeney and Charley Botschler, represented the Rodgers Forge Golf Club. The other, made up of B. Warren Corkran and Willie Schott, carried the colors of the Baltimore Country Club.

The best ball of each of these teams totaled 68, one stroke under the score turned in by the leading Washington pair, J. Monroe Hunter, Indian Spring Country Club pro, and his son, J. Monroe Hunter, jr.

Three District Pairs Tied For Fourth.

Five other Washington pairs competed, with three—Mark Kaufman and Arthur Thorne, Town and Country; Luther Florine and C. Stevens, Bannockburn, and Commander Sherwood and Gene Larkin, Chevy Chase—finishing in a five-team tie for fourth with 71s.

Summaries:

Frank M. Sweeney and Charles P. Botschler, Rodgers Forge, 36—32—68; B. W. Corkran and Willie Scott, Baltimore Country Club, 33—35—68; J. M. Hunter, jr., and J. M. led off in the batting order. The Louisiana flash will carry the ball, and if he can't advance it in that manner will throw it. He will be surrounded by experienced colleagues. Hertz Murrell will again be at full back and bear the principle burden of kicking. Herbert Gibner seems to have the inside track for the quarterback position, with Dick O'Keefe occupying the other back-field position. Backs who undoubtedly will see action are Hutchinson, Timberlake, Piper and Golden. Others will identify themselves more prominently later on.

Army has a long season and will need plenty of reinforcements. From September 28, when Boston University starts the ball rolling at the Point, until December 28, when the final whistle sounds for the Stanford game at Palo Alto, Calif., the Cadets will have every week-end occupied. Some of these Saturdays, notably those calling for appearances against Harvard, Yale, Illinois and Notre Dame, will provide food for thought for Capt. Jones and his assistants.

and Outfielder Billy (Doc) Land reporting to Manager Walter Johnson. McCullough, on whom President Clark Griffith exercised an option recently, unexpectedly showed up due to the fact that the Barons turned him loose when he caught cold in his salary wing. Previously he had pitched good ball at Birmingham, his record being five victories and one defeat. He will work his arm back in condition pitching to batters in pregame wand drills.

Land also showed up out of condition, due to an injury to his knee, which was received in the Gadsden Club's last game of the season in the Georgia-Alabama League. He is a lanky youngster, who comes here with a hitting mark of .346. He led the league in stolen bases with 32 to his credit. Land's injury is not serious and he expects to don a uniform and show his stuff within a day or two.

A flock of youngsters, so many in fact that Assistant Trainer Frank "Bo Bo" Baxter ran out of uniforms, worked out with the Nationals before yesterday's game. The most promising was Ed Edelin, a 17-year-old right-handed pitcher from Mount St. Mary's. While with the prep team this season, he had a record of 11 victories and 2 defeats. He is a strapping lad with a powerful arm, but, of course, needs more experience.

Manager Johnson told the youngster that he would like to take another look at him after the 1930 college season.

Buddy Myer made a great try which came within an ace of preventing the White Sox from scoring in the second yesterday. Kamm opened with a triple and was held at third while the next two batters were retired. Then Pitcher "Little Ed" Walsh bounded one off the plate which cleared Sam Jones' head. Myer came in fast and made a great peg to first, but the ball arrived there late by an eye-blink. Kamm, of course, scored on the play.

Third Baseman Bill Kamm gave the fans a laugh in the Nats' fourth on taking the return peg following Hayes' hit. While backing up toward third, he fell over the sack and landed with a hard thud. Coach Al Schacht thoughtfully helped him to his feet again.

CONVERTIBLE BONDS YIELD TO PRESSURE

General List, as a Whole, Attracts Little Attention. Few Rails Active.

FOREIGN ISSUES FIRMER

New York, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Losses of 1 to 3 points appeared in prices of convertible bonds in the early trading today. Offerings of American Telephone 4½s and International Telephone 4½s, the leaders, were larger than in recent sessions and the two debentures declined 2½ and 3 points, respectively. American I. G. Chemical 5½s dipped to a new low for the current movement.

Despite the favorable reception of the new Treasury financing at 4⅞ per cent and reports that the issue would apparently be widely distributed among individual investors as well as banks, the bond list as a whole attracted little attention. A few railroad obligations traded in moderate blocks at virtually no variations from the last sales on Saturday. Industrials and utilities likewise were steady, but inactive.

The United States Government group showed some improvement, with activity limited to three or four securities. The trend of the foreign division was toward higher grounds.

Considerable interest was shown in the offering of a $28,000,000 issue of New York State eight-month notes bearing a 4 per cent rate. Financing at this comparatively low rate was made possible by an arrangement whereby State banks subscribing for the notes will receive consideration in the placing of State deposits. The current plan of financing was decided upon in view of the fact that in this market an issue of long term bonds would be unattractive at a low coupon. Indications were that the issue would be heavily oversubscribed.

Other new offerings of the day included a $15,500,000 issue of Northern Indiana Public Service Co. first mortgage 5 per cent 40-year gold bonds priced at 94. Chicago & Northwestern Railway floated $8,775,000 in 4½ per cent equipment trust certificates to yield 6 to 5.125 per cent.

Copies of a letter from Mr. George B. Clifford, President of the Corporation, with reference to the Corporation, its Capital Stock and the Voting Trust may be obtained from the undersigned. Mr. Clifford has summarized this letter in part as follows:

HISTORY AND BUSINESS

"The Cream of Wheat Corporation, incorporated under the laws of Delaware in March, 1929, acquired the entire properties and assets, subject to the liabilities, of Cream of Wheat Company, a North Dakota corporation. The business, an outgrowth of a small flour mill, consists of the processing and sale of "Cream of Wheat", a breakfast cereal.

Cream of Wheat is regularly stocked by practically every wholesale grocer and retail and chain grocery store in the United States and Canada, and is obtainable in almost every country in the civilized world. Cream of Wheat is finding its place in the diet of foreign peoples, and in 1928 was sold in 55 countries. Sales outside of the United States and Canada have doubled in the last three years and are being materially helped by increased advertising expenditures in the British Isles and South Africa.

A continuous advertising policy has been maintained for many years. With little space used at the start, advertising expenditures have been increased until now the space used represents one of the greatest advertising efforts put behind any one cereal product.

EARNINGS AND DIVIDENDS

The consolidated net profits of The Cream of Wheat Corporation and its predecessor and subsidiary companies, as certified by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., after all charges including income taxes, for the four years ended December 31, 1928, were as follows:

Years Ended December 31	Net Profits	Per share on 600,000 shares of Capital Stock
1925	$981,253.86	$1.63
1926	1,354,921.90	2.25
1927	1,608,212.72	2.68
1928	1,702,325.31	2.83

The net profits as defined above for the six months ended June 30, 1929, as certified by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., were $860,233.06, equivalent to $1.43 per share, as compared with $788,316.63, equivalent to $1.31 per share, for the corresponding period of 1928, as shown by the books of the predecessor and subsidiary companies.

Dividends on the Capital Stock are being paid currently at the annual rate of $2.00 per share.

VOTING TRUST

All of the Capital Stock of The Cream of Wheat Corporation has been deposited under a ten-year Voting Trust Agreement, the purpose of which is to insure continuity of the same management which has built the business up to its present successful position."

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Piling up of United States wheat visible supply did much to bring about a tendency to sag in the wheat market today. Would-be speculative sellers proved wary, however, pending the United States Government crop report due tomorrow. Accordingly, although wheat averaged lower in price for the day as a whole, rallies were numerous, especially toward the last.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous at the same as yesterday's finish to ⅜c down. Corn finished ¼@⅞c off, oats at ⅛c decline to ½c advance, and provisions varying from 10c setback to a rise of 5c.

Not only did the United States wheat visible supply today show 2,008,000 bushels increase for the week, but there was also a decided enlargement of the amount of wheat on ocean passage, and arrivals of new wheat at Winnipeg were on a liberal scale. Moreover, European continental countries reported substantial carryovers of old wheat, and there were advices that total new production of wheat in Europe for 1929 is but 24,000,000 bushels less than last year's output. Predictions were current also that arrivals of wheat in Europe for Argentina will remain large until virtually the season's end. Meanwhile, transatlantic takings of North American wheat today were meager, 400,000 bushels all told, and light rains reported in eastern Australia, where of late drought has been prevailing.

As a counterbalance, though, the fact was pointed out that the United States wheat visible supply increase announced today was less than was witnessed either a week or a year ago. Argentine drought continued likewise to exercise a sustaining influence on prices. A late upturn in Liverpool quotations was also a subject of attention, and it was noticed that some Eastern houses were conspicuous in the buying here which developed during price down turns. On the other hand, French reports were bearish, indicating that France instead of requiring imports this season would possibly prove to be an exporter. There were messages also telling of scattered rains likely to help plowing for domestic winter wheat.

Beneficial rains in the Central West eased the corn market down. Oats were relatively firm, owing largely to prospective demand for Canada.

Provisions went lower, sympathizing with declines in the value of hogs.

Curb Review

New York, Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Selling was quite pronounced in today's curb market. Pools succeeded in marking up a few issues to new high levels, but prices generally lost ground. Uneasiness over the credit situation, fears of adverse legislation and the coming session of Congress and a widespread speculative belief that a further correction of the recent top-heavy speculative position was necessary, all contributed to the bearish sentiment.

While most of the public utilities lost ground, Standard Power and Light was whirled up nearly 11 points to another new high record at 181, which contrasts with the year's low of 49 1-2. Lone Star Gas ran up more than 6 points to a new top at 58 1-4. Electric Bond & Share dropped nearly 7 points, but recovered half its loss, and net declines of 3 points or more were recorded by American Commonwealth Power B, Central States Convertible preferred, and United Gas Improvement.

International Shoe responded to reports of improved sales by moving up to a new high at 78. Other issues to attain new top prices were City Radio Stores, Corron Reynolds issues, General Realty preferred, Horn & Hardart, and Libby McNeil.

Central Atlantic States was heavily bought, reaching a new high on the current movement, in response to the recent enlargement of its chain to 21 plants, the acquisition of a contract to operate the ice and cold storage properties of the Inland Utilities, Inc., and a change in management. American Cynamid B also was active on the up side.

Aviation shares were under rather steady pressure on selling inspired by the recent Transcontinental Air Transport fatalities and speculative disappointment over the sale of planes this year which has fallen well below earlier estimates. Aeronautical Industries, Curtiss Flying Service, National Aviation, New York, Rio & Buenos Aires and Universal Aviation fell back 1 to 2 1-2 points.

Oils also drifted lower but with the exception of Cosden, Gulf and Humble, which lost 1 1-2 to 3 points, the declines were held to fractions.

Investment, Trust and Holding Company stocks were mixed. Third National Investors and Intercoastal Trading moved into new high ground, but Electric Investors dropped 6 points and Goldman Sachs Trading and several others yielded a point or more.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM

The Post presents an investors' service to provide, from the most authoritative sources, market information for its readers. Inquiries of general interest will be answered in these columns.

Every letter of inquiry must contain the name and address of the writer and a 2-cent stamped envelope. All communications are confidential. The service is without charge.

Address your inquiries to CHARLES W. STORM, Financial Department, The Washington Post.

$10,000 Invested, Broker Gone.

F. B.—About six months ago I purchased 500 shares of a certain stock at $20 a share through a certain brokerage house. The salesman for the firm told me that this stock was soon to be listed on the New York Curb Exchange at a very much higher price than I paid for it and, further, that an initial dividend was soon to be declared, which would net me at least 10 per cent annually on my investment. To date I have not received any dividends nor, to my knowledge, has the stock been listed on the New York Curb. I have tried to get in touch with the firm from whom I bought the stock, but find that they have moved and can get no information regarding their present whereabouts. Will you please help me with your advice?

Answer—The company you mention has recently gone into receivership and the firm from whom you bought the stock has apparently gone out of business. It is too late for this column to be of any assistance. Millions of dollars are lost each year by hard-working people who, due to their anxiety to quickly increase their savings, are duped by so-called investment firms employing high-pressure salesmen. The writer does not doubt that huge amounts of money will continue to be lost each year through these same practices. However, if every prospective investor will make it a practice to investigate the financial standing of any brokerage or investment firm soliciting his business through his local banker before rather than after investing, losses of this character will be materially curtailed. In addition, make inquiry regarding financial standing of the company in which you intend to invest before making any purchase. The cases which come before this writer daily where hundreds and thousands of dollars have been irretrievably lost, due to careless investment of hard-earned funds, are truly pitiful. Your banker will always be glad to help you out, and this column is always at your service.

Cities Service Co.

W. C. F.—Kindly let me have your opinion on Cities Service Co. common stock as an investment. I am holding 100 shares at present, and am advised to buy more.

Answer—The issue mentioned is favored with capable management, and earnings over a period of years have been showing constant expansion. On account of these facts the stock has advanced considerably in recent months in market price. For long term holding it is favorably regarded, but would caution you that the issue may be subject to intermediate price fluctuations which you must be prepared to withstand. Would not buy more than you are prepared to pay for in full.

Classed as Radical Speculation.

J. E. W.—Can you give me any information about the status of Magazine Repeating Razor Co., of New Jersey? Has the company started marketing its electric razor yet? Is this stock listed or sold on any exchange?

Answer—On July 17, 1929, the Magazine Repeating Razor Co. announced that its electrically operated Schick Dry Shaver was ready for marketing. In its initial stages of operation and before earnings reports are available the stock of the company must be classed as a radical speculation, and not suitable for investment funds. There is no record in the files that the stock has as yet been listed on any exchange.

Not Even Good as Speculation.

C. W.—Please give me your opinion of Armour "B" and Freeport Texas.

Answer—Freeport Texas is on $4 dividend basis with occasional extras. At current levels it can be held for income. Armour "B" does not pay any dividend and has little to recommend it even as a speculation.

Good Dividend Payer.

J. R. S.—I am a business man and should like your opinion of a purchase of Stewart-Warner.

Answer—Stewart-Warner has reported good earnings. Average net income for the past ten years has been about double dividend distributions. Dividends at varying rates were maintained on the old stock since 1913, and following two-for-one split-up in April the new stock was placed on a $3.50 a share annual basis, equal to $7 on the old shares. On that date the first of four quarterly stock dividends of 2 per cent was distributed, to be duplicated August 15, November 15 and February 15, 1930.

Need Not Worry.

F. L. R.—I bought 40 shares National Dairy Products at 63⅝. Do you think I paid too much?

Answer—Price predictions are based only on conjecture. If you bought National Dairy Products for income, don't worry about the expenditure. The company manufactures and sells a diversified line of dairy products. Dividends were paid from 1924. Following a 100 per cent stock dividend in May, the new shares were put on an annual basis of $1.50. We suppose, of course, you own other securities and did not concentrate all your capital in this stock.

The Future of Anaconda.

W. B.—I hold 125 shares of Anaconda Copper Mining Corporation. Do you advise selling at the current market or holding for future further gain? I also hold merger certificates of Great Northern Railroad preferred and Northern Pacific Railway. Can you advise why the Interstate Commerce Commission withholds approval of the merger of those two companies?

Answer—One of the largest banking institutions in the country is optimistic with regard to the future of Anaconda. It is estimated that the company will earn approximately $14 a share on the stock this year. We would hold the stock for higher prices. Approval of the merger of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific companies is witheld due to the fact that the commission has not decided the case. Good judges of railroad stocks believe that these certificates should sell substantially higher irrespective of whether the consolidation is approved.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

GATES OPEN TODAY AT MARLBORO FAIR

Most of Exhibits Already Placed for Exposition in Prince Georges.

COUNTY SCHOOLS START

The Marlboro fair of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Fair Association will open today at the fair grounds in Upper Marlboro with the largest array of live stock, agricultural and home exhibits in its history. The air grounds have been thoroughly renovated and the road approaching from the Marlboro pike has been improved.

Most of the exhibits are in place, with the balance to be arranged today. The office of William G. Brooke, secretary of the association, has been inundated with entries for the last several weeks and he expects the exhibits this year to be far in excess of those exhibited last year, both in quantity and quality.

The usual racing program will feature each afternoon during the five days of the fair. Three sets of the new starting stalls, which make starting much easier than the old-time tape method, will be used for the first time on a half-mile track in Maryland.

Judges have been appointed by the extension service of the University of Maryland as follows: F. W. Oldenburg, specialist in agronomy, to judge farm crops other than tobacco; K. A. Clark, live stock; W. H. Rice, poultry, and F. W. Geise, floriculturist, to judge home gardens and garden exhibits. Louis P. Ranst, of the Tobacco Growers Association,, will judge the tobacco exhibits and the 4-H Boys Club teams judging contest.

Judges in the women's exhibits, to include clothing, fancy work, canned goods and general house needs, have been named by the Prince Georges County Federation of Women's Clubs on the recommendation of Miss Venia M. Kellar, of the extension service, as follows:

Miss Margaret McPhetters, nutrition specialist; Miss Catherine Cowsill, Mrs. Georgiana Linthicum, county agent of Anne Arundel County, and Miss Maude Burklin. The women's clubs are vying with each other in presenting exhibits in the general federation hall and two members from each club will remain as hostesses at their club booth each day. The federation also will have a booth for the first time this year.

While the exhibition halls are closed Wednesday for the judging of the exhibits, the federation will hold a picnic on the fair grounds, according to Mrs. Rudolph S. Allen, county president. Mrs. John Alcock, president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, is expected to attend the picnic and speak.

Approximately 12,000 children yesterday forsook the delights of summer vacation and plodded their way to the goals of education in Prince Georges County to resume the study of the three Rs. An additional 1,000 are expected to report when the fall harvesting is done.

Several of the schools will suffer from overcrowded conditions for a short while until additional buildings are completed to care for the increase, especially in the Bradbury Heights and Riverdale Schools.

The county board of education will meet today at Upper Marlboro to deal with problems arising with the opening of school, one of the most important of which will be transportation. The contract for carrying children to the Surrattsville School probably will be awarded as well as several other projected bus routes.

The board also will discuss the possibility of providing free trasportation for high school children from rural sections, in order that they may receive as high a decree of education as their brothers in the urban centers. Sentiment in the county is strongly in favor of such a move, especially in the rural sections.

The board will view the several projected sites for the Bradbury Heights School and possibly will decide upon the site for the school and will confirm the recent appointments of teachers.

Another important subject to be discussed is the disposition of the issue of bonds amounting to $265,000 for school construction. The board has kept the bonds from the market because of unfavorable conditions, but is anxious to dispose of them as quickly as possible in order that construction work can be started to care for the increase in school population.

Among the projects to be financed by the issue are the following: Addition to the Riverdale Elementary School, $30,000; Hyattsville Elementary addition, $18,000; Mount Rainier High School, $90,000; Decatur Heights Junior High, $50,000; Bradbury Heights Elementary, $50,000; Cheverly-Tuxedo Elementary, 13,000; Mitchellville Colored Elementary, $4,000; Holly Grove Colored Elementary, $4,000.

The county commissioners today again will consider the application of John B. Cochrane, Washington banker, for permits to erect two signboards on his property just beyond Paint Branch Bridge, College Park, on the Baltimore Boulevard. They refused to issue the permits last week, claiming that they had been hoodwinked into granting rezoning of the property from residential to commercial.

The commissioners postponed action on the applications until today in order to confer with the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the counsel to the county commissioners, M. Hampton Magruder, to see if there was any way they could refuse. It is understood that the commissioners have been informed that they must grant the petition as there are no legal grounds for refusal, inasmuch as the property is zoned commercial.

The commissioners have issued an order, however, that in the future all requests for rezoning must be accompanied by a sworn statement declaring the purposes to which the property is to be put under the new classification. Cochrane filed petition for rezoning and then asked for the permits after the petition had been granted. The signs in question, however, are not exactly new signs but have been half completed, the crews working on them having been arrested in the recent campaign against the erection of signboards in residential areas.

MINISTER ASSAILS ACTIONS OF BISHOP

Cannon Is Put Under Fire of Danville Pulpit in Market Operations.

CHURCH HELD STIRRED

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Sept. 9.—The Rev. John B. Winn, D. D., pastor of Mount Vernon Methodist Church, last night assailed the alleged bucket shop activities of "one of the highest officials of our church," and when asked today to whom he made the pulpit allusion, he said he meant Bishop James J. Cannon, jr. During the sermon no names were mentioned, but members of the congregation apparently drew their own inferences.

Dr. Winn said in part: "The fact that it has been discovered that one of the highest officials of our church has been trading extensively in the stock market; the further fact that the house with which he did his trading was an alleged bucket shop and now is under indictment in the Federal courts charged with fraudulent use of the mail, together with the extent and character of his trading, as revealed by published documentary evidence and sworn testimony, have stirred the church as few things have in its history. It is true that this official claims that he has done nothing legally or morally wrong. He says that he will ask for investigation and asks for a suspension of judgment until the investigation can be had. That request seems reasonable enough, and I am willing to abide by it.

"I am sorry, however, that after having asked for the confidence of the church until an investigation could be made, he had seen fit to flood it with an ex parte statement before the investigation has been made. I am sure the church can rest satisfied that full justice will be done, both to the man and to the church. I hope that we may wait the issue in quietness and peace."

The Rev. Dr. Winn then proceeded to draw a distinction between bucket shop speculation, buying stock on the installment plan and by outright purchase. He said gambling is nothing more than "getting something for nothing," and that it is as degenerating as any other vice.

Railroad Terminal In North End Sure

New Station Site Is Fixed by Representatives at Conference.

Assurance was given yesterday that a large railroad terminal for north Washington will be erected between the tracks of the Metropolitan branch of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and Sixteenth street, and south of the new highway between Sligo and Bethesda, Md.

Railroad officials, real estate operators and county leaders interested in the development have held a number of conferences during the past few weeks and the belief was expressed that a definite announcement would soon be made. The purposed terminal would make it possible for westbound passengers and those from the West to leave the trains at this point, instead of going the remainder of the distance to the Union Station here.

Consideration also is being given to the establishment of a freight delivery terminal. These will be directly on the new highway. Plans some time ago were formulated for the construction of an industrial terminal in the area between Georgia avenue and the railroad tracks, when the section was ordered rezoned for industrial purposes, and permission granted to run certain railroad sidings across certain streets.

Negro Farm Hand Dies; $1,059.80 in Pockets

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 9.—John W. Young, 75, negro, who fell dead while at work on a farm north of this city this morning, was found to have $1,059.80 in cash in a wallet in a hip pocket. Friends and employers knew he had an aversion to banks and carried his cash on his person, but it was not generally understood he had saved that much. He is also known to have carried a life insurance policy. He has no immediate survivors.

Death was due to heart failure. Young came of slave stock, his father having worked with the Porterfield, Cunningham and other old families in the section where the son died today.

LOUISIANAN TO HEAD MIDSHIPMAN CORPS

Andrew B. Jackson, Jr., Will Be Regimental Leader at Annapolis.

CAPITAL YOUTH HONORED

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 9.—A Louisianan will have the honor of leading the regiment of midshipmen during the coming academic term. He is Andrew B. Jackson, jr., of Baton Rouge. His appointment as regimental commander has just been announced by Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison, superintendent of the Naval Academy, along with the rest of the organization of the regiment. Jackson is among the "star" members of the class of 1930 in scholastic work. He is a member of the Fourth Company.

The ranking regimental staff officers are:

Subcommander, William C. Ennis, Lansing, Mich.; lieutenant and adjutant, Donald W. Gladney, jr., Louisville, Ark.; lieutenant and signal officer, Lieut. Ensey, Jacksonville, Fla.; lieutenant and commissary, Richard D. C. Hunt, jr., Pennsylvania.

Midshipmen, lieutenant commanders and lieutenants and subcommanders of the respective battalions are:

First battalion—W. E. Gentner, San Pedro, Calif., and L. S. Mulit, San Francisco.

Second battalion—P. Moret, Jackson, Mich., and David L. Whelchel, Washington, D. C.

Third battalion—M. A. Peterson, Algona, La.; W. T. Hines, Bowling Green, Ky.

Fourth battalion — J. S. Dorsey, Jacksonville, Fla.; R. L. Moore, jr., Jessup, Me.

The eight midshipmen lieutenants who will command the respective companies are:

T. B. Hughes, Kansas City, Kans.; E. O. Beirne, Elgin, Ill.; F. E. Highley, jr., Philadelphia; W. B. Phillips, Richmond, Va.; R. W. Johnson, Quillen Village, N. Y.; W. Y. Allen, jr., Huntsville, Tex.; E. J. McGregor 3d, Pelham Manor, N. Y., and E. R. Sander, Morin, Ill.

Of the appointees several are outstanding in scholastic work and have demonstrated their prowess in one or more branches of athletics. Gentner is captain and center fielder of the baseball team; Moret is end on the football team and a heavyweight boxer.

Dave Whelchel, Washington boy, was quarter back of last year's football team, but is ineligible this year because of the three-year rule. Peterson is a back field man on this year's squad.

Hoge, president; Miss Mozelle Breckenridge, vice president; Miss Elizabeth Nichols, corresponding secretary; Miss Laura Gregg, recording secretary, and Mrs. Mabel A. Taylor, treasurer.

Miss Mozelle Breckenridge, Mrs. Mabel A. Taylor, Mrs. Bertha Brown and Mrs. Mary S. Nichols were elected delegates to the convention to be held in Charlottesville. Plans were made for a visit from Mrs. Howland and for a reception to the teachers to be held October 4.

Rain Checks Drought That Menaced Crops

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Sept. 9.—Rains today and late yesterday broke a drought which had become menacing to farm and orchard crops in the Shenandoah Valley, but farmers and fruit growers said much more rain was needed to materially benefit vegetation. Many already have cut dried-up corn stalks to use them for fodder, as corn ears were too small to mature.

Commercial apple orchards are showing the effects of the long drought with undersized fruit and some varieties lacking proper color. Only one and nine-tenths inches of rain fell in August, compared with an August average of 3½ inches.

Apartment hunting is far from a pleasant task. Why not look in the classified columns of The Washington Post. Perhaps the very place you are looking for is advertised today.

TREND TO STANDARD VOCATIONS IS SEEN

51 Fields of Work Favored by University of Virginia Students.

MANY STILL UNDECIDED

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 9.—A definite trend toward vocational standardization is evidenced in a comparison of the occupations of the parents of University of Virginia students in the 1928-29 session with the chosen fields of work held in view by the students themselves, according to statistics compiled by Miss Virginia E. Moran, registrar, and made public today.

Registration data show that the parents represent 91 vocations, while the student body expresses a preference for only 51. This information was gathered from the registration of 2,166 students. Of this number, 1,863 have definitely chosen a field of work, 60 are still undecided, and 243 gave no choice.

In keeping with the Jeffersonian ideals of the institution, the survey shows, the student body represents almost every social and economic level; parents are politicians and plumbers, college presidents and barbers, authors and blacksmiths, capitalists and caretakers, diplomats and farmers. The report indicates that a minority of the student body will represent fields almost as varied, but the majority will become lawyers, doctors, teachers, or business men. Yet, a few hope to be farmers, journalists, missionaries, housewives, tobacconists and writers.

Merchants, lawyers, physicians and farmers, in the order named, represent the majority of parents. Of these, 160 are farmers, but the report discloses that in the student body only two expressed a desire to follow agricultural pursuits. On the other hand, 177 of the parents are lawyers, while 545 of the students intend to become barristers.

Following are the fields of work chosen by the student body: Accountancy and auditing 18, advertising 4, architecture 62, art 3, aviation 4, banking 27, biologist 1, broker 13, builder-contractor 4, business 133, chemist 31, commerce 15, cruising 1, dentist 6, diplomatic service 11, dramatic work 5, engineering 66, aeronautical engineering 1, chemical engineering 25, civil engineering 19, electrical engineering 36, mechanical engineering 10, mining engineering 3, farming 2, forestry 1, geologist 8, hotel business 2, housewife 1, insurance 5, journalism 30, library work 2, lumber business 1, manufacturing 12, merchant 10, ministry 25, missionary 1, nursing 2, pharmacy 1, law 545, rancher 3, railroading 4, real estate 4, salesman 1, scientific research 13, social service work 5, steel business 1, surgery and medicine 453, teaching 214, textile business 4, tobacconist 2, traffic 1, writing 12, undecided 60, information lacking 243.

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Sept. 9.—The public schools of Culpeper County will open Thursday morning. The teachers institute will be held at Culpeper High School building on Wednesday morning. At the morning session will be discussed public school music and opportunities through extension work. Vaccination requirements also will be a subject later. New Rural Supervision Takes Post in Loudoun

Special to The Washington Post.

Leesburg, Va., Sept. 9.—Miss Harriett Wharton, of North Carolina, has arrived in Loudoun to assume the duties of rural supervisor for the public schools of this county. Last year Miss Wharton held a similar position in Bedford County, Va.

She succeeds Mrs. Hannah T. Harbert, who has retired from work in the public schools.

Plowing to Kill Wild Garlic Urged

System Must Be Followed Three Years for Results, Says Department.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 9 (A. P.).—Timely plowing late each fall and again early in the spring, followed by the growing of thoroughly cultivated row crops, are essential steps in the so-called cultural method of controlling wild garlic, says the Department of Agriculture. In most places this system must be followed for at least three years in order to obtain a satisfactory clean-up of the weed.

Grazing with livestock, especially sheep, for several seasons, as closely as may be safe without serious injury to the pasture, aids in keeping down the growth of garlic in steep, rocky, or wooded pastures that cannot be plowed.

When dairy cows are pastured in garlicky fields, it is necessary to remove them from the pasture four to seven hours before milking to eliminate entirely the garlic flavor and odor from the milk. Milk cows should not be turned into such pastures in the spring until suitable forage plants are large enough to furnish good grazing, it is stated in a department leaflet on the subject.

Baptists to Meet In Sussex County

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Sept. 9.—The twenty-third annual convention of the Petersburg Baptist Association, which is composed of the Baptist Churches of Petersburg, Hopewell and the counties of Southside, Va., will convene for a two-day session Wednesday at Antioch Baptist Church in Sussex County, and is expected will draw a large attendance. D. T. Gornto, of Hopewell, will present the report on missions and the Rev. W. S. Leake, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Hopewell, will deliver an address on "The Relief and Annuity Board."

The first meeting of the association was held at Antioch Baptist Church in 1907. At that time 24 churches with a membership of 3,492 composed the association. At the meeting last year 34 churches, with a combined membership of 7,053, were reported members to the association.

Lightning Destroys Barn on Stud Farm

Special to The Washington Post.

Berryville, Va., Sept. 9.—Yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock lightning struck and destroyed the 12-stall brood mare barn at Page Brook, Capt. P. M. Walker's thoroughbred stud farm in Clarke County, killing one mare and two foals. The other 11 mares, with their foals, were led to safety by George Pollard, who was in charge of that barn. No fire company was called, as it burned so quickly, owing to the extreme dryness. The building was partially insured.

Capt. Walker is the pioneer thoroughbred race horse breeder of Clarke County, having started his stud farm in a small way some years ago, soon after resigning from the Army.

Negro Death Rate Twice White Total

Disparity in Races Shown by Virginia Health Department.

Richmond, Va., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—The disparity between the birth and death rates for white and negro citizens of Virginia continues, according to the current report of the State Health Department now being prepared for publication.

"The birth rates are fast approaching a parity, while death rates continue widely apart," says the report. "In 1928, for the first time, the difference between the birth rates for white and colored was less than two per cent per thousand—21.3 for whites and 23.31 for colored.

"For the same year the death rates were 9.89 for whites and 18.50 for negroes.

"Last year we had 37 less deaths from pulmonary tuberculosis than we had in the preceding year, but the decline was not uniform. Forty-seven less white citizens died, but there were ten more colored victims. Since the State makes no discrimination in the service it gives this condition is stranger."

School Need Seen In Charlottesville

Heavy Enrollment Marks Second Week of New Term.

Special to The Washington Post:

Charlottesville, Va., Sept 9.—The public schools of the city started upon their second week with a largely increased enrollment at several of the buildings. The enrollment by departments and buildings is as follows: High school departments at Midway, 563; grammar grades at Midway, 486; McGuffey School, 795; Venable School, 705; total in white schools 2,549; total in cloored schools, 841; total in all schools, 3,390. Total increase in all schools over last year, 148.

The need of another school building to relieve the distressing conditions at Midway School and to ease up the strain on McGuffey School, is one of the outstanding problems confronting the school board, the city council and the people. Some definite steps must be taken to give relief to a situation that grows more serious every year. The increased enrollment in the city schools must be taken care of or Charlottesville will rapidly lose her prestige in the quality of instruction given her children.

Deputy's Hearing In Slaying Begins

Official Who Fired Shot Killing Youth Is Arraigned.

Ashland, Ala., Sept. 9 (A.P.).—Cecil Guthrie, deputy sheriff of Clay County, charged with the slaying of Clarence Bailey, 18-year-old high school youth, who the officer was said to have attempted to arrest on a charge of violating the prohibition law yesterday, will be given a preliminary hearing tomorrow morning before Judge E. Guthrie surrendered to sheriff's officers following the shooting and was placed in the county jail pending the preliminary hearing. Funeral services for the youth will be held tomorrow.

Sheriff J. H. Allen said Guthrie told him the shooting was accidental. The sheriff said in his account of the shooting Guthrie related that, in company with another officer, he came upon Bailey and a companion in a field near Ashland.

Upon seeing the officers, he continued, Guthrie said the boys began running and he fired two shots in the air to make them halt and when the third shot was fired, he stumbled and the shot took effect in the back of Bailey's head, causing instant death.

At the place where they first saw the boys, Guthrie said a jug containing a quantity of whisky was found.
